A Climb Out of Everyday Life

By WARREN HARDING
As Told To
The ASSOCIATED PRESS

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (AP) — What's it like up there? It's a feeling of detachment from everyday life. It's so different. You're so removed, so isolated.

It seems like the things you don't care about disappear, at least to myself that happens. Things I care about I think about very much, people I love, people I like, things I like to do, things I can't do right at that particular time.

This climb, we spent so much time on the wall, this is really pointed out.

I missed my girl so much. I missed many of my good friends so much. I even missed my car.

Single Thought

After a while the climbing becomes sort of mechanical, sort of a drag, you might say. I'm drilling a bolt, and I'm thinking about anything else. Things I'll be doing in the future.

There are things you notice. We noticed hawks. I even saw an eagle one day, soaring around. We heard little frogs creaking. They live up in the rocks. Little things like this.

You ask why I climb. I've tried to explain this the best I can, and never do a very good job. I always come up with something inane.

It's comparable to a person who becomes very good at a profession, becomes a great actor, raises a fine family, becomes tremendous in business, or people who race automobiles.

No Distinction

Mountain climbers. It's the same thing, achievement in whatever medium you somehow happen to fall into. I see no particular distinction. I think psychologically it's all the same motivation. The guy that wants to make a million bucks in a junk yard has the same motivation basically as a person who wants to beat his brains out on a rock wall.

Dean Caldwell and I hit it off pretty well. A long climb is a good test of one's compatibility for a person. We came off much better friends than we started, and we started out rather well.

We have plans for things in South America, in the Andes in the summer, and in Venezuela in the fall. We want to climb the big cliff adjacent to Angel Falls in Venezuela. It's very comparable to El Capitan.

Climbers Look For New Peaks To Conquer

Pair Reach Summit After Scaling Sheer Face of El Capitan

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (AP) — The Heroes of El Capitan celebrated their 27-day climb up the sheer side of the 3,000-foot granite monolith and began casting glances today at new peaks to conquer.

Warren Harding and Dean Caldwell sipped champagne and munched fried chicken—their first hot food since Oct. 23—and declared their first ascent of El Capitan's "Wall of the Morning Light" would be their last.

"I feel great," said Harding, 46, of West Sacramento, Calif., as he arrived on the El Capitan crest just before noon Wednesday, smiling broadly through a heavy black and grey beard.

But when a reporter asked Harding, the dean of Yosemite climbers, whether he'd repeat the ascent he said, "No way, man!"

Try Others

Caldwell, 27, of Portland, Ore., commented, "I don't think I want to do the same one again. But I'll do others like it."

They have their sights on a climbing expedition to South America.

The climbers said they hoped to form an expedition next June to attempt a new ascent route on a 20,000-foot ice peak in the Peruvian Andes called Jirishanca. Then they want to try the unclimbed rock wall along the Angel Falls in Venezuela.

Their first reaction on reaching El Capitan's summit was astonishment at the size of the welcoming crowd, about 75 fellow climbers and news reporters who got to the top the easy way —by a trail on the opposite side.

400 Pounds

"God, I don't believe it!" said Caldwell as he arrived on top first at 11:34 a.m. Wednesday. He turned away and calmly resumed the chore of hauling up the 400 pounds of gear the men had carried 3,000 vertical feet and bringing up Harding on the climbing rope at 11:53 a.m. Then their girl friends rushed to the men and hugged and kissed them.

The spot was less than 200 feet from where Harding emerged on the first ascent of the face of El Capitan by an easier route 12 years ago this month.

The reunion of the climbers and the girls began a celebration that lasted into the night and delayed their return to the

IRS Willing to Figure Out Some People's Tax Returns

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service, a stickler for accuracy, is offering to figure income taxes free for 30 million Americans, 3.6 million of whom fouled up their returns last year.

The IRS said Wednesday a taxpayer could qualify if he earns no more than $20,000 a year, takes the standard 10 per cent deduction rather than itemized deductions, and has income only from salaries, wages, dividends, interest, pensions and annuities.

In another move aimed at easing the pain of separating citizens from taxes the IRS unveiled a revamped standard tax return form—form 1040. This year the instruction on how to fill blanks are in a separate booklet, not on the back of the sheet where last year's aggravated form-fillers were forced to keep peeking.

Taxpayers who qualify for free figuring can simply fill out vital information about themselves, list their income, and send in the return, along with W-2 forms.

Send Bill

The government does the rest. If a taxpayer's withholding doesn't cover the amount owed, he will get a bill. If he's due a refund, that will be sent along.

If the taxpayer catches the government overcharging him, he could demand a refund, along with 6 per cent interest.

But if the government pays a taxpayer too large a refund the IRS could collect the overage, but no interest if the money was paid quickly.

In the past, the IRS offers to figure income tax had been extended to Americans making up to $5,000. It estimated 30 million qualify for free figuring under the new rules, but wouldn't guess how many will take advantage of the offer.

In 1969, it said, errors were discovered on 3.6 million of the 78 million income tax returns filed. "These errors resulted from taxpayers using the wrong table, line, or column to figure his tax," it said.

Challenge Expected On Abortion Order

MILWAUKEE (AP) — An order by a federal three judge panel prohibiting prosecution of Dr. Sidney Babbitz on a charge of performing an illegal abortion will probably be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court.

"I presume that we will appeal directly to the U.S. Supreme Court," said Deputy Dist. Atty. Allen Samson of Milwaukee County.

"We recognize the federal court ruling, but we also recognize the right to contest it to the highest court," said Deputy Atty. Gen. Arvid Sather.

The judges permanently enjoined prosecution of Babbitz and other defendants charged under the state statute which prohibits abortion during early pregnancy.

The retired Milwaukee physician, who now lives in Hollandale, Fla., had been scheduled to stand trial Nov. 30.

U.S. District Judges Myron Gordon and John Reynolds of Milwaukee and Otto Kerner of the 7th Circuit Court of Appeals at Chicago ruled in March that the Wisconsin law prohibiting abortion in the early months of pregnancy was unconstitutional.

"We find our declaration and judgment have been completely disregarded by state authorities," they said in their new decision Wednesday.

"Because of the state's tacit threats of prosecution, it follows that the general citizenry of Wisconsin will be obliged to disregard our judgment of unconstitutionality. In this sense, we regretfully observe our hope that the state would vindicate Dr. Babbitz and others in his position has not been realized."

The panel said courtesy required that state authorities pending an appeal desist from prosecuting Babbitz and others similarly charged.

The judges said courtesy in this case "has proved to be a one-way street" thus far.

Budget Requests Hit $2 Billion

MADISON (AP) — A major tax increase will be necessary in Wisconsin soon if budget requests of all state agencies are approved, state revenue secretary James Morgan predicted Wednesday.

Morgan also said that if the increase comes in the form of income tax hikes, the $7,000 to $15,000 a year wage earner "will be a big part of the (new) tax base."

The secretary told the Joint Committee on Education in Wisconsin that budget requests of state agencies for the next two years total about $2 billion, up $500 million from the current level.

"I don't know how close the present revenue system is to covering this increase," Morgan said. "All I know is it won't cover a $500 million increase."

The proposed budgets will be presented soon to Democratic Gov.-Elect Patrick J. Lucey and then to the 1971 legislature.

Killed in Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — The death of another Wisconsin soldier in action in the Southeast Asian war was reported Wednesday by the Defense Department. He was identified as Army Spec. 4 John G. Strachota of Milwaukee.

Quick Cambodia Aid Okay Asked

Support For Israel Connected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania today warned critics of President Nixon's $155-million aid program for Cambodia that opposition could jeopardize $500 million earmarked for Israel.

"If they want aid to Israel," Scott told reporters, "they had better support the whole bill."

And he also contended that "the real issue here is that some people with presidential ambitions have no issue here unless they try to revive Cambodia . . . for personal and political reasons."

The funds for Cambodia, and $65 million for South Vietnam, were part of a $1-billion boost in foreign aid that Nixon asked Congress to enact this year.

About half the total, some $500 million, would go to help Israel build her military strength.

Urgent Need

But even Republicans acknowledged it might be difficult, despite "urgent needs" Nixon cited in his special aid message, to win enactment of the package during the current, lame-duck session of Congress.

Sen. Gordon Allot of Colorado, chairman of the Republican Policy Committee, said he had some doubts that action would come this year.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, and a leading critic of Southeast Asian policies, wouldn't guess at a timetable.

"This is a very serious enlargement of our responsibilities in Southeast Asia, and one that deserves the most careful scrutiny to determine if it is in the interests of this country to assume such an enlargement," Fulbright said.

Wednesday Briefing

Nixon briefed Senate leaders on his proposal at the White House Wednesday. At a separate background briefing for newsmen a high administration official outlined the administration's rationale, saying past aid to Cambodia already has helped the Vietnam war effort.

The official told newsmen three North Vietnamese divisions have been pulled out of South Vietnam and into Cambodia, and another was withdrawn from South Vietnam into south Laos.

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Democratic leader, said after talking with Nixon he was willing to consider the President's proposal provided it would help speed withdrawal of American troops.

Fulbright said the Cambodia proposal looked to him like only the first installment of an aid program.

Supplement Efforts

"It is essential that we supplement Cambodia's own efforts by providing resources which are critically needed to enable it to continue to defend itself," Nixon said. "It's ability to do so is a vital element in the continued success of Vietnamization."

The President asked for $70 million in economic support and $85 million in military assistance "to meet Cambodia's urgent needs" between now and next June 30.

Nixon said 70 per cent of the military aid would be for ammunition. Mansfield said the request involved only small arms for the Cambodians.

New Responsibility

But Fulbright said if the request is granted, "we are undertaking a whole new responsibility to carry Cambodia along like Vietnam."

Nixon also asked for $100 million to restore aid he said had been diverted to Cambodia from such accounts as Greece, Turkey and Taiwan.

About $52 million of the transfers had not been disclosed before.

Nation's Food Bill Soars

WASHINGTON (AP) — Meat-hungry Americans will spend a record $114.6 billion for food this year the Agriculture Department estimated today.

The eight per cent jump, sharpest in 20 years, can be laid mainly to an estimated 5.5 per cent rise in food prices. But population increases and a rising appetite among consumers for more meat also are factors, the department said.

High meat prices don't dull the appetite, the report indicates. Consumption of beef, which has been setting price records this year, will be 113 pounds per person this year, up 2½ pounds from 1969, the report estimates.

Pork eaters will consume 65.4 pounds, only a fraction of a pound more than in 1969; veal will be down and lamb will hold even. Chicken, benefiting competitively from higher meat prices, is put at 41.7 pounds, up from 39 last year.

Farmer's Share

The report was the second in a recent series relating consumer food costs to what farmers are paid. Earlier the department said retail prices are expected to continue rising next year but that the farmer's share of the consumer food dollar will not.

Based on disposable income, consumers this year are expected to spend about 16.5 cents of each take-home dollar on food. This would be slightly less than in 1969 and continues a downward trend.

Although cautious, the report said consumers can expect "a large decline" in pork prices if middleman margins are brought in line with recent price cuts farmers have taken in the hog market.

'Not Afraid to Strike'

Big Wage Increase Leads Demands of Steelworkers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — United Steelworkers President I. W. Abel has taken the wraps off major 1971 contract demands and left little doubt his 1.2 million-member union would strike if necessary to back them up.

Although a "substantial wage increase" will be a major issue in the bargaining, Abel said, priority goes to a cost-of-living escalator.

"We waived this in 1969, and as a result the membership has suffered ever since," he said.

Abel spoke Wednesday at a news conference where a 14-page list of union demands was unveiled.

Cost-of-living wage escalators usually provide for automatic wage hikes if government surveys indicate price increases.

4-Day Week

Other demands disclosed by Abel include cutting the five-day, eight-hour work week to four days and improved pension-health benefits.

The major demands were hammered out during a two-day session of the wage policy committee, made up of 163 elected local union representatives.

Asked the mood of the steelworkers, Abel said: "The attitude and frame of mind of our wage policy committee these last two days indicate they would strike to gain the equity they feel they have lost these past three years.

"There is no question in my mind that my men will strike . . . if necessary.

"However," he added, "we hope to avoid a strike."

But Abel said the union will not push to eliminate its present no-strike agreement with the industry while noting there was considerable pressure in some union quarters to have it stricken from the 1971 contract.

The clause stipulates complaints must be submitted and settled through grievance channels.

Abel indicated he personally was not opposed to the no-strike clause, saying that when he was a local president he went through 29 strikes in a year "and that's how I got my gray hair."

The last strike in the basic steel industry was a 116-day shutdown in 1959.

Asked whether he thought the tentative agreement reached by the United Auto Workers with General Motors would affect the steelworkers' talks, Abel said: "Sure, it will have some effect on our bargaining, but to what extent, I can't say."

Mitchell Testifies

FT. HOOD, Tex. (AP) — With tears glistening on his cheeks, S. Sgt. David Mitchell testified today he shot no one in a South Vietnamese hamlet during an alleged massacre in 1968, and he saw no one shot.

Ossie Brown, Mitchell's lawyer, asked him one question:

"Did you shoot any Vietnamese people . . .?"

"No, sir . . ." Mitchell interrupted.

". . . in a ditch at My Lai 4 on March 16, 1968?"

"No, sir, Mr. Brown, I did not."

"I tender the witness," Brown said.

Under cross-examination by Capt. Michael Swann, Mitchell said he helped gather up approximately 30 Vietnamese civilians.

He said he took the civilians to a ditch outside My Lai, left them there in the custody of Paul Meadlo, Terre Haute, Ind., and then set up a perimeter 50 or 60 meters beyond the ditch with his squad.

Mitchell said 1st Lt. William L. Calley Jr. later ordered him to go back into the village "to check it out."

"Did you see anybody shot that day?" Swann asked.

More Big-Ticket Items Bought in Valley Counties

Judging from the number of big-ticket household accessories that families in Outagamie County and in the neighboring counties have been acquiring during the last few years, living standards are on the rise locally

Their purchases of dishwashers, air conditioners, stereophonic equipment, cars and other high-priced equipment have been climbing steadily since 1960

It is directly attributable to the income gains chalked up in the period by most local families

Sample Survey

The extent to which ownership of automobiles and household appliances has increased is based upon a special sample survey made by the Department of Commerce and data from other sources

Their figures show that there is a direct relationship between a family's earning capacity and the amount of expensive durables that it amasses over the years

In Outagamie County, on the strength of these findings, no less than 23 9 per cent of the local families are the owners of two or more cars at the present time This compares with 17 6 per cent in 1960

More Television

There has been a marked increase, also, in the number of families with television sets This has been due, to a large extent to the growth of color TV

Approximately 96 5 per cent of the households in Outagamie County now have television sets as compared with 96 1 per cent in 1960

Similarly, more homes are equipped with washing machines than was the case then Ownership in the four counties regional area is placed at 74 4 per cent

This relates only to outright ownership Actually, the proportion of families that have washing machines available to them is greater than that because many rental units are equipped with them

The survey, which presents data on a national and regional basis, also shows an increase in the proportion of families with clothes dryers, hi-fi sets and freezer units Home ownership has also been on the rise

Valley Statistics

The entire Fox Valley area shows increased ownership of automobiles and TV sets

In 1960 more than one car was owned by 21 8 per cent of the families in Calumet County In 1970 this had jumped to 29 6 per cent The increase in the ownership of television sets in Calumet climbed from 91 6 per cent of the county's families in 1960 to 97 1 per cent in 1970

Similar increases were recorded in Waupaca County where 23 1 per cent of families owned more than one car in 1960 This had increased to 31 4 per cent in 1970 Television ownership increased from 92 per cent in 1960 to 97 per cent 10 years later

In Winnebago County 27 6 per cent of families owned more than one car in 1970 as compared with 20 3 per cent in 1960 Families owning television sets increased to 8 per cent from 94 7 per cent

All of it has been made possible by incomes that have gone up sufficiently, after absorbing the increase in living costs, to provide these extras

Committee Allows Garage Over Objection

City Permit Given For Building on Street Right-of-Way

Objections by Garden Court property owners to a city permit for a garage being built in undeveloped Calumet Street right-of-way has been filed away by a City Council committee, over objections from one of the petitioners

Norman A McHan 57 Garden Court appeared Monday before the streets and sanitation committee to argue that the garage permit never should have been granted He said construction of the garage puts another roadblock" in the way of future construction of the controversial stretch of street by the city.

Garden Court residents have repeatedly urged construction of the street while residents on Cherry Court on the opposite side of the ravine that the street would cross have opposed it

Ethics of Case

McHan, an unsuccessful candidate for 10th Ward alderman last spring, said he doesn't care whether Calumet Street goes through or not, voicing doubt that the project would solve traffic access problems for Garden Court

Objecting that neighbors weren't notified before the permit was granted, McHan said, What I'm basically talking about, I guess, is the ethics of the whole situation "

He said Louis Chudy, 2 Garden Court, who was given permission to build the garage, receives use of the land tax-free "He's no different than any of the rest of us," said McHan urging the city to invoke its right to order the garage moved

The city reserved the right in the terms of the permit McHan said Chudy has land of his own that could accommodate the garage.

Not in Budget

Public Works Director Robert Miller disagreed that letting the garage stand would hinder future development of the street if the city chose to do so The project isn't in the 1971 street improvement budget, he said, so the garage won't interfere with plans for the present

McHan said Chudy in effect obtains "squatters' rights" on the property, but Miller said the city has granted temporary use of street right-of-way elsewhere and it has never hindered development of the streets

Construction of the Calumet Street segment was described to McHan as complicated both by engineering and political considerations Filling the ravine will require considerable material and expense, while Town of Menasha cooperation is required to extend the street, which also would occupy town territory

Neenah Man Takes Chess Championship

Man Gets Sentence of Four Months

21-Year-Old Gave Drug to Informer; Gets Huber Rights

Outagamie County Judge Nick F Schaefer Tuesday passed a relatively mild sentence on a 21-year-old Appleton man who furnished a dangerous drug to a police informer.

Richard Geborek, 121 N. Drew St , was sentenced to four months in the county jail, with Huber Law privileges The charge, a felony, can carry up to five years in prison

Schaefer, who was pleased with the findings of a presentence investigation, told Geborek "there's room for you to improve, if you get a decent job and stabilized Drugs can bring about consequences and results which can be very severe I feel you can make an improvement without prison "

Geborek's attorney echoed the statements of Schaefer saying he was "much impressed" with the presentence report "It reflects the difficulties I have had with this case " He maintained that the guilty finding of the jury, returned Nov 9, "still smacks" of entrapment of a basically "passive" individual

Geborek, one of four Fox Valley men to be arrested Oct 20 as the result of combined efforts of city and county investigators, was charged with giving marijuana to a police informer Oct. 1

The two, who formerly lived in adjacent rooms at a Drew Street house, made a previous arrangement to make the exchange, a preliminary hearing revealed.

Nixon Warned Present Policy Will Push Unemployment to 'Astronomical' Level

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - On Oct 30, while President Nixon barnstormed the West, a confidential letter was mailed to him with contents foreboding enough to chill the blood of any Republican — particularly a Republican President named Richard M Nixon.

The writer of the letter Dr Pierre Rinfret, a New York-based economic consultant and sometime unofficial adviser to Nixon. In its single paragraph the letter sums up terrifying statiscal projections Rinfret sent his clients in October astronomical unemployment rates reaching nearly 8 per cent in 1971 and nearly 10 per cent in 1972 if the Nixon administration continues its present economic "game plan" Unemployment rates even close to that would insure Nixon's defeat by any Democrat in 1972. Thus, the letter is both a warning to Nixon and ammunition to Republicans, inside and outside the Administration, who are pushing for a change.

Rinfret's standing in the White House has had its ups and downs and now seems in a down phase. But his Oct 30 letter did breach the sanitary cordon set up around Mr. Nixon by the palace guard and actually reached his desk, whereupon the President dispatched it to Dr. Paul McCracken, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers. And relations between Rinfret and the CEA have been chilly (Rinfret acidly calls it the "catastrophe of economic advisers").

Split Over Warning

As of today, Nixon advisers are as divided over Rinfret's warning as over all other economic questions. Some, particularly high Treasury officials, view Rinfret's economics as unconscionably alarmist. But his warnings differ only in degree from CEA member Herbert Stein's position. One White House political operative, publicly euphoric over the economy, was privately pleased that Rinfret's warning reached the President's desk

That warning, boiled down to one paragraph for quick Presidential reading, was developed at length in reports to Rinfret's clients

In an Oct. 16 report, Rinfret assumed that "real" national economic growth (discounting inflation) would be 3 to 3 5 per cent in 1971, accompanied by a 3 per cent increase in productivity (output per man-hour) This lethal combination of slow growth and high productivity, present 5.6 per cent unemployment to 6 at the end of 1970, 6.6 in mid-1971, 7.9 at the end of 1971, 8.5 at mid-1972, and a horrendous 9 7 per cent at the end of 1972.

Such a result, Rinfret concludes with straight-faced understatement, "is politically unsatisfactory, and enough monetary and fiscal stimuli must be provided to see that this doesn't happen."

Idle Men

On Oct. 22, another Rinfret report contended that "low economic growth in 1971 and 1972 will lead to more idle economic capacity and idle men than at any time in the past 10 years." Thus, he continued, the economy can rapidly expand the money supply plus a 25 to 35 billion-dollar budget deficit "without stimulating inflation." What's more, he hinted at a tax cut to sop up idle capacity.

Checking economists outside the Administration, we found disagreement with Rinfret's projection more in degrees than time. One prominent forecaster feel Rinfret's produstivity estimates are too high and, consequently, end-of-1970 unemployment should be around 6.5 per cent - still poisonously high Another says Rinfret's estimated growth rate is too low but agrees unemployment will worsen.

Inside the Administration, those unequivocally backing the game plan of achieving full employment (that is, 4 per cent unemployment) by mid-1972 reject Rinfret's statistics but add that, if they do prove out, the Administration can rapidly change gears. "You'd be surprised how quick we could change," one policymaker told us "We may be crazy but we're not stupid "

That's just what is doubted by critics of the game plan, however. Governmental decisions affecting 1971 are being made now If umemployment exceeds even 6 per cent at the end of 1971, the political gain for 1972 may be lost. That is the highly political — and highly important — message Pierre Rinfret has sent to Nixon in the most bloodcurdling language possible

Your Money's Worth

Guidelines for The Small Businessman

BY SYLVIA PORTER

The danger that you, a fledgling small businessman, will go bankrupt will be extraordinarily high in the period directly ahead. It will be tough enough for an established, experienced, well-financed enterprise to make a profit against 1971's background of stiff competition for the consumer's dollar, steep labor costs and operating expenses, only slowly rising sales. It will be infinitely harder for the young inexperienced newcomer to make a go of it.

This year's economic climate already has sent business failures soaring toward the 11,000 mark. Dun & Bradstreet's latest tally shows the overall total of failures up 25 per cent over 1969; the number of failures with debts of more than $100,000 up a startling 91 per cent; failures in manufacturing up 81 per cent, in wholesale trade up 36 per cent and in commercial service up 23 per cent. In the dress industry alone, thanks to the midi, 64 per cent more concerns have been casualties this year than last and 1969's failures in dress manufacturing in turn doubled the 1968 rate.

Should this discourage you from realizing the American dream of going into business for yourself, being your own boss? No! But it surely shouts a warning to you to take all the proper steps in advance to avoid the obvious pitfalls, to make sure that you have prepared yourself to win. That's merely elementary common sense

Guide to Success

As a guide to success, ask yourself and honestly answer this sampling of questions:

— Have you worked in a business like the one you want to start and do you want this venture badly enough to keep you working long hours without knowing how much money you'll end up with?

—Do you know how much money you will need to get your business started and have you a precise idea of how much money of your own you can put into the business?

— Do you know how much credit you can get from your suppliers, the people you will buy from — and where you can borrow the rest you need to start?

— Have you figured out what net income per year you expect to get from this enterprise (count your salary and your profit on the money you put into the business) and can you live on less than this amount so you can use some of it to help your business grow?

— Do you know the good and bad points about going it alone, having a partner and incorporating your business and have you talked both to a lawyer and a banker about your plans?

— Have you tried to find out whether stores like the one you want to open are doing well in your area and elsewhere?

— Do you know what kind of people will want to buy what you plan to sell, do people like that live in your neighborhood and do they need a store like yours?

— If you're planning to buy a business someone else has started, are you sure you know the real reason why the owner wants to sell?

— Have you talked with other businessmen in the area to see what they think of the business, have you talked with the company's suppliers, have you talked with a lawyer about this transaction?

This is a sufficient sampling. Have you answered "yes" to every question? If so, okay, you seem a good risk.

If you have answered even one no, back up and think again. For this suggests you have a lot more preparing to do.

Whatever your answers to this sampling, write today to the Small Business Administration, Washington, D.C., 20416, for a new, completely revised edition of its "Checklist for Going into Business," SMA-71. Study the 12-page pamphlet; fill out all the questions; ask your friends and objective observers — a lawyer, banker, casual acquaintance at your office — to judge you too

If I do no more than alert you to this guide for the exciting but risky venture of starting your own business, I may have performed a most valuable service

'Miracle' Gives Menasha Housewife Bright Future

MILWAUKEE — The story of a "miracle" which happened to a Menasha housewife has been related by William J. Feldstein, chairman of the board of Junior House.

The "miracle" occurred for Mrs. Shirley Gratto, 26, of 113 Hickory Lane, who suffered severly from tuberculosis and faced a bleak future until she heard of the National Jewish Hospital and Research Center at Denver

According to Feldstein, who is chairman of the Wisconsin committee of the hospital Mrs. Gratto has been released from the hospital after nearly a year's treatment with the disease arersted Once a tuberculosis victim resistant to almost every major drug given to treat her, she now is back in Menasha with the bright future of a housewife before her.

How did the "miracle" come about?

29 Days

Drug treatment of Mrs Gratto had begun in 1965 and nothing seemed to work At National Jewish Hospital, which she entered on Oct 22, 1969, she was placed on rifampin, and her tuberculosis was arrested in just 29 days.

Mrs. Gratto recalls that she had had pneumonia several times before contracting tuberculosis, but has no idea how she contracted tuberculosis. Formerly a supervisor of land transaction recordings in Marinette County, Wis., Mrs. Gratto said she was exposed to "so many people in my work"

She entered a state sanitorium in July, 1965, but within four months became resistant to three major tuberculosis drugs After about 3½ years at the sanitorium, Mrs Gratto tested negative following combination therapy with four other drugs. She returned home and was married, but became positive again nine months later.

No Hope at Home

"There was no hope for me at home Then we learned of National Jewish Hospital," Mrs Gratto says. "When I was accepted by the hospital for treatment, I figured I had the whole thing licked.

"Three weeks after I heard about rifampin, I was there Five weeks after I first heard about it, I was on it. And 29 days later, I got my negative culture back"

Mrs. Gratto will be taking rifampin — not yet available for general use — for two years, under the supervision of her private physician. She will return to the hospital in six months, however, for a checkup.

"I'm really grateful to National Jewish," Mrs. Gratto adds "It's just like a miracle."

Her husband, Everett, 27, is a rewinder operator for a paper coating plant The couple has no children

"Now," Mrs. Gratto adds, "I can go home, feeling like a human being again I now have self-confidence. National Jewish gave me a future security — something most tuberculosis victims do not have."

Reflects Exuberance

Mrs Gratto reflects that same exuberance shown by thousands or of other patients National Jewish Hospital and Research Center has given a new chance — patients accepted by the hospital regardless of age, race or creed, or ability to pay, for treatment of chronic respiratory diseases.

In addition to Feldstein, members of the Wisconsin Committee of the National Jewish Hospital and Research Center include: U. S Senators Gaylord A Nelson and William Proxmire; Former Governor Walter J Kohler, Richard E Cudahy, president, Patrick Cudahy, Inc; John W Schmitt, Wisconsin State AFL-CIO; Joseph E Rapkin, attorney, and Benjamin F. Saltzstein, attorney John H Kelly, president of the Midland National Bank, is treasurer of the committee.

Dr. Nikola Miljanic Yugoslavia's Head Of Economy Resigns

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Dr. Nikola Miljanic has resigned as vice premier of Yugoslavia in charge of the economic recovery program because he supported devaluation of the dinar, a course opposed by Yugoslavia's premier, informed sources said today.

Premier Mitja Ribicic announced Miljanic's resignation Wednesday night but refused to give any reason for it

Ribicic's group believes the recovery program for the inflation-ridden Yugoslav economy should be launched on the current value of the dinar, about eight cents

Ribicic reportedly told parliamentary deputies the dinar has fared well through two informal devaluations in the past, but he said Milsanic wanted to "change the dinar, ill as it was, even before it recovered again."

Ross Starfeldt won't be a year old until Saturday, but already he knows how to venture outside these days — with as much warm clothing as possible. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorenz Starfeldt Jr, 511 E. Marquette St., Appleton. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Extension Chancellor Calls For Changes in University

MADISON (AP)— George B Strother, acting chancellor of the University of Wisconsin Extension, called Wednesday for some fundamental changes in the academic world

He told the University Extension faculty conference that education must be spread farther and faster, and the 650 faculty members gave him a standing ovation for his views

"Much of the knowledge explosion is a bust because it is not moving out to the people who can use it," he said

"In many ways the traditional academic departments are obsolete . . . nor is there anything sacred about credits and residency requirements on campus for degrees."

The acting chancellor said federal "seed money" for academic programs "isn't worth a hoot."

"We need sustained support because nobody picks up a one or two year old program which has run out of funds," Strother said

In another speech, the president of the University of Wisconsin Board of Regents said campus radicals have been unable to put together serious demonstrations on three critical days this fall

Bernard Zeigler of West Bend said dissidents called for large scale demonstrations during Homecoming festivities, on election day and on Nov 11 when the General Motors Corp visited the Madison campus But they did not come about

"The university needs this breather because the people we serve are suspicious of education in general right now," he said

Zeigler called upon the faculty members to "resell the kind of university we have, which is on the brink of going down the drain"

Four faculty members were honored at the conference, and four other persons received "Friends of Extension" awards

Faculty members honored with distinguished service awards were Orrin I. Berge, agricultural engineer; Mrs. Singe S. Cooper, chairman of extension nursing, and Robert E Gard, founder of the Wisconsin Idea Theater Al P. Nelson, a retired creative writing teacher, was given the Standard Oil teaching award for excellence.

Friends of the extension honored were Jack Rieh, state secretary - treasurer of the AFL-CIO, Robert Leverenz Shoe Co. boygan, Leverenz Shoe Co. board chairman; Carl J. Forsberg of Madison, Wisconsin Power and Light Co. board chairman, and Leslie Paffrath of Racine, president of the Johnson Foundation

Pope Paul Donates Ornate Candelabra

VATICAN CITY, (AP) — Pope Paul VI has donated two large bronze candelabra to Saint Peter's Basilica to commemorate his 50 years as a priest.

The ornate candelabra, now supporting the oil lamps which burn night and day in front of the statue of St. Peter, were blessed by the Pope Wednesday in a brief ceremony

The lampstands are the work of Italian sculptor Emilio Giarolli and show episodes in the lives of St. Peter and St. Paul

Police & Fire Beat

A fine of $25 and costs was levied Tuesday against Richard Hoskins, 32, route 1, Shiocton, on a charge of disorderly conduct. Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer passed the fine after noting that Hoskins had made restitution for a window he broke in the county jail Oct. 31. County authorities brought the charge after Hoskins broke the window while being confined in the solitary cell of the jail on a traffic violation. He was previously found guilty of the count.

Board Supports Proposed Freeway

CHILTON — The Calumet County Board went on record Tuesday in support of the proposed freeway between Milwaukee and Green Bay. The highway will be located in a broad corridor between the east boundary line of Calumet County and State 32 north of U. S. 151 and east of the east boundary line of Calumet County and generally parallel to State 32 south of U. S. 151.

The resolution stated that this route would be an important asset to the county in providing a fast, safe and efficient through-way which would relieve the increasing burden on the existing highway network.

The route, if approved after a public hearing in December in Plymouth, would be located 2 miles east of Kiel, 5 miles east of New Holstein, 8½ miles East of Chilton and 2½ miles east of Brillion.

The board directed Roland Tonn, county planner, and E. A Hedrich, chairman of the highway committee, to attend the hearing on the county's behalf.

Also passed were five resolutions pertaining to highway expenditures.

The purchase of a $40,000 motor grader was authorized to replace an obsolete 21 year old grader.

The sum of $149,700 will become available for county highway allotments at the end of the fiscal year. This will include grading, drainage and base projects on county trunk PP north of Brillion, totaling $78,900, base material and blacktopping for county trunk P, at a cost of $28,000, and general county maintenance amounting to $43,700.

The board also appropriated a total of $217,000 for additional highway improvements. This includes $31,000 for grading and surfacing of county trunk P beginning at U. S. 10 and extending toward to county trunk K; $22,000 for sealcoating county highways; $55,000 for highway maintenance; $50,000 for machinery purchase and repairs; $21,000 for administrative expenses, and $38,000 for winter maintenance.

Revolt Within GOP Fails; Vote Record Is Secret

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The record may never show it, but the revolt of some Republican assemblymen against what they regarded as the excessively conservative stance of their leadership in the 1969 legislature flared briefly and ineffectually here Wednesday, as the GOP assembly caucus, reduced in numbers in the November elections, retained Rep. Harold Froehlich of Appleton as its leader for the 1971 session of the legislature.

In an unusual action, caucus members agreed before their session that the result of the challenge of Rep. James Azim of Grant County would be announced by two tellers, who would thereupon destroy the ballots, members of the party strategy meeting said.

As a result, there is no recorded count of the vote that returned Froehlich to top ranking among his GOP assembly colleagues, although reliable guesses had it that there were only five votes against him in the 33 member group that met behind closed doors.

The Froehlich group's hold on the affections and confidence of colleagues for the 1971 legislature was certified when the surviving Republican assemblymen picked Rep. John Shabaz of New Berlin, Waukesha County, as assistant minority leader, and Rep. Donald Helgeson of Manitowoc as minority caucus chairman.

James Sensenbrenner, a suburban Milwaukee representative, had joined the Azim slate as a challenger of Shabaz. Helgeson turned back Tommy Thompson from Elroy and Joseph Tregoning of Shallsburg for the caucus chairmanship which is not of strategic value, but is an acknowledgment from his colleagues that they regard him as future leadership timber.

Froehlich was speaker of the Republican-controlled house for its 1967 session, and holds the speakership of the assembly for the waning 1969 session. With the Democrats in control of the chamber by a two to one margin, Rep. Robert Huber of West Allis will be chosen speaker for the new session that will begin Jan. 18.

The agreement for the destruction of the caucus ballots and the informal reporting of the results was between Froehlich and Azim and is new in legislative political organization techniques. Evidently both factions saw value in it as a face-saving gesture.

Azim said that his candidacy had provided assurances that "all points of view will be heard" by the Republican legislature, and that "we made a fight that had to be made". He repeated his concern that the conservative image of the Froehlich-directed 1969 assembly damaged the Republican cause in the recent elections and contributed to the historic Democratic sweep which also captured the governorship from the GOP.

Froehlich may have been concerned about the abortive revolt against his views and his leadership, but he took a conciliatory tone when he met with reporters after the three hour caucus deliberations.

"There was no necessity for the vindication" of the Republican legislature's record, he retorted briefly to a question.

He predicted that his party organization in the lower house will be unified when the new legislature meets and said it is "determined to be the loyal opposition."

It will "present a program that will match that of the Democrats," he said, explaining that it will seek to provide alternatives in all of the major policy fields to that of the administration of Gov.-Elect Patrick J. Lucey, when the Republican legislators feel such a choice is desirable or necessary.

The returning GOP legislators also chose Rep. William LaFave of Peshtigo as assembly caucus secretary for the 1971 term.

Harold Froehlich won't be speaker in the next session of the Wisconsin Assembly, but he retained his Republican party leadership Wednesday when a GOP caucus voted overwhelmingly to make him Assembly minority leader.

To Confirm Knowles' Appointment

Republicans Oppose Legislative Session

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Republican members of the state assembly are opposed to a "rump" session of the incumbent state legislature for the purpose of confirming appointments of Gov. Warren P. Knowles before the expiration of the current legislative term, retiring Speaker Harold Froehlich of Appleton reported here Wednesday.

Retaining his rank as the chief Republican spokesman in the 1971 assembly, Froehlich announced after an organization caucus of his party colleagues that they will resist a return of the legislature to session by the call of the governor, or at its own initiative, as provided under the conditions of its recess resolution of last January.

Such a session would not be likely to be productive, would "merely hash over old issues," and would provide a temptation for the expenditures of money that is not needed, the Appleton leader said.

He qualified the declaration by explaining that if Knowles decides to summon the legislators to return, they will insist on the right to consider other matters besides his appointments.

Republican Concensus

Froehlich said he was reporting the concensus of the Republican assemblymen who survived the November elections in which they lost house control for the 1971 session to the Democrats, as well as defeated or otherwise retiring Republican members who will hold their seats until the swearing in of the new legislature in January.

The state senate Republican caucus, which will remain in control of the upper chamber of the legislature, recently considered the question of a final session by the retiring legislature, but reported no decision.

The GOP assemblymen are evidently persuaded that Knowles will be tempted to use his constitutional powers to summon a special session, in which he could limit the business by enumeration.

Froehlich said that the GOP legislators will insist upon the consideration of pending gubernatorial vetoes by the lawmakers, including a veterans' benefit bill providing for revenue segregation which Knowles objected to earlier this year in spite of a heavy legislative vote of approval. If that issue gets to the floor, Knowles' veto is almost certain to be repudiated by the required two thirds vote.

Technical Doubt

Froehlich admitted that the technical point of the legislators' rights to vote on vetoes under a special session call by the governor are in doubt, and said that the state attorney general's office has been asked for counsel.

He repeated that "we don't want to come back," but that if the governor requires a new legislative session, the lawmakers will insist upon a broadening of the calendar of business.

The governor has been represented as saying that he wants his nominations approved by the state senate, but that he does not welcome the prospect of a legislative return for action on other matters.

Under the rules of the recess, the Republican majorities of the expiring 1969 legislature can back up their position by the exercise of their own legal powers.

Wouldn't Resist

Froehlich was unimpressed by the argument that Gov.-Elect Pat Lucey and other Democrats would not resist a special session call by Knowles to arrange for the conformation of pending Knowles appointees.

Hortonville Farmer, Ex-Sheriff Settle Suit

A rural Hortonville farmer and a former Outagamie County sheriff have settled with an undisclosed sum a libel suit stemming from an incident involving a car top sign over four years ago.

Attorney Edward R. Bollenbeck, representing former sheriff Donald Heinritz, 49, said Wednesday that he and Henry A. Hofacker, route 1, Hortonville, have settled the suit with the exchange of a "substantial" cash sum.

Heinritz, 1716 S. Jackson St., brought $100,000 suit against Hofacker and his son in Circuit Court here in May, 1967, and was awarded $40,000 in damages on Oct. 25, 1968.

Heinritz, who is now the Appleton parking meter superintendent, alleged that a sign placed atop a car by Henry Hofacker was instrumental in the loss of the September, 1966 primary election in which Heinritz was running for sheriff against former sheriff Norbert L. Marx.

The sign allegedly contained false, scandalous words used to defame Heinritz for the purpose of defeating him (Heinritz) as a candidate on the Republican party ticket in the general primary election.

William Hofacker, a student in Appleton at the time, owned the car on which the sign was displayed, according to the complaint filed by Heinritz.

Bollenbeck said both parties in the libel suit settlement did not want the cash figure made public. As part of the agreement, Hofacker was issued a "quit claim deed" which entitles him to property that was sold to Heinritz about 18 months ago in a sheriff's sale.

On Oct. 12, Circuit Court Judge Andrew W. Parnell issued a writ of assistance to Sheriff Calvin L. Spice empowering him to evict Hofacker from his property. The legal step was taken after other methods reportedly had failed to settle the matter. Spice never had to exercise the writ because of further discussions involving Heinritz, his attorney and Hofacker following the issuance of the writ.

Little Chute Police Reject Six Per Cent Pay Increase

LITTLE CHUTE — A six per cent pay increase for 1971 has been refused by members of the Little Chute Police Department.

In a letter to the village board, police officers refused the informal attempt on the part of the board to keep salary increases for full-time employees at a six per cent level. The letter did not indicate what police felt would be an adequate pay hike.

"We, the members of the police department, feel that the six per cent does not compensate for the large increase in the cost of living, nor in keeping with the other departments in the Valley," the letter stated.

The letter asks for further negotiations, and requests that if differences are not settled by Jan. 1, pay increases, when granted, be made retroactive to the first of the year. Board members took the letter under advisement.

McMahon Associates Inc., Menasha, village engineers, were authorized to check water pressure in lines near the United Grocers Co-op Corp., after a letter was received from that group indicating the present water pressure was below standard for adequate fire protection.

Defense Beginning Arguments in Trial Of Manson, Girls

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The defense in the Sharon Tate murder trial gets under way today with arguments for dismissal of charges against Charles Manson and three women co-defendants.

"These defendants think that the prosecution has failed to even raise suspicion of their guilt," says attorney Paul Fitzgerald, spokesman for the four-lawyer defense team. "They feel that the prosecution case is totally absurd and preposterous They laugh about it."

Under California law, dismissal is possible only if there is no "substantial evidence" of possible guilt.

The four attorneys called a late night strategy session Wednesday with the four defendants in a guarded courtroom on the 13th floor of the Hall of Justice.

"Manson is furious," said Fitzgerald. "He really feels that he's the only one who can adequately put on his defense."

Request Denied

Superior Court Judge Charles H. Older denied Manson's latest request Monday to take over as his own attorney. Fitzgerald argued then in Manson's behalf, saying that many witnesses from Manson's hippie-type clan would not testify unless they had his "blessing."

Identity of the first defense witness has been kept secret.

Fitzgerald said none of the four attorneys planned to make an opening statement.

"You tip your hand to the prosecution if you make an opening statement," he said. "You allow them, with their massive police investigatory sources, to get to your witnesses."

One part of the defense plan is to try to introduce a confession by someone other than the four defendants.

Motives of Others

"I'd rather not mention specific names," said a defense attorney, "but we will attempt to show that others had motives to kill the victims."

The trial is in its 23rd week. The state rested its case Monday.

Manson, 36, and the three women followers are charged with murder-conspiracy in the slayings of the blonde actress and six others. The women co-defendants are Susan Atkins, 22, Patricia Krenwinkel, 22, and Leslie Van Houten, 20.

Attorneys say the life styles of the victims will be probed as the defense seeks to prove motives of other possible killers.

Scheduled witnesses include Mama Cass Elliot and John Phillips, former members of the Mamas and the Papas singing group.

Fitzgerald said the defense had failed to line up John Lennon or any other member of the Beatles to testify about the alleged influence of their songs on Manson. But he added, "We're still hoping they may decide to testify."

Fitzgerald said the defense would attack the state contention that Manson killed in the hope of starting a black-white revolution.

"Essentially, our point is that he was a prophet of revolution. He saw it coming. He wanted to hide from it, not start it," said Fitzgerald

Manson is scheduled as the final witness and is expected to be the only defendant to testify.

Welfare Recipients Speak Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — Welfare recipients got a chance to tell Congress their ideas on new welfare reform proposals and launched into a personal attack on several senators, as well as President Nixon and his dogs.

One woman claimed Wednesday President Nixon spends $2,700 yearly to feed and house his three dogs while the administration proposes $1,100 less as subsistence income for a family of four.

"I want to know who thought up $1,600 a year when Tricky Dick's dogs cost $2,700 a year," Roxanne Jones of Philadelphia asked a special Senate hearing on the administration's welfare reform package.

The White House said that the cost of feeding Nixon's dogs is absorbed in the President's personal budget.

The hearing presided over by Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., was marked by frequent bursts of applause, shows of clenched fists and shouts of "Right on!"

Democratic Sens. Abraham A. Ribicoff of Connecticut, James O Eastland of Mississippi and Russell B. Long of Louisiana all came under attack after a University of Pennsylvania professor of welfare law, said the administration's plan included a work incentive feature that would provide a pool of labor for "sweatshops"—laundries and toy manufacturers

The professor, Edward V Sparer, also said the bill would reduce the income of families on welfare.

Long was criticized for allegedly complaining he had difficulty getting a shirt cleaned

Mrs Beulah Sanders, first vice chairman of the National Welfare Rights Organization said she didn't like the idea of laundering the senator's shirt for menial wages.

Clean Streets

If he can't get a shirt cleaned, she said, "he's got a wife at home that can do the job"

Ribicoff was attacked for suggesting to Mayor John V. Lindsay that New York use welfare recipients to clean up the city's streets.

"I would be the first welfare recipient to volunteer to clean up New York's streets if Ribicoff's mother and wife were beside me," she said to wild applause.

Another witness said the nation was confused if Eastland can be paid $220,000 a year not to plant crops while welfare recipients make ends meet with government funds.

Administration Proposal

Mrs Johnny Tillmon, executive director of the WWRO attacked Congress as she argued for defeat of the administration proposal.

"The people put you there and they can remove you if you don't do your job," she said. "We know it's popular to say that welfare recipients bit the hand that feeds them

"The point is," she said, "we know that if you don't have enough in that hand we bite it off."

McCarthy, in a prepared statement, said "the floor contained in the administration bill, $1,600 for a family of four, is not enough for subsistence, let alone an adequate standard of living"

Court Eyes Suit Charging Conspiracy In Delaying Auto Antismog Devices

WASHINGTON (AP) — A decision appears imminent on a drive by 17 states to have the Supreme Court consider their suit charging the major auto manufacturers with conspiring to delay the development of antismog devices.

The states want the court to order General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors to equip all their cars built since 1953 with devices that would cut down the 67.3 million tons of carbon monoxide released annually from auto exhausts.

That would mean going to work on an estimated 85 to 100 million used cars. Even if the court agrees to consider the matter, such an order is a long way off, however. First the 17 states, headed by Washington, must persuade the justices the Supreme Court is the only suitable forum to settle the suit swiftly.

Then the states would have to win their argument that the four manufacturers are guilty of conspiracy in violation of the Sherman antitrust Act.

Seemed Hopeful

Frederic C. Tausend, a special assistant attorney general for Washington state, seemed hopeful in a telephone interview that the court would at least consider the suit.

He and other states' attorneys are invoking the constitutional provision that gives the court original jurisdiction over disputes between a state and citizens of another state.

If the states are turned down, Tausend said, they will consider filing the same kind of joint suit in a federal district court.

Attorneys for GM, Chrysler, Ford, American Motors and a fifth defendant, the Automobile Manufacturers Association, argue the Supreme Court is the wrong place for the kind of complex trial that would be required.

The states say, however, a final decision could take 10 years to reach if suits had to make their way up through several federal courts.

17 Suits

Though this suit does not seek damages, 17 damage suits have been filed in courts across the country by parties ranging from the states of New York and Minnesota to an apricot farmer in California. Last September, federal judge Manuel L. Real of Los Angeles agreed to hold a hearing on the possibility of combining these suits.

The states filed their motion for Supreme Court consideration August 5. The defendants replied October 3. The court could issue its decision on whether to hold a hearing next Monday, just before beginning a two-week recess. Otherwise, action in December is likely.

Consent Decree

In the closing days of the Johnson administration the Justice Department charged the four auto makers and their association with conspiracy.

The government, however, dropped the case under the Nixon administration but a consent decree restrained the defendants from any future conspiracy without pressing for a judgment on any past violations and without the auto makers admitting any guilt.

This did not prevent the states or individuals from pushing ahead with their own lawsuits. The complaint to the Supreme Court was signed by Washington, Illinois, Arizona, Colorado, Hawaii, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio, Rhode Island, Vermont, Virginia, North Dakota and West Virginia.

2 Milwaukee Couples Die in Plane Crash

WESTON (AP) — Two Milwaukee area couples were killed Wednesday when their small airplane crashed into a thickly wooded Marathan County area five miles sout,heast of Wausau.

Dr. Jerome Pizer, 46, and his wife Irene, 46, of South Milwaukee, and Dr. Robert A. Rufflo, 40, and his wife Beatrice, 42, of Milwaukee were identified as the victims.

Part of the wreckage was jammed into the ground, and bodies of the victims had to be pulled from the inside of the craft.

"It seemed as if the plane was running out of gas. I could hardly hear its engines," Michael Zinser of Weston told authorities.

The plane was a four-passenger 180 Piper Comanche owned by several Milwaukee area residents, a spokesman said.

Cab Driver Admits Attack on Comedian

NEW YORK (AP) — A cab driver has pleaded guilty to attempted assault on Godfrey Cambridge during an incident arising from refusal to accept the Negro comedian as a fare

Cambridge said he clung to the cab as the driver started up and was dragged 10 blocks

Quality Fading

Cotton Rotting as Rain Halts Harvest

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Way down South the land of cotton is now a land of mud, mire and frustration for farmers

Throughout the large mid-South cotton belt along the Mississippi River, rains this fall have prevented harvesting.

Cotton stands in the fields losing quality day by day as farmers, unable to urge their giant picking machines through the soaked fields, lose money.

The loss in quality will cost farmers between $5 a bale in North Louisiana and $10 a bale in some parts of West Tennessee, depending on the degree of deterioration.

"I think some of these farmers are getting a little desperate," said Eugene R McInnis head of the Little Rock, Ark., cotton classing office of the Department of Agriculture.

Still Trying

"The fields are still pretty wet, but they're going out there and getting it anyway. The machines sink into the mud, but the farmers are still trying," he said.

Only a little more than half of this year's crop has been picked in the Mississippi Delta area, according to Dick Slay of the Greenwood, Miss., cotton office.

Slay said that at this time last year the harvesting was nearly finished.

Emergency Program

Hardest hit may be West Tennessee farmers who also face poor soybean crops because of the rain Many of them lost much of their crops in early season flooding.

"We had an emergency program in the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service to help out a few, but that is not going to pay off any notes—that was for damages due to the heavy rains and floods in June." said James Reasons of Dyersburg, Tenn., a farmer.

Reasons, who farms 140 acres, said, "There is nothing we can do until the sun shines."

Joe Martin, Dyer County, Tenn., farm agent, said that area farmers "are facing one of the most serious crop years we have seen in many years."

The farmers will probably keep trying until Christmas, Martin said, to harvest at least enough to pay their fertilizer bills.

Spiro's Liver May Be GOP Sacrifice

By Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — Al Capp, who has become the sex symbol of the Daughters of the American Revolution, was in Washington last week as master of ceremonies at a $150-a-plate dinner given by the Republicans in honor of Vice President Spiro Agnew.

Mr. Capp was kind enough to mention me in his opening remarks. He said, "The people who should be here tonight say 'Thank you, Mr. Vice President' are Art Buchwald, Herblock and Mary McGrory. . .The vice president helps them keep their jobs. Never have so many columnists owed so much to one person, and never have so many showed so little decency to a man they owe so much."

Now, first of all, I would like to say that I would have loved to have attended the dinner for the vice president, but I couldn't. I didn't have $150.

Secondly, Mr. Capp should not have interpreted my absence at the dinner as a lack of gratitude toward the vice president. I am well aware of the debt we all owe him for making Washington another Disneyland.

How Many More

The subject I would like to address myself to is not whether Miss McGrory, Mr. Block or myself should or should not have attended the Republican dinner (it turns out Miss McGrory did), but a much larger question that concerns all American citizens, and that is: How many more fund-raising dinners can the vice president of the United States stand?

It is no secret that, through no fault of his own, Spiro has been condemned by the Republican Party and the Nixon Administration to the fundraising banquet circuit for his entire term in office.

Despite what Mr. Agnew thinks of the cartoonists, columnists and pundits, I can testify to the fact that he has only their sympathy and understanding. Only a sadist would not be moved by someone who was doomed for four years to eat all his meals in a Sheraton or a Hilton hote.

Just Agnew

No cartoonist would do it. No columnist would do it. No vice president of the United States would do it, except Mr. Agnew.

So far, the vice president has shown he has a stomach for it. But medical science has proved that no human being, no matter how strong willed, can survive on chicken cacciatore for four years.

The question the American people have to decide is, do we want a vice president with a bad liver?

The men responsible for sending Mr. Agnew out day after day and night after night have shown little concern for his welfare. The White House staff refer to Mr. Agnew as "the man who came to dinner."

A Little Heart Burn

They are not worried about him getting indigestion. As one White House staffer put it not long ago, "What's a little heartburn if you can win Mississippi?"

To prove that we are not the heartless people Mr. Capp says we are, Miss McGrory, Mr. Block and I have formed an "Ad Hoc Committee to Save the Vice President's Liver." If need be, we will take it to the courts and prove that sentencing a man to the fund-raising banquet circuit for four years is not only unconstitutional but cruel and unusual punishment.

Surely, in this great country of ours, with so much opportunity and wealth, there is something the Nixon Administration can find for the vice president of the United States to do other than force-feed him at the Biloxi Hilton Hotel.

Cleft Lip Should Get Care Early in Infancy

BY G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have searched for information about a "hair lip" and can find nothing. I am sure there is a scientific term for it which I don't know.

I would appreciate a discussion of cause, effects, etc. I have been told that surgery is completely successful. Statistically how often does it happen and is it hereditary? — Mrs. A. W.

It's hare lip, not "hair," which may have caused you some trouble. The more technical term for it is cleft lip, and there is a companion defect that often goes along with it, cleft palate.

The fetus, or baby-to-be, is formed in part from separate sections which subsequently fuse together. This is true of the skull, for example, with four separate bones which fuse and join into a solid bone structure.

Well, tissues of the mouth join together in similar fashion.

If this joining does not occur in the lip, there may be one cleft or two. Some cases may involve only the lip. Some extend up as far as the nose.

The companion fault, cleft palate, is a similar gap or lack of fusion of the roof of the mouth.

Either fault, but especially the latter, can be serious for the baby. With a cleft palate, when he tries to take food, some of it can get up into the nasal passages and cause him all sorts of trouble. A cleft lip can make it difficult for him to eat, the difficulty depending on the size of the fault or cleft.

When he is old enough to talk, or start learning to talk, the cleft palate and harelip interfere very seriously. Indeed, with such defects, a person cannot speak entirely normally.

Appearance also is impaired.

Thus there is every reason to repair such defects as early in life as possible. While the correction can be made later on, and successfully, the final results will not be as good as when the correction is made in infancy — before the second year, and sometimes earlier than that, for cleft palate; at three months or sooner for harelip.

Techniques have been worked out also for using plastic to close the cleft palate, then making the permanent repair with a second operation later on, with the idea of letting growth proceed as normally as possible instead of fusing the cleft solidly to begin with. The decision depends on the individual case.

Whichever course, the answer is yes, surgery is successful. Usually a scar remains, but often not very noticeable. In palate repair, a plastic surgeon and orthodontist may work together.

Without exact figures being available, it is thought that about a thousand babies a year in the U. S. are born with this type of defect.

It can be hereditary, but not necessarily so. A mother may have an infection (German measles is a ready example) during pregnancy, and a defect results.

15 U.S. Marines Killed In Crash of Helicopter

SAIGON (AP) — A U S Marine helicopter returning to Da Nang with a crippled patrol crashed into a mountain side in the fog Wednesday, killing all 15 Marines aboard.

It was the worst crash in Vietnam since Aug. 26, when a big CH47 Chinook helicopter was shot down southeast of Da Nang and 31 U.S. Army men were killed.

Among the dead in Wednesday's crash was Lt. Col. William G. Leftwich Jr., 39, Memphis, Tenn., Tennessee's Man of the Year in 1965.

The helicopter, a medium-size CH46, crashed in the Que Son range about 22 miles southwest of Da Nang.

The U S. Command said the cause of the crash was unknown, but other sources said fog and poor visibility apparently were responsible

Wreckage Found

The wreckage was found on the side of the mountain and all of the bodies were recovered today by a Marine ground team landed by helicopters.

The ill-fated CH46 had lifted out a small Marine patrol from the Que Son mountains and was returning to the unit's base in Da Nang when it got lost in the clouds, field reports said. Another helicopter following it could not spot the craft and lost radio contact.

"The patrol in the Que Son mountains got into trouble" said one officer. "One man broke his leg and two more came down with fever. They called back and asked for a helicopter to lift them out."

Leftwich decided to pull out the entire patrol. Informed sources said he had always gone in after his men when there was an emergency, and he was the first aboard the 45-foot-long CH46 that was assigned to lift out the team.

On Second Tour

Leftwich was serving his second tour in Vietnam. He was an adviser to South Vietnamese Marines from February 1965 until February 1966. His battalion was in the thick of the fighting during a major battle at Duc Co in the fall of 1965, and Gen. William C. Westmoreland, then commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, called him the best adviser in Vietnam.

Leftwich returned to Vietnam for a second tour last February after serving in Washington as an aide to Undersecretary of the Navy John Winter.

On the battlefronts, 1,000 South Vietnamese troops opened a new drive into eastern Cambodia today, the third this week aimed at heading off North Vietnamese offensives into South Vietnam.

Climbers Look For New Peaks To Conquer

flat rock-bound valley until well after dark.

"They're having a hell of a party," a ranger reported to officials below.

Caldwell joked about their lack of soap and water for nearly a month.

"He keeps saying he smells like a decaying rhinoceros. I think I probably smell like a beached whale," Caldwell quipped.

One anxious moment was when helicopters carrying cameramen hovered only about 50 feet off the wall where the men were climbing Tuesday.

"Baby, they got close," Caldwell exclaimed.

Waiting with the food and champagne were Beryl Knauth, 25, of Ventura, Calif., Harding's long-time girl friend, and Penny Pitman, 22, a Yosemite Valley cocktail waitress who has been dating Caldwell.

Standby Team

Also on top was a five-man standby team of crack valley climbers left over from an aborted rescue attempt, called off last Friday when Caldwell shouted to the ground that "like hell" would he leave the rock except under his own power.

Down below as the climb ended was anxious Agnes Harding, who celebrated her 79th birthday while her son battled to finish the ascent.

"He's still my little boy," said Mrs. Harding. "This is the longest he's ever been gone."

Both men agreed on the worst part of the climb: the rainstorm that soaked them into their hammock-like tents suspended from the sheer wall for nearly a week.

Food Shortage

The climbers closed strong despite a shortage of food. They had been on the barest emergency rations for almost a week and ate the last—half a can of sardines—on Tuesday.

"Are you hungry?" Harding was asked.

"Yeah, but not bad," he said.

Caldwell, a teacher and photographer, said they entertained themselves by dreaming about what foods they could eat when they reached the top.

They constantly had to reration their 12-day food supply as they met delay after delay in the rainstorms and extremely difficult climbing.

"It seemed like we felt stronger when we cut down on the food," Caldwell commented.

Saved by Ropes

Both men took falls during the climb but were saved by their ropes. Caldwell escaped injury but Harding suffered scrapes and bruises.

Harding and Caldwell had hoped to reach the summit late Tuesday, but ran into more difficult climbing than expected on the overhanging rock near the top.

They slept 40 feet from the crest Tuesday night while newsmen and fellow climbers turned the vast El Capitan summit into a campground.

When they had returned to the valley, Harding acknowledged that, overwhelmed with weariness and emotion when he reached the summit. "I broke down and cried."

Gen. Walt's Education

'A New Kind of War' Discovered in Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marine Corps Gen. Lewis W. Walt says the Vietnam War was a "new brand of war" that he and other American officers didn't recognize as such.

"When I got out there. I didn't understand this war," Walt told newsmen at a Pentagon briefing.

The four-star general, who retires from the Marine Corps in February, is now assistant commandant.

He said there were many American leaders who were overly optimistic about the war because they did not consider guerrillas in the right light. They were thinking, he said, of Korea and World War II conflicts and didn't understand "you just can't go in and wipe out" guerrillas.

Catching On

But since Walt's two-year tour in Vietnam, the approach has changed, and a recent visit showed him the guerrillas were "pretty well in hand," he said.

"It took awhile to catch on, to learn how to fight that war," Walt said.

When he was new to the country, he spent an hour one day talking with a village official and when the discussion ended he felt good about the situation, he related.

But as he concluded the conversation, a woman slipped him a note which said the man who gave the cheering report was the No. 1 Viet Cong in the settlement.

It was an illustration of "how naive I was," the general said.

It took him six months to learn what the war was all about after he arrived in Vietnam in 1965. Even then, he said, he had to go out and find out for himself in the hamlets and towns.

Looking over the current situation, Walt declared "things are going exceptionally well—much better than a year ago."

Guerrilla capacity now is less than 10 per cent of what it was five years ago, he said.

The biggest improvement in the overall situation was in the local military forces, where the men now are "really getting out and fighting the enemy—and they are successful."

White House Silent

Cabinet Shuffling Forecast

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times reported today that President Nixon plans a major reshuffling of his Cabinet by the time the second half of his term begins in January.

Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel, Secretary of the Treasury David M. Kennedy and Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin are expected to leave, the newspaper said.

All have figured in frequent speculation on cabinet reshuffling, but the White House said this week no decision has been reached on ay change.

Asked Monday about periodic published reports, press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said there are always rumors of that sort from time to time. But he said there were no resignations on Nixon's desk.

To a newsman's question whether changes could be expected in the next two or three weeks, Ziegler replied that he didn't anticipate any.

The Times said changes are due by January.

According to the report, Kennedy and Hardin are ready to depart amicably in favor of new faces. But it said Hickel, who criticized the administration's attitude toward young people, might not be willing to leave without protest.

Gabriel Hauge, president of Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co., was mentioned as a likely possibility for the Treasury post. The Republican national chairman, Rep. Rogers C. B. Morton of Maryland, was said to be interested in succeeding Hickel.

The Times story also said the White House staff would take on a new look with the likely departures of presidential counselors Daniel P. Moynihan and Bryce Harlow and a change in jobs for John D. Ehrlichman, now a Nixon assistant.

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, who has been rumored to be leaving to prepare Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign, would not do so for another year if at all, the Times account said.

Orders by Union Complicate Strike

NEW LEAD A2 236 ORDERS BY

DETROIT (AP) — Workers at one General Motors plant began reporting back to their jobs today for the first time in more than nine weeks, but top-level orders from the United Auto Workers blocked a back-to-work movement at a second plant.

GM was struck nationwide at midnight Sept. 14 to support new contract demands of the UAW and 394,000 were idled. A new national contract has been negotiated, but local unions will not complete ratification votes until Friday.

Thus far, however, 66 of 155 separate GM-UAW bargaining units have approved the new contract, which lifts wages more than $1 an hour over its three-year span. Only one small unit has rejected it.

GM posted call-back notices Wednesday for 3,000 hourly rated workers at a Fisher Body plant in Kalamazoo, Mich., and for 2,500 at a Fisher plant at Grand Blanc, Mich., outside Flint.

National Pact

Workers at both plants have approved the new national pact and their at the plant working agreements that supplement it.

But local union officials at Grand Blanc said they had orders from international union headquarters in Detroit to stay out until it was "absolutely certain" of new contract approval and it had top-level union authority to return.

Jack Kelly, president of the Kalamazoo Fisher local, said skilled tradesmen began reporting back there today and that production workers had been advised to return Friday.

Kelly said he had no delay orders from the international. There was no explanation from Detroit headquarters why one return was vetoed and another not.

There were 12 reports of national contract ratification over-night, including that of the 18,000-member local of the Pontiac Motors division at Pontiac, Mich. The vote there was 2,424 for and 491 against.

The first rejection of the pact by a bargaining unit, however, was also recorded Wednesday when members of the Technical Center engineering staff in Warren, Mich., voted 44 to 27 not to ratify.

Hope Rises

With news of the callback Wednesday, hopes rose that GM might be able to get back into full production by its target date of Dec. 1.

Leonard Woodcock, UAW president, said he was "confident" the pact would be ratified, but added that other problems, such as the number of local agreements still outstanding, might mean that a return to full productions is still "quite awhile" away.

Of the 155 GM bargaining units 50 are without local settlements, which supplement the national contract. Those include two of the 54 plants GM has designated as vital to full operations.

From Peter Max to Pierre Balmain, Playboy Presents Creative Menswear

Couture designers around the world are looking increasingly to the streets for exciting viable fashion inspiration That was the message of this year's Creative Menswear International Designer Collection annually assembled by Playboy Magazine

An international audience of fashion, social, business and entertainment celebrities paid $100 per person to watch the show before dining and dancing into the early morning hours Oct 20 at the Plaza Hotel in New York

Now Playboy Magazine has released photographs of some of the costumes in the collection designed by 50 of the world's top fashion names Introducing it was Robert L Green, fashion director of Playboy and executive producer of the collection

'Fashion is Art'

"In today's world, fashion is art, and this collection may be viewed as the most comprehensive exhibition of menswear creativity today," he told showgoers And to prove it, creations by such diverse talents as American pop poster king, Peter Max, and France's grand old man of haute couture, Pierre Balmain, began making their way down the ramp

For the first time the collection included a costume from an Iron Curtain country – a three-piece walking suit from Czechoslovakia There was a first menswear design from Michel Goma of Patou in Paris and from Betsey Johnson of Betsey, Bunky and Nini in New York

With the addition of an embroidered white cotton resort formal shirt and pants from Xavier de la Torre of Mexico and a double-knit safari suit from Australian Michael Treloar, the range and scope of the collection became evident Also evident was the continuing liberation of the well dressed man, as long coats and high boots battle jacket suits, brilliant patterns and colors leather fur, satin and knits crossed the stage

International Cost

Designers representing the United States were Bill Blass, Franklin Bober, Stephen Burrows, Oleg Cassini, Oscar de la Renta, Peter Dimitri, Luis Estevez, Tom Fallon, Miss Johnson, Larry Kane, Nancy Knox, Kenneth J Lane, Max, Roland Meledandri, Bill Miller, Getty Miller, Jackie Rogers, Alexander Shields, Robert Weil, Chester Wineberg, John Weitz and Ralph Lauren

From France came Balmain, Marc Bohan of Christian Dior, Pierre Cardin, Antonio Cerruti, Louis Feraud, Gilbert Feruch, Hubert de Givenchy, Goma, Bernard Lanvin, Ted Lapidus, Fouquet Yves St Laurent, Pacco Rabanne and Phillipe Venet, from Italy, Massimo Datti, Angelo Litrico, Carl Palazzi, Bruno Piatelli, Testa and Valentino, from England, Hardy Amies Tom Gilbey, Peter Golding, Patrick Lichfield, Rupert Lycett-Green of Blades and Thomas Nutter, from Spain, Elio Berhanyer and Rovira, from Australia, Treloar and David Scheinberg, from Sweden, Sighsten Herrgard, and from Mexico, de la Torre.

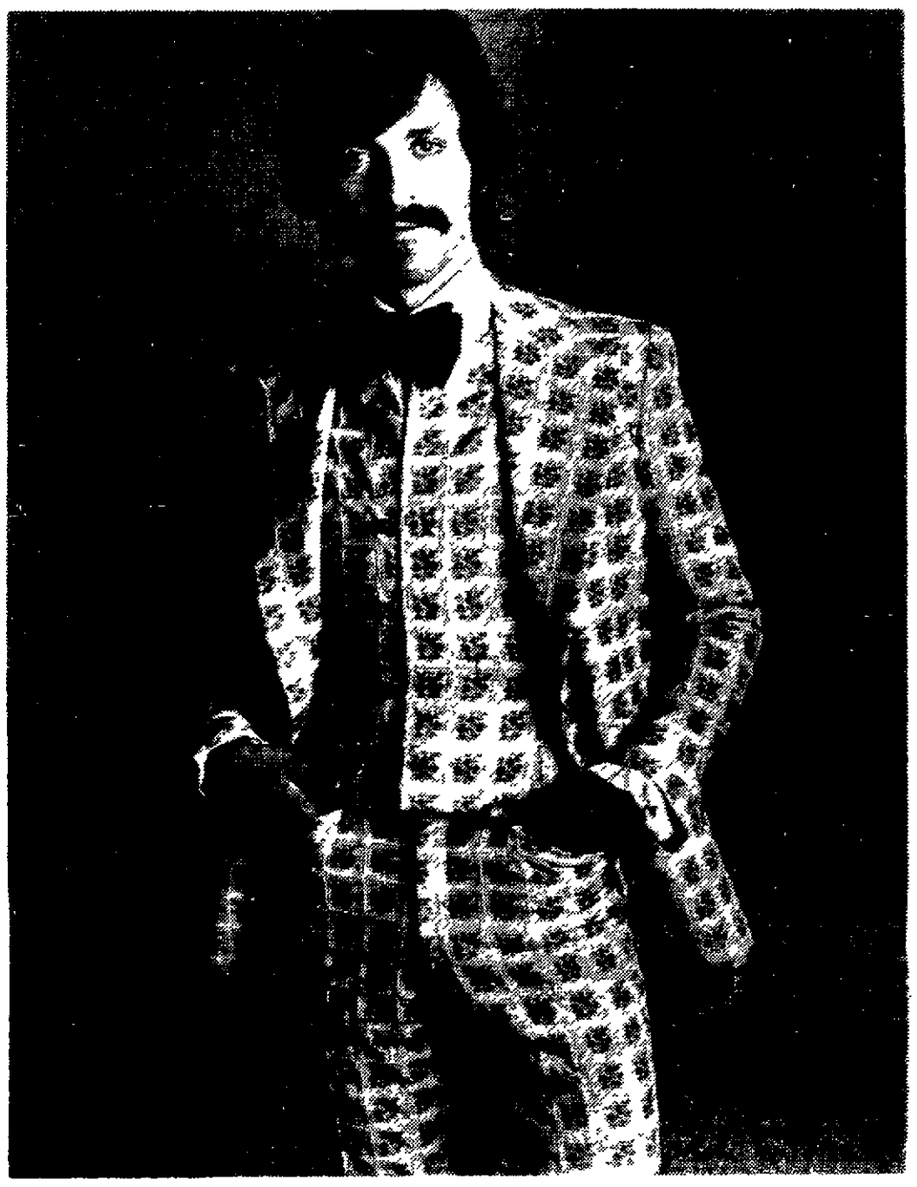
Menswear to Benefit

Proceeds from the New York showing will go to a menswear development fund at New York's Fashion Institute of Technology Six other cities will benefit from the collection when it begins its cross-country tour under Green's direction

Thirteen years in the fashion show business, Green appears frequently on national and syndicated television and radio interview shows as an authority on men's fashion He is a Knight in the Order of Merit awarded by the Italian government for efforts in improving U. S. commerce in fashion with Italy, and is chairman of the Menswear Development Program at New York's Fashion Institute of Technology.

The Hand of Superman can be seen above in Betsey Johnson's first attempt at menswear The American designer puts the skinniest floor-length black corduroy coat with tiny notch collar and tight puffed sleeves over a black and white skinny sweater boasting animal crackers and pants buttoned down the legs for the tightest of fit.

The Conservative side of the Creative Menswear International Designer Collection comes through in the two designs above. At left, is the collection's first costume from behind the Iron Curtain. Designed by Cen-Tro-Tex of Czechoslovakia, the all-wool, three-piece walking suit reflects the Western sense of fashion. At right, U S. designer Bill Blass converts his signature blazer into a rust wool overcoat with matching giant scarf. Underneath is a gray turtleneck sweater worn with darker gray slacks slacks.



U. S. Designer-Retailer Roland Meledandri paints the town pink and green on beige, the colors of his three-piece dinner suit above. Not shown is the jet brown velvet, single-breasted outercoat he created to go with the formal of brocaded tapestry fabric.

For The Great outdoors, a shetland sweater knit is tailored like tweed by Marc Bohan for Christian Dior. The French couturier fashions the cobalt blue knit into low-slung pants, sweater and double-breasted cropped jacket.

Move to Suburbs Brings Another Set of Problems

Being a "bad" parent may not be such a bad idea.

Many young couples decide it will benefit the family to move to the suburbs, thereby escaping city noise, air pollution and the crime rate.

However, the move does bring its own passel of problems, and they are being felt by more people. This is evident from the 1970 Census figures, which reveal that suburbanites now outnumber those living in central cities.

One problem is that the uprooted parent may become a victim of "participantitis," a disease that strikes the healthy, energetic and the conscientious. In women, it takes the form of den mother or scout leader who spends appreciable time serving cocoa to the school patrols, monitoring cake sales for a new uniform fund or taking 25 teenagers on a camping weekend

Father's Clubs

In men, it strikes the father's club leader, the home organization volunteer who finds himself at the mayor's office four nights a week trying to get a law passed for neighborhood street lights, or the man who once said his station wagon could seat 12 youngsters

Believe it or not, all those good deeds can affect the family, warns the Health Insurance Institute.

Often a woman who gets overly involved in school or social activities for her children's sake becomes so harried that she finds it impossible to be a patient listener to her own youngster's problems. Her extra hours away from home may also affect her relationship with her husband

And a man who is so occupied with meetings every night concerning the fund-raising activities of a boy's club may not have the time to talk to his own sons

Your Problems

Time Marches on Waiting for No One

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS A friend of mine returned from a three-week vacation She looked wonderfully well rested in fact, downright youthful I jokingly asked if she had her face lifted Her answer stunned me "Yes," she replied "I had my face lifted and that's not all I had everything lifted."

I had never heard of the surgery she described and would like to know if you've ever heard of it and if it is safe. It seems she had her breasts raised, the inside flabby part of her upper arms "tightened up surgically" and the fat portions of her thighs slit and "narrowed down" The four operations, including the face-lift, were done within a week. The stitches were removed after five days

The woman looks thinner and younger and she's thrilled with the results. She wasn't exactly fat but she did sag where most women sag when they hit middle age I must admit she doesn't look a day over 45. Her actual age is 56 I am dying to hear what you have to say Is this type of surgery d a n g e r o u s ? Is it expensive? Can anything go wrong? How long will the results last? Would you recommend it? — Toying With an Idea

Dear Toy: Your last questions first. I am in no position to recommend surgery of any kind since I am not a physician. Can anything go wrong? Yes. No surgical procedure is 100 per cent safe. The removal of a sliver can result in complications. Is it expensive? It depends on the surgeon and the relative financial status of the individual involved. To a millionaire, $5,000 is chicken feed. To a stenographer it can be a fortune. How long will the results last? It depends on the person. Some women are blessed with skin that holds up well. (Staying away from booze and out of the sun can be helpful.) At this point I would like to disabuse you of the notion that plastic surgery will delay the aging process. It will not. Time marches on and it waits for no man — or woman.

My advice to anyone considering cosmetic surgery is to make an appointment with a reputable plastic surgeon (one whose work you have seen, if possible.) Learn as much as you can about the procedure. Then decide, with the doctor's guidance, whether or not it makes sense for you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Thank you for saying, "Not everyone belongs in college" Too many parents have the idea that vocational education is okay for somebody else's children, but they want their kids in college a prestigious one, if possible. It is this kind of thinking that has produced serious problems in filling positions of a highly skilled nature. Eighty-five per cent of the jobs available today do not require a college degree. In most cities, public school systems are equipped with the necessary resources to train students for vocational training, but they have trouble getting the students to enroll in such courses as the building trades, graphic arts, and service trades such as barbering, c o s m e t o l o g y , auto mechanics, etc.

If more people such as you, Ann, who are in a position to influence the public, would stress the importance of vocational education and the dignity of work, it would help to straighten out the thinking of some very mixed up folks. — J.F.S. Dade County

Dear J.F.S.: "The dignity of work." A beautiful phrase — one that has the ring of days gone by. Thanks for reminding us. Are you listening, students?

How will you know when the real thing comes along? Ask Ann Landers. Send for her booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

. . . when your choice is no choice at all.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

World Champions

by IRA G. CORN JR. TEAM CAPTAIN

The play at no-trump game contracts presents a recurring problem whenever the opponents have established a suit.

Usually an immediate search for nine tricks is conducted, and the risk of allowing the opponents to gain the lead is avoided However, sometimes the evidence points to an alternate solution

Witness today's deal, played recently "in accordance with the evidence," which demonstrates this point:

East-West vulnerable
Dealer North

NORTH 11-19
♠ K Q 7 6
♥ J 8
♦ K 10 3 2
♣ J 9 4

WEST
♠ 10 3
♥ Q 9 7 6 3 2
♦ J 8 6

EAST
♠ J 9 5 4
♥ A 4
♦ 9 5 4

SOUTH
♦ A Q 7
♣ Q 10 8 7

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	1 ♣	1 NT	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Six of hearts.

South's overall call of one notrump describes a hand that meets the requirements of an opening bid of one notrump In addition, the one no-trump overcall promises one or more stoppers in the bid suit

North-South were playing a 15 17 point range for one no-trump bids However, even if playing a 16-18 point range, the club holding and good intermediates justify the bid with only 15 points North raised directly to the no-trump game

West's opening lead of the heart six was won by East's ace, and the heart four was returned South finessed and West won the queen A third heart cleared the suit.

At some tables declarer was afraid to risk losing the lead to West Therefore, an attempt was made to score eight tricks in the spade and diamond suits.

An even division of spades and either an even division of diamonds or the fall of the diamond jack would provide the needed eight tricks without losing the lead. Diamonds behaved well, but spades did not Therefore, declarers who chose this course lost the contract. The defense took two hearts, two clubs and one spade.

When the hand was played by Charles McClerkin of Harrisburg, Pa., he found no reason to stake all on the unlikely favorable distribution of spades and diamonds. Charley reasoned that East had both the ace and king of clubs to justify his opening bid. If so, West's hearts were not a threat after all.

Therefore, Charley safely led clubs to establish two club tricks to add to his three top diamonds. The defense was limited to two heart tricks and two club tricks, and Charley made his contract.

Charley took the time for a little extra thought, correlated the bidding with the problems of play, and came up with the winning answer.

Keeping Up With Captain Marvel

BY ERMA BOMBECK

Like many wives I have a horror of not growing "professionally" with my husband.

I have a recurring dream where he is feting a roomful of associates at a dinner party in celebration of his rise to the top of the organization and I am in the utility room popping bubble gum, reading Captain Marvel comic books and asking what year it is.

My feelings of inadequacy are not without some grounds. Oh I don't mean to intimate I laugh with my mouth full of cottage cheese. It's just that there is so much news in the world today, I find it impossible to keep abreast of all of it.

"Why don't you come right out and say it," I accosted my husband. "I am a source of embarrassment to you at social functions."

"That's not true," he said softly.

"You were angry at me when Ted and Jeff were talking about eliminating the two party system the other night."

"I only wished you hadn't interrupted with, 'Good Lord, take away the one on New Year's Eve and I'll have no reason to get my cocktail dress cleaned.' Here," he said. "I bought you a new Captain Marvel."

Somehow I couldn't concentrate on Captain Marvel. I remembered an ad I had read recently in the National Observer. It showed a woman at a party surrounded by men and she wasn't even playing the piano. All she was doing was carrying on brilliant conversation which she had picked up reading the National Observer. All I had to do was bone up on some provocative topics before the next party.

"Did you notice all the men clustered about me?" I boasted to my husband on the way home last week from a gathering.

"You certainly had them mesmerized with your story about hog processing coming to a halt in Chicago last year."

"And wasn't it curious no one had read the National Observer story about the garbage problem being solved by sending it parcel post to friends in the country? Let's see. I told them about the ban on long-haired tourists in Vietnam, the cobra found by the St. Louis zoo, the beetles in Alaska being equipped with anti-freeze and a quote by Will Rogers on Calvin Coolidge."

"You sure were a regular Eric Sevareid in a Martha Mitchell body," he sighed.

"Gosh, I didn't even get a chance to tell them about the monster rats that organized in the sewers and planned to take over Patterson, New Jersey."

"You read that in the National Observer?" he asked.

"No, Captain Marvel."

Good Book Available On Tools

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q My husband would like to make repairs around the house, using tools But our library does not have any books on carpentry, various types of joints, how to use different tools and things like that Can you name a good book for us? — Brown Deer, Wis

A "Carpentry in the Home Workshop," by Clarence Herisko, published by Macmillan, New York. Price (I think) is $1.95 Excellent, clearly written and diagrammed.

Q I built a wooden deck three years ago, and stained it Now I would like to paint it dark green, using good deck enamel But I am worried about this deck becoming slippery when wet Any comments? — Columbus.

A Indeed possible that a couple of coats may make the wood more slippery when it rains However, you can add some home-made non-skidding by stirring generous amounts of clean sand into the paint. Keep stirring, so it won't all sink to the bottom. Really will do a good job

Our good friend from Sault Ste Marie, Mrs Ellis Papineau, writes "I read in your column about someone wanting to remove odor from a commode Have them try Lysol spray This has certainly aided others If they have a cover on the commode, keep it closed for some time and then spray it again if needed I hope this helps"

A very welcome suggestion, ma'am, and many thanks.

Q Am planning to finish part of attic space to make a bedroom At present, the entire floor is over a thick layer of loose insulation between the beams Is more insulation needed, such as under the roof as well? — Milwaukee.

A Sure is, friend, unless the tenant will be an Eskimo. Best to use the type insulation which has at least one surface covered with aluminum foil. Then you will automatically have a vapor barrier as well Many how-to books include detailed instructions for this job.

Inside Look at Communal Life Shows How Money Handled

Today's commune of long-haired young families may appear different from its ancestor, Brook Farm, which in the 1840s was the counterpart for writers and craftsmen outside of Boston.

However, things have been handled much the same by both group experiments in at least one area — finances — reports the Institute of Life Insurance.

The 19th century arrangement focuses on self-provision by farming, with any profits going into a common fund. Today's version, whether in a city or rural area, follows nearly the same pattern.

Communal living has been on the increase since 1960. In the past decade, many politically-oriented groups, opposed to the Vietnam War, have organized and called themselves collectives. Sometimes they take the form of a co-op student house in college towns like Cambridge, Mass. or Berkeley, Calif. Or groups of older persons, over 25, may follow the Brook Farm mode that fosters a return to the soil.

Since the communes include married couples and young children in addition to single persons, some type of money arrangement is usually necessary. The more casual and poorer groups pool what they have and go begging for donations when funds are low.

However, some of the older communes have a more sophisticated form of bookkeeping.

Connecticut Experiment

Marian Brown, a spokesman for the New England Committee for Nonviolent Action (CNVA), an anti-war commune in Voluntown, Conn., said that different staff members take care of the books for the young families and single persons who live and work on the rolling farm near the Rhode Island border.

The commune, which was formed in 1960 to protest the building of Polaris submarines, devotes most of its work to peace demonstrations and draft counseling. It is mainly supported by clothing, food and money contributions that go into a common kitty, Miss Brown said. From this fund, money is spent on household goods, food and printing materials for their peace literature.

When things are scarce the staff goes out to find work, she said. Although the house has a telephone, the members refuse to pay the phone tax because they say proceeds go to the Vietnam war effort. For this reason, they decided to cancel their bank accounts so that Internal Revenue Service agents could not attach the account for back taxes.

Health Needs Few

The members have neither life nor health insurance. However, several local doctors volunteer their services to the group. Miss Brown stressed that because the majority of CNVA members are young, their health needs have been few. They do not usually make long-run provisions for education or pension needs — which also may reflect their youth.

When a commune or collective is situated on a farm, part of the financial problem is solved. They usually work the soil and sell any excess produce. When emergencies arise there may be a joint pooling of belongings to be pawned or sold.

One of the problems in communal living today, Miss Brown said, was that too many people have an image of a collective as a hippie pad, a revolutionary drug haven or the Charles Manson "family" arrangement.

She said increasing numbers of communes are really collectives of politically oriented persons, like the CNVA, and live together mainly because of their political ideas.

Parisian Baby Shop Offers Unique Service for Clientele

By ALISON LERRICK

PARIS (AP) — There used to be wine bottles in the window of 28 Rue Bonaparte. Now there are babies.

Petit Faune, a one-cubicle boutique that replaced a grocery store recently, dresses Parisians aged two days to two years. It also provides "free parking" for its clientele. Any mother on a shopping binge can deposit her infant on the shop's cushioned platform for a charge of 40 cents and a maximum of two hours.

"I know how it feels to drag a baby under your arm," says Petit Faune's owner and designer, Sylvie Loussier, a sympathetic mother of five children, ages ten to one So mothers entrust her with spare diapers and formula and she does the dirty work.

It all started when, after ransacking Paris without finding anything to her fancy, Mme Loussier decided to dress her children herself "I had no sewing experience whatsoever, so I just made trials and errors, cut, sewed, did and undid." Finally, there were such heaps of clothes in her house that "the easiest solution was to go into business," she explains.

The new enterprise will also fill the empty hours while her husband, Jacques Loussier, whose jazz trio recorded Play Bach, takes off on concert tours Last May he came to the United States, where he performed at universities and at New York's Lincoln Center.

Safety Pin Knob

To build up a nursery ambiance, Petit Faune's door pulls open by a foot - long safety pin instead of a knob Inside, the walls, steel-edged cabinets and ironing board-counters, are padded in white pique

Fashions for the infant set, says Mme Loussier, are "a compromise between classics — which haven't changed since 1925—and the hippie look I am not particulary hippie myself" continued the young mother-entrepeneur, who was dressed in a velvet calf pant suit, with aborigine brass and bead earings dangling past her chin and an Indian scarf wound twice through her below-shoulder-blade black hair.

The shop's clothes, hand-knitted and hand-crocheted styles, are produced by a hundred skilled women, scattered through the Pyrenees mountains and the South of France Each turns out an item a day "in-between peeling the potatoes"

The most expensive, $39, is a knitted Maxi coat slit on both sides, with heavy cabled seams and a monstrous hood reminiscent of good Friar Tuck. Athletic tots can sport an all-in-one turtleneck sweater and shorts at $12. Overall suspender-shorts, $15 are a crocheted version of lederhosen.

All come in a spectrum of colors from rust, lavender and mustard to fire-engine-red and teal blue They are accompanied by nubbly crocheted stockings in a matching shade which finish off in crocheted black or beige pumps. Everything is washable, under the cold tap, of course

For cradle-dwellers there is the maxi-brassiere, a floor-length Empire knitted dress, sashed loosely under the bustline, only $19 for at-home relaxation.

In the atelier upstairs, three women stitch "English gentleman" pinstriped shirts which "cost more than a man's shirt to make," says Mm. Loussier, who "always thought the prices of baby's clothes were exorbitant until I started making them"

For warm weather garden parties and the seashore, there are embroidered smocks, cotton voile blouses and jersey soccer shirts with matching shorts, imported from Italy and Portugal. Flowered peasant Maxi dresses, tagged at $12, should ideally be worn with wooden sabots. They are called "Lucas" because "French peasants are always named Lucas," she says in jest.

The clothes are "for all milieus where people don't want to waste their energy dressing their children a la mode, not the St. Tropez crowd either. They can't afford Baby Dior and they don't like bargain basements. They are people like me," says Mme. Loussier.

To update the tradition of wedding lists, the shop keeps birth lists so that the baby, and the mother too, will be sure to be pleased with the presents. Mothers can also rent delicate embroidered christening dresses for $22, of which half the profits go toward the starch and cleaning bill.

Mme. Loussier plans to go along on some of her husband's future travels, and while he spends his time in concert halls she will spend hers ferreting out offbeat toys for her shop. Meanwhile, Petit Faune suggests a cotton rope hammock to pop your baby in and swing him to sleep

Junior Women Welcome State Director

"Federation" was the topic of Mrs. Joseph McIlree, third from left, when she spoke Tuesday at the annual pot-luck dinner and business meeting of the Appleton Junior Woman's Club. But conversation was in the informal vein as the newly elected state director of Junior Woman's Clubs, along with Mrs. Ronald Westgate, Appleton president; Mrs. William Steinberg, program chairman, and Mrs. Wayne Steinberg; vice president, helped themselves to dinner at the Columbus Club. The Coup in Syria

Since the latest coup in Syria, the eighth in its 24 years of independence, most citizens seem to have adopted a so-what attitude. There was no break in university classes, the markets opened as usual, the outward signs of the military take-over were kept at a minimum and there was no violence.

But even though the struggle for power was within the ruling Baath party, some changes may be made.

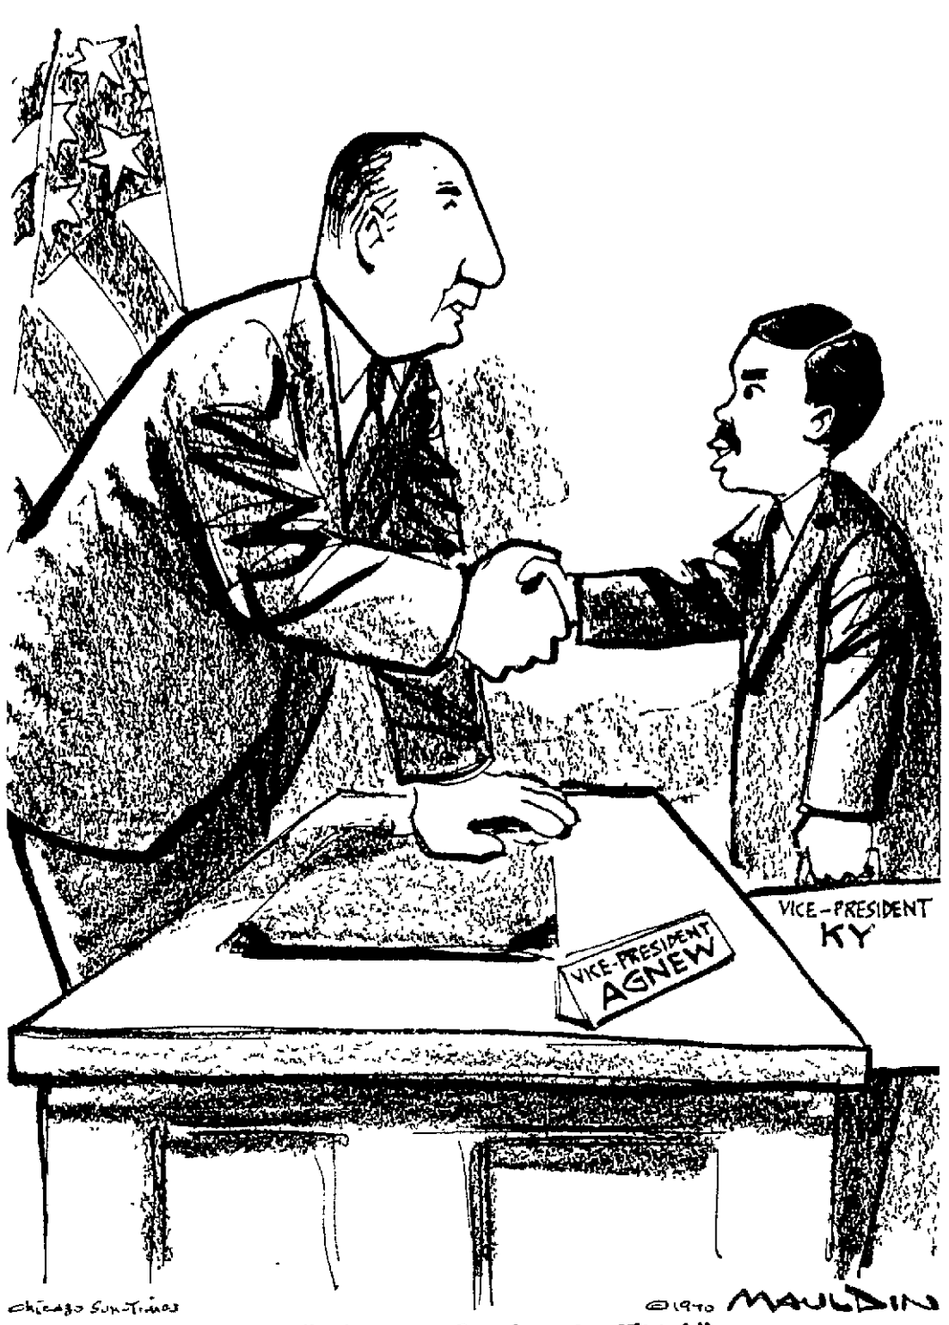
The overthrown regime was headed ostensibly by President Noureddin Atassi and former Premier Youssef Zayyen. But the real power was in the hands and head of General Salah Jadid, listed as only an assistant secretary-general of the party. All three were seized last Friday under the orders of General Hafez Al-Assad, formerly the head of the country's air force.

The move appears now to be in the direction of a more moderate approach to solving the problems of the Middle East, particularly in relation to some kind of a settlement with Israel. The three who were arrested are extreme Marxists and while the Baath party in general, including Assad, are definitely in the socialist camp, it has been reported that Assad objected to the strong reliance upon Russian military aid. He also refused to send air support to Syrian troops who crossed the border into Jordan to assist the commando units in the short civil war there last month. It may be that this lack of air support was a determining factor in the failure of the rebellious commando groups to overthrow King Hussein and the regular troops in Jordan. Syrian troops were forced to withdraw after a settlement had been made between Hussein and the guerillas.

But in Syria the Congress, also controlled by more extremist members of the Baath party, moved toward ousting Assad. Whatever the vote taken in secret session, Assad moved first. He also replaced leaders in commando units—just in case

Obviously there still must be considerable strength in the Marxist wing of the party. Moreover, the Syrians, under whatever leadership, are not likely to toss away their Russian made weapons and reject Soviet aid. There might even be a counter coup.

But since the settlement in Jordan, the commandos appear to have lost some of their power and luster. Egypt is still floundering without Gamal Nasser. There are signs that many Arab leaders and those in Israel are getting ready to find some solution to their conflict. The Syrian coup may be just one more sign that some more people—even military leaders—are getting tired of war and the threats of war.



"HIYA, BIGMOUTH!"

Terrorism From the Right

Most of the publicity about the atrocities of bombings of public buildings and private homes has concentrated upon the quite true fact that the perpetrators are young radicals of the far-left with Marxist philosophies and the belief that violent revolution is the only solution to the problems of the country or the world for that matter.

But there has been some violence from the other side, too, as a number of residents of Houston can testify.

Last year a "rat sheet" was put out signed by a Ku Klux Klan organization with a Houston post office box number. It listed people the Klan apparently found objectionable, gave their car license plates, addresses and telephone numbers. It also urged people to call those on the list night and day because "we're a friendly group."

More serious than such harassment have been the shootings and bombings in Houston. A non-profit, listener-supported radio station, Pacifica, had its transmitter destroyed by a bomb in May. Again in October the transmitter was bombed and the station had to find a new site because the owner of the property was understandably nervous. The station offers free time to the expression of the views of all sides but the far-right in Houston has refused to accept it. Apparently they prefer bombs.

A railroad employee who is chairman of the Houston Committee To End The War In Vietnam has had his home fired into so often that he now stacks sand bags around it. A University of Houston professor and member of the American Civil Liberties Union has had his house set on fire. An underground newspaper which opposes the war has been bombed, buglarized and shot up. Cars parked outside have been shot through or set on fire even when they didn't belong to employees. A hippie-run cafe has been bombed twice. Car tires are slashed if their occupants attend anti-war rallies.

Terrorist tactics such as these are really nothing new despite the new emphasis upon law and order. In the South at least, burning crosses and telephone threats to "nigger-lovers" were commonplace some years ago.

Terrorism is born of fear and hatred. Whether its advocates are the left or the right, they are of the same make-up and are a serious threat, not only to lives but to the maintenance of representative government, civil rights and peace anywhere in the world.

Ulbricht Backs Down on Berlin

In a special television broadcast, Walter Ulbricht, head of the government in East Germany—with Russian approval so far—insisted that "the Government of the German Democratic Republic has declared its readiness to enter into negotiations with the Government of the Federal Republic on questions of mutual transport of persons and goods provided every activity of other states is halted in West Berlin if it contradicts the international status of that city and if it violates the interests of the German Democratic Republic and of other socialist states."

On the surface this would appear to be just more of the same ultra hard line Mr. Ulbricht has maintained ever since he came to power. But in reality it appears to be a moving toward those negotiations but saving face along the way.

Last August West Germany and the Soviet Union agreed to a non-aggression treaty but the Bonn government has announced it will not ratify the agreement until a settlement has been made on the status of West Berlin. As far as the government in East Germany is concerned, that status is "an independent political entity that does not and can never belong to West Germany." Any negotiations on mutual transport would have to be made only with the West Berlin Senate and not with Bonn.

But both sides here are trying to get the most out of their bargaining powers. Mr. Ulbricht made no reference to the current talks among the United States, Britain, France and Russia about West Berlin. Only the week before his government had appeared to be completely opposed to any talks about West Berlin. His comments on the activities of other states probably referred to the West German presence in Berlin and the American operated German language radio station in Berlin.

Negotiations, as we have pointed out so many times, to be successful must offer advantages to both sides or at least appear to do so to the participants. Agreements on transport would be advantageous to both East and West Germany. In the long run Mr. Ulbricht will do what the Kremlin says. He is already backing down from his former adamant stand. He'll back still further if the talks among the Big Four get anywhere.

Quoted from the Appleton Post for Nov. 17, 1870.

Our Hortonville friends propose to celebrate Thanksgiving after the manner prescribed in the Terpsichorean Art.

Louis Jacquot of that village proposes to give a public ball on the evening of the 24th inst., Thanksgiving night.

It will be in Thompson's Hall and the managers are John McGregor, W. Plamer, Doc. Gunan and D. Collar.

A pleasant time is expected by all on that occasion.

Conservatives Taught to Know Their Place but Nixon Didn't

BY WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, JR.

One would think that the entire community of American Liberals is primarily displeased with Richard Nixon because he has jeopardized his own chances for re-election. There he goes, betraying them again!

My own thoughts on the matter, belatedly given, are that the forthrightness of Mr. Nixon's stand during the closing weeks of the campaign, together with the bluntness of Mr. Agnew's rhetoric, tend to confirm something that American Conservatives have got to learn to live with for the time being. And that is that there are double standards governing their behavior, and the behavior of their critics.

Senator Fulbright (to give one example) was perfectly free to say about Senator Goldwater in 1964 that he and his movement were the nearest thing the United States had ever come to Stalinism — no one thereupon accused Mr. Fulbright of stirring great divisions in America, no more than they accused George Meany, or Emanuel Cellar, or Martin Luther King of dividing America when they saw in the Goldwater movement a nascent American Hitlerism.

Is Dick Still Tricky?

But it was not fair when Spiro Agnew, tacitly backed by Richard Nixon, stopping far short of the absolute derogations suggested by the names of Hitler or Stalin, pressed his case against the undeniably powerful subculture of Americans who a) wish to substitute ecumenical daydreaming with the Communists for a responsible foreign policy; and, at home, b) tend to believe that domestic policies should be fashioned after the demands and velleities of an American student body which last spring reached its analytical climax by ruling that no court of law should interest itself in murder, if it is possible that said murder was committed by a Black Panther; and that a defensive military foray into Cambodia is bound to trigger a Third World War, and if it doesn't, that is final proof that Dick is still Tricky.

Well, what Messrs. Nixon and Agnew did was to challenge head on the intellectual presumptions. That is very risky business, because Conservatives have been taught for over a generation to know their place, to yield to the Liberals when it comes to derogation, to exaggeration, or to scandalmongering. I cannot resist the conclusion that if Richard Nixon made a mistake, it was in overestimating the power of the President of the United States to tell the truth at the expense of American Liberals. The President of the U. S. is guilty of being uppity. Any old Democrat, of whatever station high or low, at any old political rally, would think nothing of informing the crowds that the Republican administration was bent on creating unemployment and poverty, and it would not occur to anyone to raise the moral question about such an allegation. But let a Republican President say that the oppostion wishes to withdraw from the responsibilities of the world, or that a class of American youth are training to be bums, and we hear talk about the degradation of the office.

Should Know Their Place

Now in fact, however defensible the activities of Mr. Nixon, he might indeed suffer precisely because he has been involved with the opinion-makers and tablet-keepers who, as I say, have got away with insisting that Conservatives should know their place. That is why one hears it said now that Mr. Nixon degraded his office and dissipated Presidential prestige, though such a thing was not said about, say, President Truman when in the campaigns of 1948 and 1952 he spoke about the Republican party as wanting to grind its heel on the neck of the poor, or even when he suggested that General Eisenhower's supporters were neo-Nazis.

The mistake would be, in my judgment, to settle for less, at this point, than a victory over the public idea of the American Conservative as a second-class citizen, and this requires reiterated analysis, and from the White House. The President needs to find one hundred ways of stating and restating, during the next two years, his fundamental points, which are very simply this, that to fashion a foreign policy on the presumption of Soviet meekness is suicidal; and that to make domestic policy based on the certitude of student perception is, well, mistaken. He must say this and explain it in calmly conducted press conferences, in scholarly dispositions in the impassioned public orations, in, if need be, letters to the New York Times.

If he keeps this up, and succeeds in communicating the seriousness of his concern, and the objective causes of that seriousness, more and more people will think back to the campaign of 1970 as the beginning of a national effort at elucidation, and for this they should prove grateful.

Lucey Faces Problem Replacing Many Key State Administrators

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — All Wisconsin governors in recent times have had their troubles in recruiting men of the stature and quality they desired for the key administrative positions in their regimes.

The time when a governor could pick up his telephone and beckon to able friends to come to Madison for a big job ended at least a quarter of a century ago.

The reasons are many. One of them is that public employment is no longer as attractive, in terms of distinction, recognition, and satisfaction as it was in earlier times. It has not provided the rewards for comparable talent and experience that are available in business and the professions. The truly successful man in midcareer, whether in business or the professions, who will drop everything for a necessarily short stint at the Capitol is either a strong admirer of the governor he is asked to serve or is the exception rather than the rule in public spirit.

Base More Restricted

No denigration is intended in the suggestion that a Democrat typically has more difficulties in this regard than does a Republican counterpart. Again, the reasons are evident. The Democratic electoral base is more restricted with respect to offering the special kinds of training and aptitude that responsible public service in sensitive positions requires.

There is the fact that without the extraordinary effort expended by organized labor and its allies in the state this year, Gov.-Elect Lucey would not have made his surprisingly strong run and, indeed, may not have won the election. There were signs of a reasonably effective working alliance with some of the more activist agricultural groups that paid dividends, although this factor is less susceptible to analysis. The labor effort was visible to the naked eye and the results can be translated in urban districts by the least sophisticated.

But these are not the blocs that provide public service commissioners or occupants of other vital, sensitive and important regulatory offices, or the executives of big, sprawling bureaucracies.

Can Recruit Aides

A Republican governor, if necessary, can get some recruits on loan in effect, from his friends in the business community. He is more likely to be able to draw on professional talent and especially lawyers.

This is not to say that there are not successful business and professional practitioners who are Democrats. The party would not have risen from its moribund status in a period of less than 20 years if it had not been infused with steadily increasing numbers of such persons. But some of the ablest of them are not interested in getting state jobs. More typically, they are interested in recognition, as in appointments to prestigious part-time, non-salaried places.

Thus he is likely to have more claims for seats on such desirable boards as the regents of the University of Wisconsin and the state university system than he can acknowledge, while he will search hard for men who can run the Motor Vehicle Division, or the Insurance Department, or the highway administration, among others.

Task Is Difficult

Yet the nature of Lucey's organization career and the kind of campaign he made against the posture and practice of the Republican administration will make it difficult for him to avoid choosing new faces throughout the state system as tenure expires, even at some risk.

The chances are that he will name some unusually young persons to high ranking jobs, even as did Govs. Reynolds and Nelson before him. These men have little to sacrifice and will be eager to make names for themselves quickly. He may occasionally choose from the civil service bureaucracy or from the hundreds of activists or sympathizers in the academic community.

Teachers, as noted here earlier, have an advantage over other professionals in this regard. Many are transients by disposition and have the enormous advantage of being able to return to their jobs after leaves.

Strictly Personal

Hippies Should Read About the Macaronis

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Leafing through a delightful new book, the illustrated "English Life in the Eighteenth Century," by Roger Hart, I was especially taken with the section on "Macaronis and Beaux," dealing with the wild fashions of that century.

If anyone imagines that the outrageous costuming of the hippie movement is something new, even in Anglo-Saxon society, he should learn about England's "gallants, bloods, bucks, beaux, fribbles, macaronis, fops, monstrosities, corinthians, dandies, exquisites and swells."

The Macaronis took London by storm, Hart tells us. They began as a small club called the "Macaroni Club," because they always ate a dish of macaroni, then little known in England

Soon the Macaroni fashion swept through the whole younger generation, and extended even to the middle-aged: "Even the clergy began to have their wigs combed a la macaroni, their clothes cut a la macaroni; there were turf or racing macaronis, clerical macaronis, military macaronis, college macaronis, and many other varieties."

(Incidentally, this may clear up the mystery of "Yankee Doodle" for many who have wondered why he "stuck a feather in his hat and called it macaroni." The song was first chanted by the English to irritate the American rustics prior to the Revolutionary War.)

Many people strongly disapproved of this flamboyant manner of dress. According to Hart, one said: "No handsome fellow will belong to them, because their dress is calculated to make the handsome ugly, and the ugly ridiculous."

The Macaroni wore a tiny hat, had an abundant quantity of hair, and wore shoes like slippers, with a small circular silver buckle. His tout ensemble included coats of cut velvet, trimmed with gold or silver lace; brocade waistcoats; white and black silk stockings; hats laced with gold or silver; ruffled shirts and neckcloths; and jeweled buckles, swords, pistols, canes and snuff-boxes.

Hair was even more important to the young bloods of that day than it is among our own youth. Wigs were the rage, among the old and middle-aged as well: "Barbers and their apprentices all day long were engaged in making wigs, dressing and curling wigs, powdering wigs." This is when the "toupee" also came in — an array of curls over the forehead and the side of the face, which has recently returned in men's tonsorial fashions

What is different today is that, while in the 18th Century only the affluent could afford the Macaroni style and other popular affectations, such rages now spread throughout the whole culture and cost very little to adopt. That is the only "new" thing about them.

Age, Injuries, Reeves Are Beating Rams' Allen, Says Elinor

BY ELINOR KAINE

Poor old George Allen This was to be His Year George had coaxed together what must be the eldest defense in history. He wired it together with toothpicks and tape for one last stand, winner take all. It didn't work

Age beat him Injuries beat him. Perhaps, most of all, his boss beat him For when Ram's owner Dan Reeves let it be known that George Allen was getting the axe, win or lose, that news had to affect the team, and the coaches

Tackle Merlin Olsen, whose game against Jet guard Dave Herman was a fantastic battle Herman didn't lose, admitted as much. Olsen said of course the players heard all the rumors and guesses as to Allen's replacement· "There's a new rumor everyday"

It's too ironical how owner Reeves is helping beat his own team out of a title, but it's typical of the stubborn Irishman not to learn from experience Reeves couldn't believe it, two years ago, when he fired Allen and the Rams staged a sympathy strike History repeats.

Jet coach Weeb Ewbank was on alert at the last pre-Ram practice in California. Weeb even had his man in charge of spies check the ladies rooms: "I heard that Allen sometimes uses his wife for spy work," chuckled Weeb.

If George Allen's expected firing by Dan Reeves is such common knowledge, no owner approaching Allen can be accused of tampering. John Mecom, Jr. supposedly named J. D. Roberts as interim coach of the Saints, hoping to get Allen to New Orleans.

One part of the Ram story this year is turnover statistics. Last year Los Angeles lost 12 fumbles; this year they've already lost 15. Last year the Rams threw a league-low seven interceptions; this year they already have 11, which have been returned for well over 200 yards.

It will be interesting to see if Baltimore owner Carroll Rosenbloom can keep his mouth shut this week After his Colts murdered Miami a few weeks ago, Rosenbloom showed so little class. A year ago, Rosenbloom talked about glowing terms, saying that Shula had the job as long as he wanted, that he would be the Colts' "last coach."

Then Shula abdicated to Miami and Rosenbloom is still trying to retaliate with the last word. When people ask Rosenbloom about Shula he answers "Don who?" like a little baby. Shula so far has kept his famous temper under control and shown considerable class by saying nothing. At least, not yet.

If you have a problem on your Christmas shopping list, perhaps I can help. In my possession one of Joe Namath's white shoes. It is not new; it is used. If you would like this shoe please tell me why in a postcard (to SHOE, Box 228, NEW YORK, N. Y. 10021). The writer sending the most interesting reason by December 1st will win, if "win" is the right word.

Namath, by the way, is in excellent fettle. His legs are stronger than they have been in years, and, instead of his appearing as expected, Joe has been teaching young Al Woodall what goes on in the pocket Joe has even been saying he'd like to coach in the pros when he grows up. Imagine.

Some silver lining in the Jet cloud is Namath's discovery that he really misses playing football With Joe talking less and less about retirement, Weeb can think less and less about using his top draft choice for a quarterback and draft an offensive tackle instead. That's what Namath needs most.

Mary Heinecke First in Fencing Meet at Chicago

Mary Heinecke, associate professor of physical education at Lawrence University, captured first place in the women's foil competition in the Simonson Open Fencing Tournament at the University of Illinois-Chicago Circle Campus in Chicago Saturday

Bob Foster Is Down for the count in the second round as Joe Frazier waves his hands in victory at their championship fight in Detroit Wednesday night. After felling his opponent for an 8-count earlier in the round, Frazier retained his heavyweight crown by knocking out the challenger with just 49 seconds elapsed.

KOs Foster in 4th Before Slim Crowd

Frazier Sets Sights on Ali

DETROIT (AP) — Joe Frazier is a deadly puncher like such great heavyweights as Jack Dempsey, Joe Louis and Rocky Marciano but until he beats Muhammad Ali he will be a pretender rather than a king to boxing fans.

Frazier put his skills on display Wednesday night and was impressive as he knocked out light heavyweight champion Bob Foster in two rounds in his first title defense since he knocked out Jimmy Ellis last February.

But lacking was the daily increase in tension and the howling mob that usually makes attendance at a heavyweight championship fight a memorable experience.

Never did the fight excite the sporting public as did a fight like Marciano-Jersey Joe Walcott or Ali's return to the ring against Jerry Quarry.

Feature Half

And a crowd of only 6,300—second to the Ali-Sonny Liston fight in Lewiston, Maine in 1965 as the smallest heavyweight title turnout in modern history—showed up at 12,500-seat Cobo Arena for the feature half of the closed-circuit television doubleheader. Unbeaten heavyweight George Foreman stopped Boone Kirkman in two rounds in the opener in New York's Madison Square Garden.

But the Frazier victory cleared another block to a fight that has surpassed the boundaries of the sports world in catching the fancy of people—a fight with Ali.

When asked if he considered the Foster fight a tune-up for Ali, also known as Cassius Clay. Foster said:

"I was ready for Foster as I would have been for Ma-Ma (a reference to Ali)."

"I'm not talking about any fights for about three weeks," said Frazier's manager, Yank Durham, who then mentioned New York, Houston and Philadelphia as possible sites for a Frazier-Ali fight which could be in February.

"We will get together and talk," said Durham who added, "He might want more money than I want and then there wouldn't be any fight."

"I want Joe Frazier," Ali shouted after watching the bout on closed circuit television in Atlanta where he defeated Quarry last month in his first fight since he was stripped of his heavyweight title for refusing induction into the Army.

"Clay's not gonna take the pressure that Joe's gonna put on him," said Foster.

Most Lucrative

Promoters feel that people want so much to see whether Ali can take Frazier's pressure or whether Frazier really is what his title says that a fight between the two would be the most lucrative in history—grossing up to $10 million.

The next block to the dream fight is Oscar Bonavena, the brawling Argentine who will fight Ali Dec. 7 in Madison Square Garden.

There also is the five-year prison sentence that went with Ali's conviction, a conviction which still is being appealed. The U.S. Supreme Court has been asked by the Justice Department to act on the appeal within the next 90 days.

Frazier's demolition job on Foster kept him from being the first light heavyweight champion to win the heavyweight crown. Seven previous light heavy champs tried unsuccessfully nine times for boxing's big prize.

3 Deadly Hooks

It was three deadly hooks that smashed Foster senseless at 49 seconds of the second round.

"I slipped a jab and hit him with a left hook for the first knock down," said Frazier. "The second time I doubled up with the left hook to the body and to the head."

Bucks Extend Streak

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Are the Milwaukee Bucks slacking off?

They're still winning—12 of 13 games so far but the manner by which they defeated the San Diego Rockets, 117-111, Wednesday night brought this comment from Bucks' Coach Larry Costello:

"It's pretty tough to get up now night after night."

While the Bucks seemed at times to merely go through the motions, they managed to hit nearly 53 per cent of their shots. With that percentage, they did not really need their zone press.

Milwaukee center Lew Alcindor on the bench 11 minutes, because of four fouls, nevertheless dominated the game. His 19-point first half helped his team to a 61-47 lead and he came back with a three-point play with a minute left to ice the victory.

Elvin Hayes, the Rockets' center, also was in foul trouble much of the night and hit only seven of his 22 shots as the San Diego team succeeded just 42 per cent of the time. Alcindor also outrebounded Hayes, 16-10.

The bright spot for the Rockets, now 9-11, was the play of 6-foot-7 rookie forward Don Adams. He was drafted No. 8 from Northwestern and made the club on his defensive ability, but his 23 points were high for San Diego and 16 of them came in the fourth quarter.

The Rockets and Bucks are idle until Friday night when San Diego hosts Seattle and Milwaukee visits Los Angeles.

Season Opens Saturday

550,000 Hunters to Stalk Deer in State

BY JIM HARP
P-C Outdoors Editor

Upwards of 550,000 red and orange clad hunters will be in the Wisconsin woodlands this Saturday for the opening of the 1970 deer hunting season.

While the weatherman holds the key to a major portion of the success of the hunt, it is already forecast that hunters can expect a lower harvest of whitetails for the 9-day season.

Main reason for the lower take of deer this season is because there is a 66 per cent reduction in the number of party permits issued this year by the Department of Natural Resources. In compliance with the wishes of state sportsmen, the DNR followed the recommendation of the state Conservation Congress and cut back sharply on the number of permits.

Following six severe winters in a row and a take of deer by hunters that numbered between 70,000 and 100,000, a sharp drop in the deer population, particularly in the far north, was noted. The trend reversed last winter and relatively mild conditions left the state herd in good shape. As a result there was an excellent fawn crop this past spring and there is high hope for a much larger herd in the 1971 season.

What this does mean for hunters who will be in the woods this weekend is that target identification will be extremely important. Fewer antlerless deer will be legal targets, and hunters will have to be sure of what they have in their sights before they pull a trigger.

Hunters are advised to read their big game regulation pamphlet carefully before setting out. Some of the note-worthy rules include:

It is illegal to fire a gun within 100 yards of a building devoted to human occupancy unless the shooter first obtains permission of the owner or occupant.

Permission must be obtained to hunt on private land, whether or not it is posted.

It is illegal to track or drive game with a snowmobile and firearms on the vehicle must be unloaded and cased.

A deer transported in a motor vehicle may be transported only by its owner, during the open season and within three days after the season closes.

Terrors, Rockets Make Their 1970-1 Debut Friday Night

The 1970-1 debuts of the Fox Cities' — and the state's — two best basketball teams of last season highlight this weekend's heavy prep schedule.

State champion Appleton West will unveil its new edition when it plays host to Marinette Friday night in a nonleague game at Seims gym.

State runnerup Neenah, which will have to do more rebuilding than AHS-W, will give its followers an idea of what to expect when it travels to Beaver Dam Friday for a non-conference clash.

The weekend's only intra-Fox Cities game will send Little Chute St. John against Fox Valley Lutheran, in the Foxes' gym Friday. Each team won its opener.

Little Chute's Mustangs, who were triumphant in their opener, play host to Hilbert Friday in another non-loop meeting.

Launches Season

New London, already a 2-time winner, will help Appleton East launch its season Saturday night in the Patriot gym.

Menasha, Kimberly and Kaukauna, of the Fox Valley Association, are ticketed for a pair of non-loop weekend games apiece.

The Bluejays will play both season-opening tilts at home — against Sturgeon Bay Friday and against Milwaukee Riverside Saturday.

Kaukauna, which has split a pair of narrow decisions, plays host to Fox River Valley Conference schools Sheboygan North and Green Bay Southwest Friday and Saturday, respectively.

Kimberly, loser of its first outing, entertains Milwaukee Rufus King Friday and Madison LaFollette Saturday.

Marinette, AHS-W's first foe, lost a 58-54 decision to Oconto Falls Tuesday night. The Terrors will be led by their 1-2 punch of last season, Rich Reitzner and Tim Moriarty — as coaching dean Dick Emanuel begins his 18th year at the helm.

FVL and St. John both showed excellent defenses as they beat Hortonville and Kimberly,

Xavier Appearance to Be Showcase for Meminger's Talents

Marquette University basketball coach Al McGuire has seldom passed up the opportunity to praise the talents of his premier guard Dean Meminger, and he didn't muff the chance Wednesday afternoon when the Warriors' head man was contacted via telephone in Milwaukee.

Rates Page, Eller as Outstanding

Bengtson Cites Minnesota Defense

GREEN BAY — No one can speak with greater authority on the art of defense, National Football League style, than scholarly John Philip Bengtson.

There was more than mere coincidence between his role as architect of the Green Bay resistance and the fact that the Packers were the most miserly team in the NFL during the 1960s, permitting their opponents an average of only 15.4 points per game over that decade.

The Packer head man also is not inclined to superlatives, which lends additional weight to his Wednesday appraisal of the Minnesota Vikings' Purple Gang.

"It's as good a defense as I've seen," said Bengtson, now in his 20th year in the NFL. "They play so well together...They're well drilled and well disciplined.

Played Together

"The big thing, of course, is they now have played together as a unit for several years...That experience, which integrates a defense, is so important.

"The two outstanding ones are Alan Page and Carl Eller. They are such great pass rushers and have such great range in pursuit.

"That Page," he said admiringly, "is picking up fumbles all over the field. If there is a fumble 10 yards down-field, he's there...and he's out there on the screen pass.

"He has as much range as any tackle you've ever seen, as much range, in fact, as shy lineman you've ever seen, you could say...He's ALL over the field."

The figures lend massive support to Bengtson's assessment of the purple marauders, with whom Bart Starr and his offensive colleagues must cope in the Twin Cities Sunday afternoon.

Slightly Ahead

A year ago, the Vikings restricted their 14 opponents to a total of 133 points, an all-time NFL record. This season, they are slightly ahead of their 1969 pace. After nine games a year ago, they had permitted 89 points, three more than in the same number of appearances this season.

There is additional evidence to indicate the Minnesota defenders actually are much more effective than they were a year ago comparatively, than these totals suggest.

For example, they have forced their opponents into 35 turnovers this season, compared to "only" 27 at this point in

Viking Varsity Freshman Cage Teams Will Meet

The Lawrence University basketball teams will get their initial taste of action Friday night when the annual varsity-freshman tilt will be played at 7 p.m. at Alexander Gymnasium.

Coach John Poulson's 10-man varsity will go up against a frosh roster that lists 17 cagers.

Area cagers on the freshman squad include Mike and Bill Fitzpatrick, former Little Chute High School stars, and Steve Blomberg, of Brookfield, who was a standout at Wayland Academy.

The varsity roster includes Jay Barnard of Reedsville and Reuben Plantico of Two Rivers.

Bernie Parrish Now Being Questioned

Grand Jury Continues Probe of NFL

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Bernie Parrish, former defensive back with the Cleveland Browns, was to resume his testimony today before a special federal grand jury probing for possible antitrust violations in operations of the National Football League.

Parrish, who is director of Teamsters Union health and medical program in St. Louis, was called before the jury Wednesday afternoon following testimony by Ross Fichtner, another former Browns defensive back.

The jury recessed for the day after questioning Parrish for an hour and 45 minutes and instructed him to return at 10 a.m. today.

Could Not Comment

Parrish, 34, told newsmen he could not comment on questions put to him by the jury until he had completed his testimony.

"I was puzzled when I received the subpoena because I didn't know that it was all about, but now that I am here and have given some testimony, I'm glad to be of any help I can to the investigation," he said.

Fichtner, now a manufacturer's representative in Meadville, Pa., said some of the questions the jury asked him dealt with player-management relations and relations among players in the NFL.

He said the question of blackballing players came up, "but I wasn't able to give them much information."

Newsmen were unable to pin down as to whether he thought he had been blackballed.

Got Raw Deal

"I think I got a raw deal but whether or not you call it blackballing I don't know," he said.

Parrish was with the Browns from 1959 until after the first game of the 1966 season, when he asked for his release. He finished the season with the Houston Oilers and then retired from football.

He declined to say why he asked for his release from the Browns. While with the club he helped organize the NFL Players' Association.

Fichtner, 32, said the Browns did not renew his contract after the 1967 season following a squabble over a celebrity golf tournament in which he had charge of inviting players. He was with the New Orleans Saints in 1968, but saw limited action, and was dropped before the 1969 season began.

Possible Violations

The jury reportedly is looking for possible violations of the Sherman Act in the restraint of players' services and restraint of trade in the merger of the National and American Football Leagues. Such violations could bring criminal indictments.

Fichtner said the golf tournament incident "came at an inopportune time when there was a lot of publicity about race relations."

Teammate John Wooten, an offensive guard, also was dropped after he charged that Fichtner had not invited Negro players to participate in the celebrity tournament. He went with the Washington Redskins as a free agent after no other NFL club claimed him, but now is out of football.

Fichtner told newsmen he was accused of bigotry as a result of the golf tournament squabble but was vindicated.

Berlin, Ripon Strong

ECC Cage Chase Will Open Friday

BY ROGER PITT
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Berlin and Ripon appear to be the powers in the East Central Conference's first basketball campaign.

Berlin has trampled Wisconsin Dells, 85-65, and Waupun, 63-47, in non-conference tune-ups.

Tall, rugged and experienced Ripon took Columbus, 70-50, in its opener Tuesday.

Hortonville looks like the other favorite, with seven lettermen back. The remaining teams are given an outside shot with little to choose between them. Only Waupaca, which went to sectional play last year, fails to have a letterman back.

Own 12-2 Record

The East Central could be a pretty good basketball conference, as its teams own a 12-2 record in non-conference play. Omro was surprised by Reedsville, and Hortonville dropped a tough game to Fox Valley Lutheran.

Friday's openers have Weyauwega at New London, Omro at Waupaca, Ripon at Hortonville and Berlin at Winneconne.

So far the surprise team has been New London. The Dick Bennett coached Bulldogs have showed much improved marksmanship as they have twice topped 70 points — a feat never accomplished last season.

Dave Teschke, a 6-1 junior, has been the scoring leader as New London has displayed improvement in all phases of play in Bennett's second year at the helm.

Weyauwega is under the hand of Mike Flanagan this season and also shows surprising strength in early play. The Indians scalped a good Marion team, 78-58, in the opener and followed with a 22-point win over Manawa. Jeff Gast, a 5-11 transfer from Shiocton, is a welcomed addition to Flanagan's lettermen of Randy Faulks, 6-3, Terry Nellis, Chip Wall and J. P. Nolan.

Waupaca made a resounding debut at Mosinee with a 42-26 win. Limiting an opponent to six points a quarter is almost unheard of with the quality of players these days.

Hortonville's only problem is a lack of a real big man to control the boards. The Bears lettermen are Mark Everts, Tom Dorn, Kevin Schultz, John Kreul, Robin Pankow, Roger Warning and Al Kaddatz. The Bears should be able to run, shoot and defense with any one.

2 Regulars Back

Omro pins its hopes behind Larry Dobberstein (6-3) and Ken Tritt regulars last season. The Foxes complement them with Ken Loch, John Lenz, Bob Lakins, Dennis Moon and Mike Weitz.

Berlin has size with Larry Bahr (6-6), Bruce Ursin and Doug Parsons (6-2), Paul Krause (6-1) and Larry Hollmaier in the starting unit.

Ripon nearly equals this unit in size with John Radke (6-5), Kyle Wiggs (6-3), Terry Disterhaft (6-1) and Henry Hilscher (6-0) along with Steve Stellmacher and Kim Schultz.

Winneconne has five lettermen back in Randy Kasuboski (6-3), Darv Koneman (6-1), Randy Doverspike, John Uvaas and Bill Rice.

Giants' Ron Johnson Takes Aim at Crowns In Rushing, Receiving

NEW YORK (AP) — In all the recorded history of professional football no one seems to have been so precocious as Ron Johnson of the New York Giants in handling the two Rs—rushing and receiving.

Johnson, acquired by the Giants from Cleveland in an off-season trade that sent Homer Jones to the Browns, has done so well in both facets of the sport that he could become the first player in NFL annals to win both the rushing and receiving titles.

League statistics released today show the 6-foot-1 205-pound second-year man from the University of Michigan is third in both categories in the National Conference; within nine yards of the rushing lead and within two catches of the receiving lead.

In rushing, Larry Brown of Washington has gained 738 yards, MacArthur Lane of St. Louis 832, Johnson 729, and Green Bay's Donny Anderson 621. In receiving, Charley Taylor of Washington has caught 40 passes, Dick Gordon of Chicago 39 and Johnson 38.

With his 429 yards receiving, Johnson has gained 1,158 yards, or more than one-third of the Giants' entire team total of 2,898, enough by itself to explain their sudden rise as a contender in the NFC's Eastern Division.

Johnson is the lone player in the NFC among the leaders in both categories. The American Conference also has one—Miami's Jim Kiick. Kiick is sixth in rushing with 458 yards and tied for sixth in receiving with 30 receptions.

The AFC rushing leader is Floyd Little of Denver with 675 yards. Oakland's Hewritt Dixon is the runner-up with 608. In receiving, Marlin Briscoe of Buffalo is No. 1 with 38 receptions. Warren Wells of Oakland, Chuck Hinton of Baltimore and Jerry LeVias of Houston are tied for the runner-up spot with 33 each.

The passing leaders remained the same as last week—John Brodie of San Francisco in the NFC and Daryle Lamonica of Oakland in the AFC. Brodie leads both conferences in yardage gained with 1,977 while Lamonica is tops in touchdowns with 17. Green Bay Packer quarterback Bart Starr ranks fourth with 1,036 yards.

Black Phantoms Formidable

Bay Conference Race to Start

There isn't an odds-on favorite in the Bay Conference, but if you must have a favorite before the season gets under way Friday pick on West DePere's Black Phantoms ...that's the team many conference coaches rate as a team to beat.

Then, if that hasn't satisfied you, place Pulaski, Seymour and Oconto as the top contenders with the remainder — DePere, Bay Port, Oconto Falls, Clintonville and Ashwaubenon — as the spoilers.

Friday's openers will see Ashwaubenon invading Clintonville, Seymour venturing into Pulaski, Bay Port at DePere and West DePere traveling to Oconto.

Have 7 Returnees

The Phantoms have seven returnees who combined for 727 points — good credentials indeed. Coach Doug Page lost only Mike Castellic to graduation so he has a strong nucleus.

Dale Albers, 6-1 junior, heads the returnees and will be a formidable backcourter. Jim Pichette is the other guard. Gerry Vande Hei (6-1) and Jerry Olmstead (6-2) the forwards and possibly 6-7 Harlin Ninham in the pivot.

Seymour has five lettermen who combined for 394 points and this has caused Coach Mike Mullen to breath a little easier He optimistically states, "We should be a contender."

The Indians will be led by Jim Wickesberg, Dale Marsh, Pete Hartlaben, Mark Demerath and Glen Quast.

The Clints' veteran mentor, Carl Bruggink, faces a rebuilding job. Bruggink has the penchant for developing a strong club during the season which peaks late in the campaign.

Lettermen back for the Truckers are Randy Nelson, Craig LeBeau, Mark Smith and John Jartz. Mark Heideman (6-2), elevated from the jayvees looks like a top prospect.

Oconto will rely on quickness and defense. Back for the Devils are Bob Mraz, John Koronkiewicz and Mike Duschene.

DePere has starters Pete Clabots and Mike Paulson recuperating from football wounds. Paulson was the team's leading scorer and rebounder. Another starter back is Brian Williams and a reserve in Harry Christensen who scored 119 points. Other lettermen are Dale Joly, Tom Treml and Dan Janssen.

Nets 240 Points

Steve Ness, a high-scoring senior, netted 240 points for Bay Port last year and heads the list of four lettermen. Other returnees are Bruce Wolf, Gary Reschke and John Loch.

Oconto Falls is led by 6-2 senior Jim Pytleski who tallied 226 points last season. Others back are Alan Angelich, Steve Shellman and Pat Hickey.

Pulaski was hard hit by graduation but has Bill Burmeister, Jim Liss, Mark Vandermause and Dennis Davis back.

Ashwaubenon will be small in size and deficient in experience. Coach Leroy Sroda has two lettermen back. They are Jim Kohlbeck, 5-11 senior who's the tallest man on the team and Tom Mecklenberg, 5-9 guard.

respectively. The Foxes held the Polar Bears to 46 points — while scoring 55 — and the Dutchmen restricted Kimberly to 50, while tallying 57. Dennis Kasten and Jeff Grow led FVL, with 17 and 14 points, respectively. Joe Wegand led the Chuters, with 19 points.

Pair of Defeats

Last season, St. John handed FVL a pair of defeats, 54-32 and 55-48.

Appleton East, with three winning seasons behind it, begins its fourth year of basketball under Coach Bill Morse. Lettermen Pete Haas, Nick Milhaupt and Don Werner will lead the Patriots into the opener.

New London, off to its best start in years, will go after its third straight win at AHS-E. The Bulldogs tripped Clintonville, 71-58, and Chilton, 74-62. Dave Teschke paced the first win with 28 points, and Cal Handschke tallied 26 for the Bulldogs Tuesday night.

Little Chute's Mustangs unveiled a blistering offense in its Tuesday debut under Coach Al Schmidt and the start of their third season. The Mustangs racked up 83 points in the first three periods enroute to a 92-73 win over Brillion. Dick Hackel and Steve Mollen accounted for 68 points between them, with Hackel getting a school record of 38.

Kaukauna's weekend foes, North and Southwest, could be among the FRVC's better teams this season. Thus far, the Ghosts have shown a penchant for close games. They were edged by Pennings, 58-56, on a last-second goal, then shaded Schofield, 63-62. Leon Franzke topped Ghost scoring in the first game, and Al Borchardt led in the second.

Kimberly seeks to enter the win column as it takes on two new foes — King and LaFollette. Don Uelman, with 16 points, led Papermaker scoring against St. John.

Miami New Foe for Packers On 1971 Pre-Season Slate

GREEN BAY — The Packers will welcome a new opponent to their 1971 pre-season schedule, the home portion of which was announced today by GM-Coach Phil Bengtson.

They will play host to the Miami Dolphins, coached by Don Shula, in their third exhibition appearance at Milwaukee County Stadium Saturday night, Aug. 21.

It will be the first meeting between the Packers and Dolphins, who became members of the National Football League's American Conference last February after the American Football League officially merged with the NFL.

The Oakland Raiders, winningest team in professional football the last three seasons, also will make their first Wisconsin appearance at Lambeau Field Saturday night, Aug. 28, to complete a two-year, home and home contract.

The Packers defeated the Raiders, 37-7, in this year's meeting at Oakland Aug. 30.

In something of a departure, the Packers will open their preseason card in the annual Midwest Shrine game against the Chicago Bears at Milwaukee Saturday night, Aug. 7.

They then will make their first Green Bay appearance of the season against the Pittsburgh Steelers in the 11th annual Bishop's Charities Game Saturday night, Aug. 14.

The other two pre-season dates, Sept. 4 and Sept. 11, will be announced by the Packers' opponents. The home schedule: Aug. 7 — Chicago Bears at Milwaukee; Aug. 14 — Pittsburgh Steelers at Green Bay; Aug. 21 — Miami Dolphins at Milwaukee; Aug. 28 — Oakland Raiders at Green Bay.

Invitation Tournament champions.

The event, a combined basketball clinic and game scrimmage, is slated to get under way at 7 30 p m and should run approximately hour, 45 minutes Tickets are $1 50 per person.

"I think it will be an asset to the grade, junior high and high school coaches in the area, and I think it will be good for the student-athletes on all levels," McGuire explained

Concerning the clinic portion of the program, the Warrior mentor informed, "We'll go over shooting, patterns on offense, some of our defenses and how we put them into operation There'll be some passing drills, and then we'll go pretty deep into foul shooting and how you're supposed to go about it"

Then, following a demonstration of taping procedures by trainer Bob Wyngaard, the Warriors will launch into a full scrimmage. "We'll probably play three games of 12 baskets a game or 72 points altogether, and we'll alternate teams," McGuire noted. The Warriors will also provide their own referees for the tussle.

Work in Store

The exhibition will be by no means a time to relax for McGuire's 16 varsity candidates, the New York-bred coach reminded

"We'll try to make it interesting," McGuire promised. "but we must get a workout out of it, too We'll work it exactly as a regular practice outside of the clinic end of it."

Marquette, which finished the 1969-70 campaign with sparkling 26-3 record, is preparing for its 1970-71 regular-season opener at home against St. John's of Minnesota Dec. 2.

With four of his top six players gone from last year's squad, McGuire isn't expecting a fast start from this season's aggregation. The varsity Warriors do have one game under their belts — a battle with the freshman last Saturday in which the varsity won, 75-68 There are some problems

"We learned that we're not in good condition," the 7-year head man said referring to the frosh tilt, "and that we have to realize there's only one ball out there. A couple of them have to be what we call complimentary ballplayers."

If McGuire sounds somewhat worried over his team's immediate future, he no doubt has confidence that the Warriors' fortunes for the season again appear good.

Meminger, a 6-1 senior who was the most valuable player in the NIT, is back as the quarterback of the club. The flashy product of New York City averaged 18 8 points per game last year

The other returning starter is forward Gary Brell, who prepped at Milwaukee Pius. A gawky 6-6, Brell was an outstanding defensive player and contributed 12 2 points per game in 1969-70.

Meminger and Brell are expected to be joined on the first team by 6-11 sophomore Jim Chones from Racine St Catherine; 6-6 junior Bob Lackey, a transfer from Casper, Wyo., Junior College: and 6-3 sophomore Allie McGuire, the head coach's son.

The most talk recently has centered on neither Meminger nor Chones but Lackey, who pumped in 26 points while playing for the freshman in an impressive debut. Lackey, described as a player much like George Thompson but quicker around the basket, scored 22.7 points per game and averaged 18 rebounds in earning All-American Junior College honors last year.

Other Marquette candidates on display for the fans will include senior Tom Sonnenberg (6-3) and Bob Black (6-4), juniors Guy Lam (6-8) and Terry McQuade (6-5), and sophomores Kurt Spychalla (6-4), Mark Ostrand (6-3), Mike Mills (6-9), and George Frazier (6-3).

On the subject of injuries, McGuire related that freshman Randy Wade is still out of practice sessions. After abdominal spasms sidelined the former Omro star, Wade also picked up a cold

Bill Markwardt and Jack Anderson will co - captain the 1971 Appleton West football team

The announcement of their selection was made Wednesday night, during the annual noon Lions Club-sponsored fall sports banquet in the Appleton Legion club.

Dwight Mueller, a senior running back, was selected as the most valuable player on the 1970 Terror grid team He also won the citation as the team's MV offensive player.

Chuck Sample, a junior, won two awards: most valuable defensive player and MV defensive lineman Bob Schliev was picked as the MV offensive lineman Markwardt was cited as the team's most improved player.

Jim Hinnenthal and Jeff Schreiner were elected co-captains of the 1971 West cross country team.

Awards Letters

Cross country coach Herb Simon awarded letters to junior Hinnenthal and. Schreiner, John Bauhs and Jeff Dean; to seniors Steve Dercks and John Kiekhafer; and to sophomore Gregg Ziegler.

Simon called the 1970 campaign the harriers' 'first real successful year in a long time" The Terrors were 6-1 in dual meets, won a triangular, finished second in the conference and qualified for the state meet.

Volleyball Coach Bill Reay awarded letters to seniors Mike Griesbach, Rob Miotke, Mike Schultz, Mark Hirte, Jim Pardee, Jim Vosper: and juniors Dave Denny, Steve Weber, and Ted Vonck. Reay noted that the Terrors finished third in the league.

In alluding to the 1970 season, Engen remarked, "There was improvement over the first year. . .no doubt about it I'm looking forward to next season"

Engen declared, "I believe we have the capability to turn the whole thing around"

He noted that the last game of the season — at Medford — constituted the low point of the campaign "It was the first time I wasn't proud of the team," he said

The high point of '70 was a happening in the locker room according to Engen He referred to a player's call for victory, and it seemed to fire up the whole squad.

Phil Cites Viking Defense

1969 These include 18 intercep tions and 13 fumble recoveries

The Purple People Eaters also have allowed only one touchdown rushing, compared to four last year, and they have permitted only eight TDs overall, against 11 in their first nine games of '69

Defenders Score

Perhaps an even more significant item, Viking public relations director Bill McGrane points out via long distance, is the increase offensive potency of the Vike defenders

"Our defense is scoring more points than it did last year," he said "It has scored seven touchdowns this year, compared to only one last season

"Ed Sharockman has scored twice on blocked punts and once on an interception, Bobby Bryant once on an interception and Roy Winston, Alan Page and Mike McGill, a reserve linebacker once each on a fumble recovery and return"

On an overall statistical basis, the Purple Gang had a slightly better record at this point in '69, having held opponents to 1 770 yards in comparison to 1,828 this season

McGrane has a ready explanation for this disparity. "People are playing us differently," he said. "They're not throwing long as often, they're throwing a lot of quick rhythm stuff and they are running at us more Our opponents attempted 222 rushes in our first nine games last year, compared to 253 this year . . . What they're trying to do is delay our pass rush."

Less Productive

Although the defense has been more devastating, the offense has been less productive than it was during the comparable span in '69. The attackers have scored 227 points to date, 40 less than a year ago.

COG Efficiency Is Questioned

Budget Narrowly Passes After Attack on 'Excess Personnel'

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKOSH — Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG) delegates approved the 1971 budget of about $129,000 but a strong dissenting vote indicated some officials don't believe the metropolitan planning agency is operating as efficiently as it could.

The vote was 7-5, with the two citizens members on the agency's 15-community board, providing the difference. Five representatives of communities were absent.

The budget is just under 6 per cent more than was approved for the current year. The member communities in the Kaukauna to Oshkosh area, including six townships, pay according to their equalized valuation.

On the somewhat related matter of merging with the other Appleton-based planning agency, Kaukauna Mayor Gilbert Anderson named a three-man committee to engage in any talks that might be scheduled.

Menasha Mayor James Adams, a relatively new member on the COG governing board, led the attack on what he considered an excess of planning personnel for the jobs at hand.

In his "1971 budget minority report," Adams said that he couldn't vote for the budget because "it is my opinion that the duties of the regional planning director and that of the executive director should be

Tempest in Teepee

Mayor George Buckley put on his war paint Wednesday in response to remarks by Parks and Recreation Chairman Ralph Gertsch, who Tuesday described Buckley's 1971 executive budget as "not only stupid but pathetic."

The mayor issued the following "news release":

"Chiefs Sharp Knife and War Eagle issue this joint release in response to the searing smoke signals about the executive budget sent up by Running Bear, chief of the P&R Tribe.

"Wampum was deleted from the budgets of all of the sub-chiefs but Running Bear was the only one to sing loud and long about the clip job that was done on his tribe.

"His voice was as the voice of thunder rolling across the prairie, but Sharp Knife and War Eagle hope that the Council of Braves will listen as to the voice of the chickadee in the birch tree, for each brave knows that cutting wampum from the P&R Tribe is like taking some of the skin of the wild elephant who is still alive. There is much trumpeting

"Ancient Indian legend says not to criticize a man until you have walked many moons in his moccasins. Running Bear has never worn the moccasins of Sharp Knife or War Eagle, yet he bellows like the arrow-struck buffalo.

"Perhaps when the winter snows are gone, the trees have turned green and once again turned red and gold and the cold wind comes before next winter's snow, the council will turn over the moccasins of Sharp Knife and War Eagle to Running Bear, to see how well he wears them."

The message is signed by George L. Buckley, "also known as War Eagle," and Finance Director David C. Champion, "also known as Sharp Knife."

Council Rejects Plans for 2 Referendums, Hears 3rd

There won't be a referendum next spring on building a new Appleton city hall-police station, and it seems doubtful that a vote will be taken on removing the treasurer from the ballot and appointing a chief financial officer.

But the City Council Wednesday received a resolution calling for a third referendum, asking whether voters favor continuing to subsidize Fox River Bus Lines with public funds.

Ald. Glenn R. Thompson (13th) proposed the bus subsidy referendum, which will be taken up by the finance committee. He suggested that the April election ballot include a question asking whether the temporary subsidy up to $3,000 per month should be continued indefinitely.

Two Turned Down

The other two proposed referendums were turned down by the council Wednesday

Aldermen unanimously rejected asking voters' opinion on building a city hall-police station, and they voted 16-2 against removing the treasurer's post from the ballot and placing an appointed director over the treasurer's and finance offices.

The latter action came after Ald. Judith Winzenz (12th), sponsor of the finance resolution, said there had been too much discussion of the "political feasibility" of getting the change passed by the voters, and too little examination of the merits of the measure

She said after the council meeting that unless there is evidence of community support she won't seek to put the question to a referendum

Ald Alvin Tews (5th), finance chairman, said if his committee rejected the measure on the basis of political feasibility, "the members of finance probably felt political feasibility — based on past experience — far outweighed" other considerations.

He referred to voters' rejection in 1966 of a proposal to make some City Hall jobs appointive, leaving them elective Wednesday, someone taped a "Vote No" poster, relic of the opposition campaign in that referendum, on the council chamber wall

Ald Delmar Schwaller (16th), the only alderman to vote with Mrs Winzenz in support of the merger, said the referendum was defeated last time because "the electorate wasn't given the facts." He said Mrs Winzenz was asking to "give the people of the City of Appleton a chance to study this along with us" and then give their opinion in another referendum

Mrs Winzenz said the opposition in 1966 was based upon "the emotional appeal of losing a vote" and lack of information. She said the public would support her proposal "if they have sufficient information to understand it."

Other aldermen replied, however, that they felt the people had spoken four years ago, favoring electing city officials rather than appointing them

Mrs. Winzenz explained that she favors having policy-making officials such as the mayor and county executive elected, but appointing nonpolicy-making officials such as the head of a merged finance and treasurer's office.

Community Interest

She said after the meeting, "If I see that there is interest in the community for seeing this put to the ballot, then I'd be happy to give my time and energy to it." Otherwise, she said, she won't seek a referendum by petition, the alternative to council action.

Thompson recently persuaded the finance committee to wait for six months to see the effects recent streamlining of operations will have on bus line finances, before considering continuation of the subsidy.

The city paid the firm $8,203 to cover April, May and June losses resulting from costs running above income. The firm has reported losses continuing for the months since then, but Thompson and other finance committeemen hope that revenue from Appleton school students riding buses during cold weather will overcome the losses at least during the cold portion of the school year.

Not Proper Time

Thompson's name was also on the resolution calling for an April referendum on building a city hall-police station.

Ald. Robert Roemer (8th) said before the vote, "Unless we are in the process of thinking about building a city hall, why go to a referendum?" He said the proper time would be perhaps in a couple of years if the council seriously proposes such a project. At present, he said, "There's no interest, and nobody's asking for a city hall."

Thompson and Ald. Thomas Kottmer (18th) co-sponsored the resolution. The Board of Public Works recommended rejection.

Some Phone Calls Aren't Phony Calls

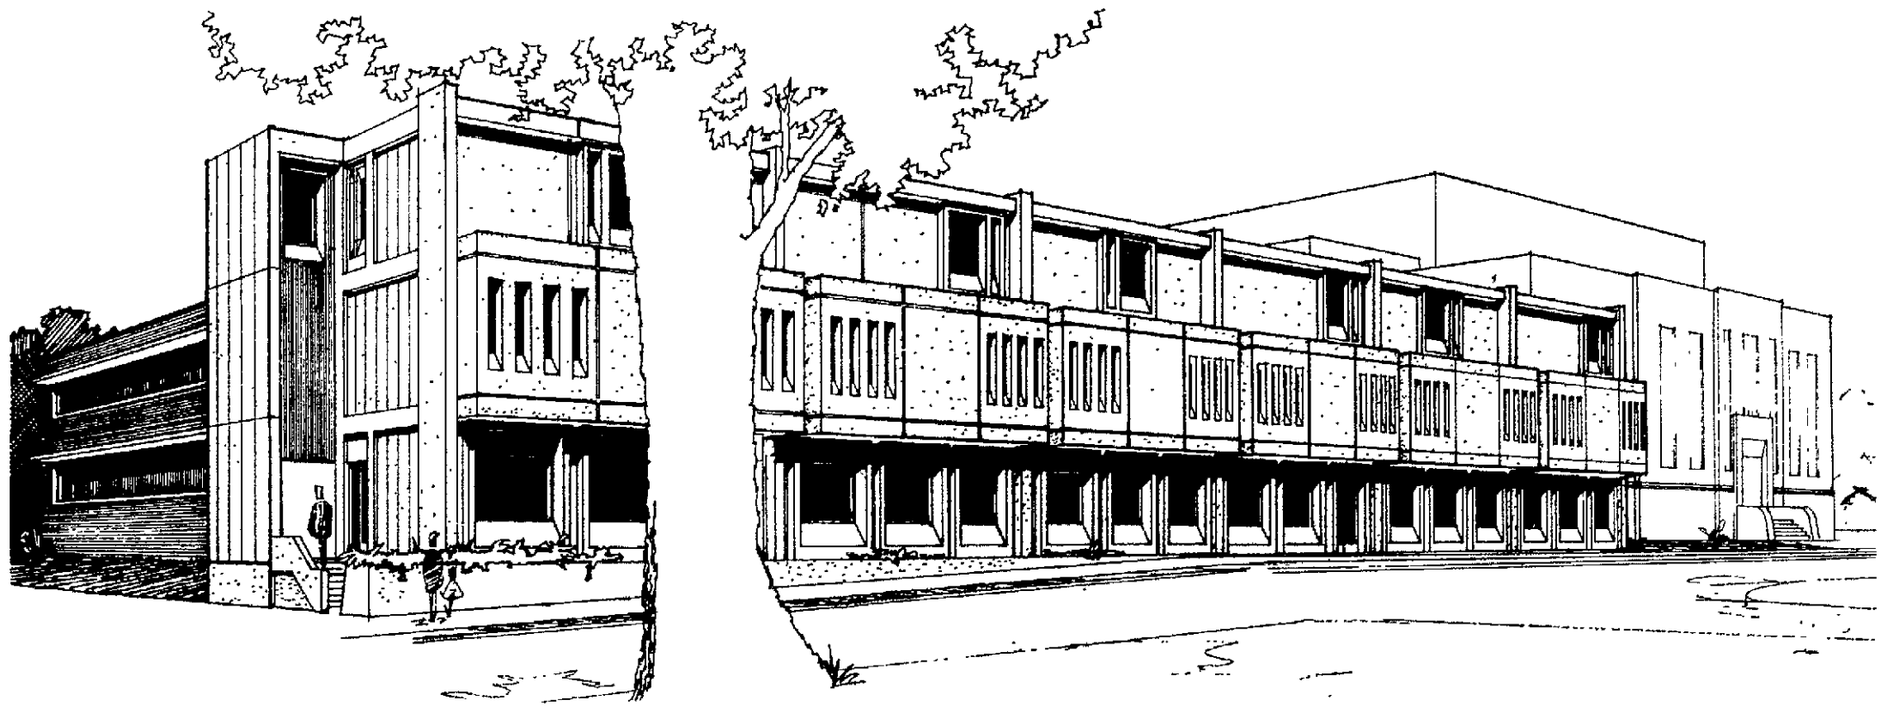
If you receive a telephone call from Mrs. Erwin Becker or Mrs. Robert Becker, of the Appleton city directory, it isn't phony.

It's legitimate, and they need your answers for a cross-check of the directory.

While normally it's not a good practice to answer certain questions over the phone, these questions probably can be answered. The two women have run into problems getting answers since The Post-Crescent carried a story Wednesday warning of phony phone calls.

Their only questions are: What are the names of the husband and wife? where is each employed? what is the home address? what is the telephone number? are they homeowners? and what is the total number of persons in the family?

There have been reports of prank calls from a party who claims to be with the Appleton telephone directory research, the Appleton Area Chamber of Commerce said.



This is the architects' drawing of the proposed Outagamie County jail. (Story on Page D- 4)

State GOP Spent $1.1 Million in Defeat

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The Republican state organization spent $1.1 million and ran up a deficit of about $600,000 as it fought unsuccessfully to hold control of the legislature and the governorship under Democratic attack in the elections this fall, its chairman said here Wednesday.

In an interview striking for its realism and candor, Reed Coleman, chairman of the state GOP executive committee, met with reporters at the conclusion of the long committee meeting. This was the first held since the Nov. 3 elections, the most painful defeat of the Republicans in this state in more than 30 years.

Coleman outlined plans for reconstruction of the battered party and said he has made preparations for wiping out the huge financial deficit by mid-1974. He pledged that his party will offer constructive alternatives to the policies of the Democratic administration-elect of Patrick J. Lucey, and said he already has taken steps to rebuild the party machine through the creation of several "front line" advisory and consultative agencies.

The youthful party committee chief said he found some solace in the fact that his party was comparatively successful in holding county courthouse seats and now is in about the same position in that regard as it was in 1964.

But a few moments later he conceded that the loss of the governorship, at a time when the tenure of that key office will be extended to four years, for the first time, was the most important blow to the party.

He described the committee's deliberations as thorough but constructive, said the emphasis will be on reconstruction rather than recrimination, and declined to be drawn into statements that the record of the Republican legislature was the key factor leading to party reversals.

Pressed on the latter point, he said Republican legislative leaders and the administration of Gov. Warren Knowles last year had some difficulties "in the process of getting there." He said they managed to come to mutually acceptable settlements of their differences, but that an "impression of conflict" was created that probably was hurtful to the party.

The Republicans also were damaged by the recent rise in unemployment which gave the Democrats some additional campaign volunteers, he said. The Democrats used the "Republican book in campaign organization and in recruiting candidates," he continued and a party in power always is more awkward in defense of its works than is the opposition party with "simplistic attacks."

Coleman echoed the views of most of his partisan associates when he agreed with a reporter's observation that Atty. Gen. Robert Warren of Green Bay increasingly will be depended upon to be the party spokesman among the remaining state GOP officeholders.

Coleman said the 1971 Republican state convention will be held at Wisconsin Rapids May 15, and left the impression that he feels an obligation to assist in the liquidation of the party debt contracted by him and his associates if the executive committee chosen at that convention wants him to remain in the chairmanship.

He summarized the concensus of the committee to a commitment to "a positive approach." and a desire for Republicans in office to "avoid the role of obstructionist." The comment came a few hours after Rep. Harold Froehlich of Appleton, generally regarded as the author of some of the Republican legislature's differences with retiring Republican Gov. Knowles, was easily returned to the top echelon of the Republicans' battered Assembly minority as its 1971 floorleader.

Buckley Chops $1 Million

Budget Cuts Lamented

BY CLIFF MILLER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Public Works construction cuts of nearly $1 milion proposed by Mayor George Buckley for the 1971 Appleton budget were described by Public Works Director Robert Miller Wednesday as "ill advised." He complained they were made without consulting him first.

When he produced figures showing which projects he considered most and least necessary. Finance Director David Champion said if they had been submitted in writing with Miller's budget requests, the finance director and mayor could have used them as a guide to their recommendations.

Finance committeemen wound up the session by encouraging the two department heads to get together today to bridge the apparent communications gap.

The committee held two sessions on Buckley's budget proposals, meeting two hours in the afternoon and two more after the City Council meeting. Another session was scheduled for 6 p.m. today.

Miller's priority figures reduced projects totaling $2.4 million to just over $1.6 million, using most-needed items he described as "probable" on a scale including "probable, possible and unlikely" categories. Buckley's recommendation totalled just under $1.4 million.

Sewers and Roads

The funds are for sanitary and storm sewers, grading and gravelling new streets and concrete paving. The mayor used current and recent spending levels as his chief guide in making the cuts, Champion indicated.

The committee upheld Buckley on two items totalling $1 million, compared with initial requests by Miller for $1.282.000, which he revised $1.024.000. No action was taken on items revised by Miller from $1.036.000 downward to $598.000, compared with Buckley recommendations of $376.960.

In a sense, Miler came out ahead on his sanitary sewer budget. He listed top - priority projects totalling $456.200, but the committee granted him the $500.000 recommended by Buckley. Miller initially had asked for $666.650, however.

Miller also won reinstatement of $15.000 cut by Buckley for aerial topographical maps used in designing sewers and other facilities that otherwise would require manual surveying

Champion told Miler that in addition to funds approved by the Mayor and committee, some projects that seemed to be deleted from Miller's original requests were carry-over projects from this year that weren't done The funds remain available, however, since they were borrowed through bond issues and earmarked for specific types of work

Explains Financing

The committee began its deliberations by listening to Champion explain a system of spreading financing for equipment and other fixed assets over a period of years, rather than taxing for them immediately. Small items could be financed by short-term notes of up to 10 years' duration, he said, evening out the spending pattern from year to year and avoiding "peaks" in tax rates

He said the committee and

Supervisors Blast Bar For Proposed Salary Hikes

BY PETER BACH
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Proposed pay hikes for judges and other court-related officials drew heavy fire Wednesday night from supervisors who demanded to know the reason for the increase.

Supv. Paul Huseby, Appleton, led the attack against the proposal made to the Outagamie County Board last week by the Bar Association, asking for raises for the Circuit Court judge, three county judges, the district attorney and staff and other personnel.

The board's courts and justice committee, of which Huseby is chairman, moved to hold a public meeting Dec. 2 with members of the bar association.

The association, in a letter to the board last week signed by president Don Herrling, an Appleton attorney, recommended salary increases of from between $2.000 and $5.000.

Seeking Explanation

That request makes the bar association "come out smelling like a rose," no matter what action is taken on it, Huseby charged. He requested that Herrling, or representative from the bar, explain the rationale behind the proposal.

Huseby said he was approached by a "leading Democratic attorney, who said the Circuit Court judge's salary should be raised to $26.000. The only reason I can see is that this is for his own personal gain," Huseby commented. "though he said he gets more than that now."

Huseby's statement suggested that when the position of Circuit Court judge becomes vacant, that the attorney, active under a Democratic governor, could possibly get the appointment.

Huseby, directing remarks to the committee members, said "We, who are probably around the $10.000 bracket, represent the middle class of our society, and it's you and I that are paying for that raise out of our property taxes." He noted that the bar association members had "given themselves a raise."

Supv. Tom Woods, Appleton, aired his disdain for the way groups get together and plan "how much can the public stand this year," and then go out and charge more for their services.

Referring to the district attorney's office, Woods stated that "they better come up with something worthy of that fee"

Man Gets Prison Term for Thefts

A member of large theft ring cracked by police two months ago was sentenced to seven years in the State Prison at Waupun this morning for a series of crimes dating to March of 1968.

Twenty-one separate felony counts brought in 11 Wisconsin counties, including Outagamie, were considered before Circuit Court Judge Donald W. Gleason, from Green Bay imposed the term for Jerome Baer, 35, 1350 Manitowoc Rd., Menasha.

Assistant Dist. Atty. R. Thomas Cane asked for "no less than 10 years," noting that if the maximum penalty were imposed for the felonies Baer would be in prison for 160 years. Cane asked for a "reasonable" term to "protect the public" from Baer and aid in his rehabilitation.

The string of crimes began with the theft of a piece of heavy equipment from Keller Implement Co., in Calumet County, on March 31, 1968. Baer, sometimes along with others, took a total of items "well in excess of $21.000," according to Cane.

21 Offenses

The 21 offenses included theft, burglary, and one count of conspiring with another for the purpose of theft. Sixteen of those charges were consolidated before Baer pleaded guilty to them this morning. The five other counts, including two additional ones just introduced this morning from Outagamie County, were all brought in this county.

The 16 other charges were brought in 10 Wisconsin counties, including those encircling Outagamie with the excep-

Fire Destroys Barn; Damage Set at $25,000

KAUKAUNA — Fire of unknown cause swept through a barn near here Wednesday morning, causing an estimated $25.000 damage to the wooden structure and its contents.

Thirty-two young beef cattle were led from the structure moments before it became engulfed in flames on the farm of Marvin Van Asten, route 2, about 8:30 a.m. Assistant Fire Chief Vernon (Shorty) Gerritts of the Freedom Fire Department said the building had burned to its foundation within an hour of their arrival

Van Asten was at work when the fire broke out. His wife summoned a relative who called fire fighters and led the cattle from the barn Gerritts said the structure measured about 30-by 40 feet.

Farm equipment inside, plus hay, oats and other feeds were destroyed.

Kaukauna Area Proposal

'Heart of Valley' Chamber Considered

KAUKAUNA — A movement is under way to form a chamber of commerce encompassing Kaukauna, the villages of Little Chute, Kimberly and Combined Locks and outlying areas in the eastern Fox Cities.

It's being spearheaded by the board of directors of the Kaukauna Chamber of Commerce, but more specifically by David Raven and David Flanagan, members of the board

The move apparently is partly as a protective measure against the formation of an Oshkosh-to Kaukauna Fox Valley Chamber of Commerce, which is under discussion now, but more as a positive move to improve the coordination of promotions and just generally the promotion of the region

Raven has led the movement through the Kaukauna Business Associates, a group of retailers, which met with businessmen from the villages this week Raven, who is president of the associates, an outgrowth of the chamber, met with Kimberly businessmen Wednesday

"We want to encourage them to join what will eventually be the Heart of the Valley Chamber rather than the Kaukauna Chamber," he said

He admitted that the valley-wide chamber discussion spurred his group on but added that "this is something that has been thought about in the past couple of years I don't think that the valleywide chamber is the most motivating factor about it"

Joseph Steger Jr Kaukauna chamber president, said he also favored an amalgamation of the outlying areas, including the villages, but the name and area still aren't determined

"We plan on changing our name at our annual meeting in January," he said, indicating he was optimistic the membership would go along The directors unanimously have agreed to resent a resolution of expanding the membership base to outside Kaukauna, he added

"We feel we can do a better job if we expand our membership base," he said, citing businesses in rural Kaukauna

One chamber official who asked that he not be indentified said he opposed the idea for expanding the base He denied there was a broadly supported movement toward this

He also contended that fear of the possible valley chamber was causing the movement

Raven alluded to this but said the group is more interested in the positive promotional values of unification in the villages and Kaukauna area "We all need industrial development and a strong political voice which is an important part of the work of the Chamber of Commerce," he said

He and Steger both indicated interest in the valley chamber which has been under discussion since Kaukauna Mayor Gilbert Anderson, as chairman of the Fox Valley Council of Governments, proposed talks last August

I personally am interested in the greater area chamber of commerce but others on the board are not as enthusiastic about it until they can see further what it will be like," Steger said

Raven said that a Heart of the Valley Chamber would unify the eastern Fox Cities and facilitate the possible eventual formation of the valley chamber.

He made it clear that even with the Heart of the Valley group, there would be individual retail divisions in each of the communities to insure local promotional programs

They would retain their individual anonymity," he said But we would hope that through the year we could cooperate on one or two promotions and coordinate others"

Raven predicted that a villages Kaukauna chamber would be formed within six months

Anderson said he knew little about the movement for the Heart of the Valley chamber The valleywide chamber group is meeting again soon in an effort toward forming some type of regional group

Neenah - Menasha Pressed To Answer Pollution Order

NEENAH - MENASHA — The Twin Cities and their sewerage commission are being called to a meeting with the Department of Natural Resources in Green Bay that is "a last ditch effort to get compliance before referring the matter to the attorney general."

DNR Office

The meeting is Dec 3 The matter is an order (compliance date Sept 1, 1970) from the DNR that the sewage plant stop dumping raw sewerage into Little Lake Butte des Morts

The plant is still bypassing about one-quarter of its daily flow into the lake

The meeting was called a last ditch effort by Allan Schoen, regional engineer with the DNR's Division of Environmental Protection office in Green Bay

Schoen said today that the department hopes "the solution can be resolved without legal action" against the Twin Cities or the sewage plant

But attending the meeting along with several DNR officials will be an assistant attorney general and an attorney representing DNR.

They'll be there as observers, Schoen said, and "to gather information for any proceedings that may result. . ."

Schoen mentioned two possible solutions to the sewage plant woes: hauling of sludge from the plant to a dumping site or improving plant facilities which treat the sludge.

Not Enough

The commission "has been doing quite a bit, and are making some steps in trying to alleviate the problem," Schoen said But it has not been enough.

"The ultimate solution is the planned plant expansion," Schoen said, a project that envisions $15.5 million in improvements to the plant.

"But I don't think the people can live with this bypassing for another two or three years" until the plant expansion project is completed, he added.

If the department isn't satisfied with the results of the Dec. 3 meeting, it could refer it to the attorney general's office for prosecution. That office could issue an injunction demanding compliance by a certain date or the plant would face a contempt of court citation. It could also ask for fines against the commission (state statute allows between $10 and $5,000 per day fines against order violators).

Schoen said there would be one other pollution order violator at the Dec. 3 meeting in Green Bay

Solid Handling

In a Nov. 1 report to DNR on progress towards meeting pollution abatement orders, plant Mgr. Ronald St. Laurent said a complete handling of all solids would be have to wait for completion of the plant expansion

He noted several steps the plan commission was taking or planned to take. He said "the order and the completion date will depend on state approval and will further depend on grant-in-aid" approval for partial funding from the state and federal governments.

The DNR letter asked for a reply to its meeting notice within 10 days (from Nov 11) St. Laurent said the matter would be taken up at the Nov. 23 commission meeting, and that he would do nothing until then Neenah Mayor Roman V Hauser suggested that attorneys from the two cities and commission, public works directors and St. Laurent be authorized to attend the meeting He made the suggestion at the council meeting Wednesday, when the DNR letter was read before the council.

In Menasha, no action has been taken on the DNR letter.

Neenah Project Getting New Life?

NEENAH — Redevelopment efforts for the city's downtown got a breath of new life Wednesday night as the city council took three significant steps including.

—Extending the downtown construction moratorium for an additional six months.

—Approving a building permit for the Wisconsin-Michigan Power Company's proposed customer service center at Church and Wisconsin Avenue

—Agreed to hold a special committee-of-the-whole session with the redevelopment authority (Racon) and the plan commission to discuss the future of downtown redevelopment

"Off the Hook"

The action came after Abbott Byfield, Racon chairman, asked the council to give some direction on redevelopment or "take us off the hook at this point" by removing Racon from the official roles of city committees.

Racon had placed a high priority on extending the moratorium. In a letter to the council, Byfield said, "Extension of the moratorium will prevent any action being taken by property owners that might jeopardize the preparation of redevelopment plans."

Loehning Backing

Ald. Walter 'Doc" Loehning recommended that the moratorium be extended. Loehning is one of the three councilmen who voted to uphold former mayor Donald Hassler's veto of the plan about nine months ago

The special committee-of-the-whole session was recommended by Ald Harold Young, who serves as the council's representative on Racone. "We have to make it (redevelopment's future) a real point of interest very soon."

Ald Donald Steber, who with Loehning and Ald. Robert Frank, defeated the redevelopment plan the first time around, said, "I'd go along with that (Young's recommendation) but we have our hands full right now with the budget."

Byfield agreed with the triple-pronged meeting but also pointed out that if the plan was going to be updated, some money would be needed

In his letter, Byfield proposed a pair of alternatives for the approach and financing

Alternatives

"We see two alternatives First, the hiring of an outside consultant to revamp and prepare redevelopment plans; or, secondly, the hiring by the City of Neenah of a development planner whose first and primary activity would be the preparation of a redevelopment plan through updating or other means.

Format to be Adopted for Health Study

Committee Instructed To Gather Data For County Board

A format to study the pros and cons of a county health commission or county health department is expected to be adopted by the Outagamie County Board's Health Committee at a special meeting Dec. 1.

The committee, licking its wounds after several defeats on the board floor last week, delegates Supv. Kenneth Gibson, Appleton, to draw up a proposed study outline for presentation on Dec. 1.

The committee has been instructed to conduct the study and report back to the county board by July. 1.

On Dec. 3, the committee will meet with the state regional health engineer to discuss the county sanatorium proposal, which also was referred back to committee by the board.

Supv. Herbert Helble, Appleton, Committee chairman, said steps must be taken to change the climate toward the health department on the part of the county board.

Citing the defeat on the board floor of efforts to hire a third county nurse, Helble asked what could be done to inform the board of the county nurse's job.

Mrs. Virginia Lemon, head county nurse, told the committee it was difficult to discuss specific details because they could not use the names of people with whom they work.

She said there was a lack of understanding between the job of a public health nurse and a school staff nurse. She said a teacher may refer to the public health nurse a child suspected of having hearing difficulty.

Mrs. Lemon said their procedure would be to test the child, and then confer with the family to determine how best to solve the problem. A school staff nurse, she said, may be required to function soley to dispense medical assistance to the children in school.

Much of the opposition to hiring a third public health nurse had centered around the argument that most school districts have their own nurses, eliminating the need for the county nurses to go into the schools.

Former Pastor of St. Boniface Married

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The pastor of St. Boniface Roman Catholic Church when the Rev. James Groppi made it the focal point of open housing demonstrations has confirmed that he is married.

Eugene F. Bleidorn, 54, said he married in Chicago Oct. 24 the former Miss Mary Agnes Blonien, 48, a former worker at St. Boniface.

Town May Pay Bergstrom Bills

NEENAH — A month's gap between two sets of evaluations may mean another $100,000 on the tax rolls for Town of Neenah residents.

The City of Neenah stands to profit from recent annexations, including taxes from the $3 million-plus Bergstrom Paper Co. plant, next year.

But, while Bergstrom and other annexed plants will send their tax payments to the city next year, the town still retains their valuation for school-tax-sharing purposes.

Thus, if no changes are made, town taxpayers will have to pick up Bergstrom's school taxes. And the city will get home free with the extra property taxes from the annexed areas.

City Director of Administration Joseph Kraus has been trying to get a clarification of the question from the State Department of Revenue which determines the equalized value of school districts and apportions shares to municipalities.

The problem arises because the current apportionments are made according to valuations set on May 1, 1969. The state says these apportionments are to be used to distribute the 1971 tax levy.

The Bergstrom and other annexations came into the city after the May 1, 1969 deadline so, according to the state's figures, the property is still in the town.

Based on the latest figures from the Department of Revenue, the city is responsible for about 66.7 per cent of the total school tax levy.

With a levy of over $5 million, this means well over 100,000 in taxes may have to be collected by the town despite the fact that the property is in the city.

The state gives the Town of Neenah 10.4 per cent of the school district wealth but the annexations could drop this by 2 per cent, meaning a drop from $500,000 to $400,000 in town's share of the school levy.

And unless the state can come up with some equitable answers, the town may have to pay the larger chunk of the school tax.

City Persuaded to Order Restudy Garage Permit

A spokesman for Garden Court residents succeeded Wednesday in persuading the City Council to order further study of a permit granted for construction of a private garage in Calumet Street right-of-way.

Abraham Sigman, 50 Garden Court, said the city was misusing a state statute allowing permits to be issued for construction in street right-of-way. He said the statute is intended for temporary structures such as grandstands erected for parades.

Noting that the Streets and Sanitation Committee had recommended "receiving and filing" the petition signed by residents including Sigman, the Appleton attorney said that meant "received, filed and forgotten." He pointed out that in addition to objecting to construction of the garage, the petitioners were asking some form of temporary relief from traffic conditions on Memorial Drive that come close to making them captives in their own neighborhood during heavy traffic hours.

The unused Calumet Street right-of-way ends in a ravine behind the home of Louis Chudy, 2 Garden Court, who has built the garage Garden Court residents have urged building the street extension across the ravine to give them access to neighboring Cherry Court, and from there to other outlets onto Memorial Drive.

Cherry Court residents have opposed the plan in the past.

Sigman repeated the petitioners' request for temporary relief such as traffic signals at Grove Street and Memorial Drive, now one of the two exits from the neighborhood. He asked that the request "be not forgotten" by filing away the petition.

A similar request was ordered studied in 1967, he recalled, and he asked to have the results of the study brought to light, or else a new study made.

Ald. William Errington (15th) exercized his privilege of ordering the committee recommendation referred back. Ald. Norman Beyer (20th), streets and sanitation chairman, told Sigman that Chudy signed an agreement to remove the garage when the city gives notice. Allowing the garage to be built doesn't mean the street has been ruled out said Beyer

Sigman said that was the same statement that had been made in past council discussion with residents of the area

County Board Approves $3,700 Request From Drug Council Inc.

The Outagamie County Board last week approved a $3,700 fund request from Drug Council Inc, which has recently adopted a program that will bring drug abuse information to children in the Appleton Schools

The plan involves the use of older students to counsel younger children.

Mrs. David Patterson, co-founder and vice president of the council, told the Outagamie County Board that high school seniors, working in teams of two, would be assigned to each classroom from fourth grade up to act as counselors and to provide information She said they would make monthly visits.

She also detailed the "Appleton Linkletter Plan" which was described as a "blueprint for community action" against the drug abuse problem.

The plan, in the form of brochure, will be ready for distribution when Art Linkletter arrives on Jan 26. She said the brochure will be used nationwide as a format for community action programs.

Linkletter, the television personality who has been devoted to the drug abuse problem since the death of his daughter while under the influence of LSD, will speak at Huntley Elementary School during the day on Jan. 26 and at Appleton East High School that night

Arrangements are being made to have his appearance televised, Mrs Patterson said.

She said one of the functions of the Drug Council is to coordinate efforts of groups interested in the problem in order to avoid duplication and overlap. She added they also have had numerous requests from communities outside Outagamie County to help organize similar programs.

Can a man in Appleton find warmth and happiness in a Gleneagles Coat?

You bet your fur mittens he can.

It's hard to believe that a coat as handsomely styled as this is also capable of warding off these cold, Wisconsin winters. But that's exactly what it does. And you can begin to see the reason when you take a look at that zip-in lining of 100% Warwick wool from Great Britain. Water repellent Tobay cloth of Dacron and cotton resists the stiffest breeze. Leather buttons, flap patch pockets and contrast stitching make this the "go anywhere" coat no wardrobe should be without. Feeling is believing, of course — and nobody can do it justice by only talking about it. Come in and try one on — it may warm up to you.

County Blasts Bar Proposal to Hike Salaries

His remarks came in response to those of Huseby, who contended "they're basically fresh out of law school, and wouldn't get near that in private practice."

Supv. Gene Retzlaff, Hortonville, agreed, saying that "for the first couple of years (private lawyers) starve."

Demands Justification

"Until the bar can say publicly what they say privately" about the inefficiency of courts," I won't give their proposal any support," Supv. John Schreiter, Appleton, joined in.

Woods, claiming that industrial executives "have had to take cuts," demanded to know "where the justification for these kinds of raises comes from."

After little more discussion on the matter, the committee set Dec. 2 for the public hearing with the bar association.

In other action, the courts committee moved to delay the purchase of air-conditioning for the county's squad cars for the first six months of 1971 because they'll be sold before it even gets warm.

The courts committee will send this recommendation to the board's finance committee, which earlier this week okayed the purchase of air-conditioned cars for all of 1971. The cost per car would be $281, for 14 cars.

The sheriff's department, which puts 10,000 to 12,000 miles per month on its squads and other cars, will purchase a total of 14 cars for 1971. The purchases are usually made twice, once in January and again in June or July.

Restrictions Suggested

The courts committee also moved to send a recommendation to the finance committee restricting the use of air-conditioning for the line traffic men only, those officers the committee feels who are actually in the cars for most of their eight-hour shifts.

Huseby maintained that the sheriff's investigators don't spend that much time in their cars to warrant air-conditioning. Schreiter disagreed, saying that investigators "spend two or three hours per day in the cars and are expected to be in business suits."

Huseby said both proposals would go to the finance committee "because we have nothing to say about this" anyway.

The courts committee also voted to have a meeting Dec. 9 with law enforcement personnel and members of the district attorney's office, plus two county judges, for the purpose of airing gripes.

Bar Formed to Handle Public Information on Automobile Insurance

MADISON — A state bar of Wisconsin Committee for Public Information on Automobile Insurance has been formed, it was announced today by Robert W. Lutz of Chilton, attorney and chairman of the bar's negligence law section.

Lutz said the committee's purposes are to keep informed about proposals modifying automobile accident and reparations systems; to inform the public, the legislature and the bar of the nature of the proposals and to suggest means through which the automobile accident reparation and insurance system may be improved.

The bar's new committee is headed by Frank M. Coyne of Madison. Other members are Thomas J. Curran of Mauston, J. Robert Kaftan of Green Bay, John J. Kircher of Cedarburg, Robert L. Habush, Edward J. Simarski, and Bert Hutchison, all of Milwaukee.

COG Efficiency Questioned

combined into one position under the title of executive director."

He also called for eliminating the posts of land use planner and assistant transportation planner.

Adams said he wasn't simply trying to eliminate jobs and had no complaints about the individuals involved, but "I believe that is not the responsibility of the Council of Governments to simply create work to insure maintaining the status quo in terms of the number of postions as they now exist."

Weaken Position

Anderson warned that it would not be a wise move to "weaken our position at this point" in terms of planning staff with impending changes coming, including the possibility of a merging of COG and Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission and their planning staffs.

Eugene Franchett, COG executive director, said that to eliminate planners, the delegates would have to think in terms of planning programs because the men are connected with certain programs. He said to eliminate the regional planning director, who is under Franchett and responsible for coordinating planning efforts, would be to reduce the effectiveness of the organization.

On the budget, those voting for it were Appleton, Kaukauna, Kimberly, Little Chute, Town of Neenah and citizen representatives Ralph Risley, Menasha, and Harold Miller, Town of Grand Chute.

Opposed were City of Menasha, towns of Buchanan and Vanden Broek, City of Neenah and Oshkosh.

Absent were representatives from the towns of Menasha, Harrison and Grand Chute and the villages of Sherwood and Combined Locks.

Similar Vote

The voting was almost identical when Adams called for a vote on combining the executive director and regional planning director positions into one post. A motion to table his motion immediately followed, and this time Oshkosh Common Council President Byron Murken joined the seven in the majority vote.

But Murken had his own complaint.

He said he felt it was "totally unfair" that a community, such as Oshkosh paying $27,600 of the COG budget, should get an equal vote to that of the citizens members, who represent no dollars, and town which pay in considerably less. He didn't refer specifically to any citizens or towns.

He suggested that at least, on the budget, voting should be more based on contribution and size of member community.

Warning from Towns

Anderson agreed with Murken, as did Risley, and the matter was referred to the COG policy committee for study. Joseph DeBruin, Town of Buchanan chairman, warned that towns might quit COG if their voting power is reduced.

Anderson also referred to committee Adams' additional point that the executive director's power to appoint and remove all employes be amended to make this subject to a two-thirds vote by the COG governing body.

On the merger, there was little pro or con expressed but Anderson said that it would depend on many things and shouldn't be rushed into. He did, however, name a committee of Vice Chairman Edward Spierings, Little Chute village president, Murken, and himself as a committee to "sit and listen" to any merger ideas.

He noted that the agencies probably should await the results of the State Rep. David Martin ad hoc committee studying the overlap and duplication of the two agencies.

Explore Merger

Murken said the merger idea should be explored. He said that "more and more I'm convinced that Oshkosh shouldn't be a part of COG unless its programs and philosophy change."

He said he believed that ultimately the area's planning agency would have to be one that is countywide rather than made up of cities.

DeBruin said that he felt the three counties of Outagamie, Winnebago and Calumet would make up the appropriate area for a planning region, with the counties operating it.

Unanswered Questions

Murken commented that the politics should be removed from the planning agency discussion.

In other action, Anderson said he had received a letter from Outagamie County Board Chairman Russell DeLaHunt, Kaukauna, inviting him or a COG representative to the Nov. 24 county executive committee meeting. The committee will discuss at that time what the arrangements will be for its payment of the $61,000 that Outagamie communities in COG would owe for 1971.

Anderson said he also had referred to COG's legal counsel the county decision to join. He had earlier noted that there are unanswered legal questions about the arrangement.

COG delegates voted unanimously to ask the state at a Dec. 2 hearing for a guarantee for a high-quality connection between the Fox Cities and the proposed Milwaukee-Green Bay interstate.

The delegates learned that a pilot program to place studies of police and courts in the schools will be tried next spring at the Neenah and Menasha sixth grades, with total implementation of a juvenile education program by fall, 1972. Grafton Ray, who heads the program, said any suggestions about additions or changes in the curriculum would be welcomed.

New Highway

Chilton to Push For 'Corridor B'

CHILTON — City council members went on record this week favoring corridor "B" for the route of the I-System highway to run between Milwaukee and Green Bay. This resolution will be presented at a public hearing Dec. 2, at Plymouth.

The highway which will be a four-lane, with limited-access, will be just east of Calumet County line or 8½ miles east of Chilton, 2 miles east of Kiel, 5 miles east of New Holstein and 2½ miles east of Brillion.

Police officer Michael Strahl was appointed to the rank of Sergeant, with no increase of pay, by the council. Strahl was recommended by Police Chief Dan Albeydll. He will be in charge when the chief is out of the city. Strahl has been with the force for two years.

The Chilton Tiger football team which completed an undefeated season was commended for a fine record and the championship of the Packerland Conference. The resolution signed by all council members also commended the coaching staff.

Water rate schedules calling for an increase in rates also were given to council for study and recommendation before a hearing is scheduled before the Public Service Commission. The water department has been constantly operating at a loss and increased rates have been requested.

Friend Named Benefactor of Man's Estate

The entire estate of Robert F. Weyenberg, a relative of the founder of the Weyenberg Shoe Manufacturing Co., will go to a friend, according to papers filed today in Outagamie County Probate Court.

Mrs. Evelyn Lemke, 601 E. Wilson St., Appleton, a widow, will receive $96,615.

Weyenberg, who lived at 1811 S. Bouten St., Appleton, died Sept. 16, 1969, at the age of 55. He had been a real estate broker.

Mrs. Lemke was named sole beneficiary in a will dated 11 days before his death. She also had been named in a previous will, dated three years earlier, but not as sole beneficiary.

Objections by relatives to the 1969 will were dismissed by the court.

Weyenberg's gross estate, before probate expenses and federal estate taxes, was $112,227. Nearly half of the estate consisted of stock in the Weyenberg Shoe Co.

$5.9 Million Paid To Idle Workers

MADISON (AP) — Unemployment compensation payments in Wisconsin in October totaled $5.9 million compared with $1.9 million in the same month last year.

The Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations reported the total today, noting that 37,022 workers were idle and claiming benefits last month.

Budget Cuts Lamented

council face a policy decision on whether to adopt the departure from past custom.

The committee adopted without scrutiny the mayor's recommendations for general government funds. Buckley proposed $1,549,615 compared with departmental requests totalling $1,564,689. Due to the small difference, Ald. Robert Roemer (6th) urged adoption so the committee could move on to more difficult matters.

Included in general government are the relatively small-budget accounts for offices such as mayor, clerk, treasurer, attorney, assessor and finance, the city council and some commissions and boards, and City Hall operations and maintenance.

Remaining are police and fire, health and welfare, public works, school board and parks and recreation, development, indebtedness and unclassified budgets.

Proposal Tabled

The committee inconclusively discussed overriding Buckley's deletion of funds for employing four new policemen, with a compromise proposal to hire two held off for later decision. Police Chief Earl O. Wolff's request for a $3,135 TV-type recorder for police identification work was put to a vote and defeated, upholding another Buckley cut.

But the committee authorized transfering $53,600 approved by Buckley to equip police and fire vehicles with remote control devices governing traffic lights, to protect vehicles on emergency runs. Instead, the committee recommends putting the funds toward a fire Department "snorkel" fire truck for fighting high-level fires in tall buildings.

Zero For Welfare

The total cost is estimated by Fire Chief Roland Kuehnl as $80,000. The committee plans to provide the remaining funds in a year, reasoning it will take at least that long before the custom-built rig can be delivered.

Mayor George Buckley also pointed out he has recommended appropriating nothing for administration of the Welfare Department, on the theory that the county will take over the paper work and leave the city providing only the relief funds.

But the mayor said recent County Board action indicates the plan won't be accomplished immediately so he will propose putting enough funds in the budget for a half-year's city administration. A year's expenses are estimated at $29,696.

Roemer voiced skepticism that the county in fact will agree to the takeover and urged Buckley to put the full amount back in the Budget. The mayor remained adamant, however, adding the funds are included in his contingency fund proposal anyway.

Ald. Alvin Tews (5th), finance chairman, complimented Champion's preparation and distribution of budget information this year, saying critics have complained of receiving budget proposals too late in the process to make informed comments. "We have gotten over one bad hurdle," Tews remarked.

Catholic Board Gets Approval From Diocese

GREEN BAY — The newly formed Appleton Area Board of Catholic Education has received the official approval of the Diocesan Board of Education.

At the monthly meeting this week of the diocesan board, the area board by-laws were approved with commendation.

The unanimous approval came after the Rev. Emmet Weber, Xavier High School superintendent and newly appointed executive secretary of the Appleton board, explained the purpose: to get unification without conformity.

It was stressed, however, that more coordination is needed among the schools involved before many problems can be solved.

The parishes, schools and educational organizations represented on the area board are Sacred Heart, St. Bernadette, St. Joseph, St. Mary, St. Pius, St. Therese, St. Thomas More, St. Bernard, Xavier High School and the Appleton Catholic Education Council.

tion of Brown County. Crimes were committed by Baer as far south as Green and Iowa counties.

Appleton detectives charged Baer with theft and burglary in connection with a Dec. 10, 1968, break-in at the Williard Foelker home, 2832 Crestview Drive.

Outagamie County Sheriff's brought counts of theft and burglary on April 11, 1969, in connection with the theft of a tent camper from the former Happ's Mobile Home Sales and Trailer Park on W. Wisconsin Avenue. Just this morning, police introduced a burglary complaint involving a crime at a Town of Greenville home the same day.

Investigators also brought a charge of burglary for breaking into a Grand Chute home on Oct. 9, 1968.

The last crime for which Baer was charge occurred on Oct. 19, 1969, in Cedarburg. The two additional offenses which named Baer this morning also brought guilty pleas from him. He pleaded guilty to the first three Outagamie charges earlier.

Mess Is Too Much, Even as Demonstration

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — The Ecology Club at Saguaro High School, to promote antilittering, had urged students for three days to deliberately spread litter in the school courtyard near a snack bar. The idea was to demonstrate the result if everyone was careless.

Jail Bids by March Seen as Possible

Taking of bids in March for the new Outagamie County jail facility was projected Wednesday night, contingent on approval of plans by the County Board in December.

Final floor plan approval will be sought from the board Dec. 8 for the facility to be located between the present courthouse and annex.

Floor plans for the security and Huber Law detention floors received Special Building Committee approval in the session with representatives of Sauter Seaborne Architects and V. A. Verhulst of the State Division of Corrections.

A meeting has been set for next Wednesday between the committee, architects, Sheriff Calvin Spice, Dist. Atty. James Long and Judge Nick Schaefer to determine final first floor plans.

At the same time, the architects agreed to determine specific costs differences for putting a partial basement in the building.

The basic plans presented to the county board last week had called for a three-story building without any basement for a projected total cost of $1.75 million.

Gene Boltd, of Sauter Seaborne, estimated structural costs, for a partial basement of about 6,500 square feet at $50,000. However, Ben Seaborne noted that if no basement is included about six feet of fill will be needed at the east end of the building at a cost of about $9,000.

The first floor plans as presented to the committee provide space for the sheriff and traffic departments, district attorney and one courtroom. The first floor would open directly into the first floor of the annex.

Seaborne said if a partial basement is included, the planned squad-training room would be put into that space, plus a canteen room and a supply and receiving room. Service areas on the first floor, which Seaborne said were somewhat tight, would then be enlarged.

County Board Chairman Russell DeLaHunt, Kaukauna, suggested the basement be presented as an alternate for bidding. Seaborne suggested waiting until specific cost estimates are obtained and then have the committee decide whether they wanted the basement included. Presenting it as an alternate, he said, almost requires two complete sets of plans and frequently cuts into the potential savings.

Supv. Jerome Hiler, Appleton, committee chairman, also rejected a request from the Finance Committee that the Special Building Committee and the Public Properties Committee study future departmental space needs in the existing courthouse.

Hiler said the Special Building Committee was given the job of building a jail and not of remodeling the courthouse. The Public Properties Committee could look into that if it wanted to, he said. He added that his committee would study the entire space problem if it were so directed by the entire county board but not at the request of another five-man committee.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING IN THE MATTER OF THE LOCATION OF THE NATIONAL SYSTEM OF INTERSTATE AND DEFENSE HIGHWAYS AND THE STATE TRUNK HIGHWAY SYSTEM BETWEEN THE CITY OF MILWAUKEE AND THE CITY OF GREEN BAY, BROWN, OUTAGAMIE, CALUMET, MANITOWOC, FOND DU LAC, SHEBOYGAN, WASHINGTON AND OZAUKEE COUNTIES.

Notice is hereby given to the localities concerned and to all interested persons that the Wisconsin Department of Transportation, Division of Highways, through its Highway Commission, will hold a public hearing in the Plymouth High School Auditorium, Plymouth, Wisconsin, at 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon on Tuesday, December 1, 1970, and at the Reedsville High School Gymnasium, 340 Manitowoc Street, Reedsville, Wisconsin, at 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon on Wednesday, December 2, 1970, at which time all persons will be given opportunity to be heard concerning their views on the Highway Commission's proposal, under the authority of Section 84.29, Wisconsin Statutes to establish and construct a state trunk highway as a route of the National System of Interstate and Defense Highways, hereinafter referred to as the Interstate System. This hearing relates to establishing such routing in Brown, Outagamie, Calumet, Manitowoc, Fond du Lac, Sheboygan, Washington and Ozaukee Counties.

The portion of the Interstate System to be established through this hearing is part of the Milwaukee-Green Bay route authorized by the Congress of the United States and assigned to the United States Department of Transportation, Federal Highway Administration, on December 13, 1968. This section of the Milwaukee-Green Bay route begins about one mile northeast of the village of Saukville in Ozaukee County and continues northerly in a broad corridor to near the south limits of the City of Green Bay, on the east side of the Fox River, in Brown County. The entire section will be discussed and all interested persons will have opportunity to appear and be heard on the entire proposed route at either of the hearing locations mentioned above.

Information on the proposed corridors, including maps, sketches, and studies made by the Division of Highways, as well as documentation filed by others on the proposal, is available for inspection and copying at the Division of Highways' District Offices, 319 South West Avenue, in Waukesha, and 1125 North Military Avenue in Green Bay.

Exhibits depicting the general corridor will be on display at the sites of the hearing and staff members will be present to answer questions from 4:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. on Monday, November 30, 1970, in the Plymouth High School Auditorium, Plymouth, Wisconsin, and on Tuesday, December 1, 1970, from 4:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m., in the Reedsville High School Gymnasium, 340 Manitowoc Street, Reedsville, Wisconsin. All interested persons are invited to attend these informal informational sessions to discuss the proposed project with staff members of the Division of Highways.

All interested persons are invited to attend the public hearing and present concise, relevant oral or written statements concerning the economic, social and environmental impacts and effects of the proposed Interstate Highway location and whether they are or are not in the public interest and consistent with the goals and objectives of such area planning as has been promulgated by the communities.

Provisions will be made for the submission of written statements and other exhibits in place of or in addition to the oral statements presented at the public hearing. This additional written testimony and exhibits may be filed with the Highway Commission if postmarked not later than midnight, December 14, 1970. Mail these statements and exhibits to the Highway Commission Secretary, Wisconsin Division of Highways, 4802 Sheboygan Avenue, Madison, Wisconsin 53702.

Relocation assistance will be available to persons who may be displaced by the later construction when the specific location for the improvement has been established.

Federal aid highway funds may be used as a part of the cost of development and construction.

The Division of Highways will review the testimony and will consider any feasible location of the National System of Interstate and Defense Highways and of the State Trunk Highway System in the general areas indicated in this notice.

Young Hobby Club

'Shoe Box Catch,' Offers Fast Paced Indoor Fun

A spur-of-the-moment game for indoor fun is called "Shoe Box Catch" All the required equipment can be rounded up in a very short time without leaving the house.

A shoe box (minus its lid) is the container and into it you place several articles such as a rubber ball, a set of jackstones, a ball of yarn, several pencils, a piece of art gum eraser and any other such items you choose to use.

The object of the game is for two players to toss the lidless box back and fourth between them without spilling the contents.

If any articles fall out, the blame is on the tosser. Make up your own point values. For example, if the art gum is spilled from the box, the tosser could be charged five points. If one of the jackstones is spilled, he could be charged one point, and so on.

If a player fails to catch the box, he is charged with the total point value of all the objects that fall out of the box.

The first player to be charged with a total of 50 points loses the game.

Term in Reformatory Given for Gun Theft

A 21-year-old Madison man was sentenced to two years in the Green Bay Reformatory after Circuit Court Judge Andrew Parnell reviewed a presentence investigation of the theft of three guns from an Appleton apartment.

Ronald Liebhaber and two others broke into the apartment of Ronald Lueck, 608 N. Division St., on Sept. 3 and took a 30.06 rifle, a 12 gauge shotgun and a 122 caliber single-shot rifle from a closet. Parnell earlier found Liebhaber guilty of the burglary after he changed his plea to no contest.

The state's key witness during an Oct. 9 preliminary hearing, Thomas James Kilsdonk, 18, told the court they took the weapons intending to sell them in Madison. Kilsdonk, formerly of Appleton, was placed on a year's probation Sept. 28 for concealing the stolen guns.

Liebhaber, who has been in the Outagamie County jail since he was convicted on the felony late last month, was granted two months credit on the reformatory term for the time he served in jail.

Before imposing sentence, Parnell noted Liebhaber has been in trouble "most of your life. I don't know how you live," he told the unemployed man, "but the charges indicate you burglarized to maintain yourself."

"You are still young enough, given an opportunity to make good of yourself," Parnell commented.

"While it wasn't actually mentioned, the crime possibly had a more serious purpose than just the theft of three guns," Parnell commented.

By WARREN HARDING
As Told To
The ASSOCIATED PRESS

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (AP) — What's it like up there? It's a feeling of detachment from everyday life. It's so different. You're so removed, so isolated.

It seems like the things you don't care about disappear, at least to myself that happens. Things I care about I think about very much, people I love, people I like, things I like to do, things I can't do right at that particular time.

This climb, we spent so much time on the wall, this is really pointed out

I missed my girl so much. I missed many of my good friends so much. I even missed my car.

Single Thought

After a while the climbing becomes sort of mechanical, sort of a drag, you might say. I'm drilling a bolt, and I'm thinking about anything else. Things I'll be doing in the future.

There are things you notice. We noticed hawks. I even saw an eagle one day, soaring around. We heard little frogs creaking. They live up in the rocks. Little things like this.

You ask why I climb I've tried to explain this the best I can, and never do a very good job. I always come up with something inane.

No Distinction

Mountain climbers. It's the same thing, achievement in whatever medium you somehow happen to fall into. I see no particular distinction. I think psychologically it's all the same motivation. The guy that wants to make a million bucks in a junk yard has the same motivation basically as a person who wants to beat his brains out on a rock wall.

Dean Caldwell and I hit it off pretty well. A long climb is a good test of one's compatibility for a person. We came off much better friends than we started, and we started out rather well.

We have plans for things in South America, in the Andes in the summer, and in Venezuela in the fall. We want to climb the big cliff adjacent to Angel Falls in eVnezuela It's very comparable to El Capitan.

Climbers Look For New Peaks To Conquer

Pair Reach Summit After Scaling Sheer Face of El Capitan

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (AP) — The Heroes of El Capitan celebrated their 27-day climb up the sheer side of the 3,000-foot granite monolith and began casting glances today at new peaks to conquer.

Warren Harding and Dean Caldwell sipped champagne and munched fried chicken—their first hot food since Oct. 23—and declared their first ascent of El Capitan's "Wall of the Morning Light" would be their last.

"I feel great," said Harding, 46, of West Sacramento, Calif., as he arrived on the El Capitan crest just before noon Wednesday, smiling broadly through a heavy black and grey beard.

But when a reporter asked Harding, the dean of Yosemite climbers, whether he'd repeat the ascent he said, "No way, man!"

Try Others

Caldwell, 27, of Portland, Ore., commented, "I don't think I want to do the same one again. But I'll do others like it."

They have their sights on a climbing expedition to South America.

The climbers said they hoped to form an expedition next June to attempt a new ascent route on a 20,000-foot ice peak in the Peruvian Andes called Jirishanca. Then they want to try the unclimbed rock wall along the Angel Falls in Venezuela.

Their first reaction on reaching El Capitan's summit was astonishment at the size of the welcoming crowd, about 75 fellow climbers and news reporters who got to the top the easy way —by a trail on the opposite side.

400 Pounds

"God, I don't believe it!" said Caldwell as he arrived on top first at 11:34 a.m. Wednesday. He turned away and calmly resumed the chore of hauling up the 400 pounds of gear the men had carried 3,000 vertical feet and bringing up Harding on the climbing rope at 11:53 a.m. Then their girl friends rushed to the men and hugged and kissed them.

The spot was less than 200 feet from where Harding emerged on the first ascent of the face of El Capitan by an easier route 12 years ago this month.

The reunion of the climbers and the girls began a celebration that lasted into the night and delayed their return to the

IRS Willing to Figure Out Some People's Tax Returns

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service, a stickler for accuracy, is offering to figure income taxes free for 30 million Americans, 3.6 million of whom fouled up their returns last year.

The IRS said Wednesday a taxpayer could qualify if he earns no more than $20,000 a year, takes the standard 10 per cent deduction rather than itemized deductions, and has income only from salaries, wages, dividends, interest, pensions and annuities.

In another move aimed at easing the pain of separating citizens from taxes the IRS unveiled a revamped standard tax return form—form 1040. This year the instruction on how to fill blanks are in a separate booklet, not on the back of the sheet where last year's aggravated form-fillers were forced to keep peeking.

Taxpayers who qualify for free figuring can simply fill out vital information about themselves, list their income, and send in the return, along with W-2 forms.

Send Bill

The government does the rest. If a taxpayer's withholding doesn't cover the amount owed, he will get a bill. If he's due a refund, that will be sent along.

If the taxpayer catches the government overcharging him, he could demand a refund, along with 6 per cent interest

But if the government pays a taxpayer too large a refund the IRS could collect the overage, but no interest if the money was paid quickly

In the past, the IRS offers to figure income tax had been extended to Americans making up to $5,000. It estimated 30 million qualify for free figuring under the new rules, but wouldn't guess how many will take advantage of the offer.

In 1969, it said, errors were discovered on 3.6 million of the 78 million income tax returns filed. "These errors resulted from taxpayers using the wrong table, line, or column to figure his tax," it said.

Challenge Expected On Abortion Order

MILWAUKEE (AP) — An order by a federal three judge panel prohibiting prosecution of Dr. Sidney Babbitz on a charge of performing an illegal abortion will probably be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court.

"I presume that we will appeal directly to the U.S. Supreme Court," said Deputy Dist. Atty. Allen Samson of Milwaukee County.

"We recognize the federal court ruling, but we also recognize the right to contest it to the highest court," said Deputy Atty. Gen. Arvid Sather.

Trial Scheduled

The retired Milwaukee physician, who now lives in Hollandale, Fla., had been scheduled to stand trial Nov. 30

U.S. District Judges Myron Gordon and John Reynolds of Milwaukee and Otto Kerner of the 7th Circuit Court of Appeals at Chicago ruled in March that the Wisconsin law prohibiting abortion in the early months of pregnancy was unconstitutional.

"We find our declaration and judgment have been completely disregarded by state authorities," they said in their new decision Wednesday.

"Because of the state's tacit threats of prosecution, it follows that the general citizenry of Wisconsin will be obliged to disregard our judgment of unconstitutionality. In this sense, we regretfully observe our hope that the state would vindicate Dr. Babbitz and others in his position has not been realized."

The panel said courtesy required that state authorities pending an appeal desist from prosecuting Babbitz and others similarly charged

Budget Requests Up $2 Million

MADISON (AP) — A major tax increase will be necessary in Wisconsin soon if budget requests of all state agencies are approved, state revenue secretary James Morgan predicted Wednesday.

Morgan also said that if the increase comes in the form of income tax hikes, the $7,000 to $15,000 a year wage earner "will be a big part of the (new) tax base."

The secretary told the Joint Committee on Education in Wisconsin that budget requests of state agencies for the next two years total about $2 billion, up $500 million from the current level.

"I don't know how close the present revenue system is to covering this increase," Morgan said. "All I know is it won't cover a $500 million increase

The proposed budgets will be presented soon to Democratic Gov.-Elect Patrick J. Lucey and then to the 1971 legislature

Killed in Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — The death of another Wisconsin soldier in action in the Southeast Asian war was reported Wednesday by the Defense Department He was identified as Army Spec 4 John G Strachota of Milwaukee

Quick Cambodia Aid Okay Asked

Support For Israel Connected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania today warned critics of President Nixon's $155-million aid program for Cambodia that opposition could jeopardize $500 million earmarked for Israel.

"If they want aid to Israel," Scott told reporters, "they had better support the whole bill."

And he also contended that "the real issue here is that some people with presidential ambitions have no issue here unless they try to revive Cambodia . . . for personal and political reasons."

The funds for Cambodia, and $65 million for South Vietnam, were part of a $1-billion boost in foreign aid that Nixon asked Congress to enact this year.

About half the total, some $500 million, would go to help Israel build her military strength

Urgent Need

But even Republicans acknowledged it might be difficult, despite "urgent needs" Nixon cited in his special aid message, to win enactment of the package during the current, lame-duck session of Congress.

Sen. Gordon Allot of Colorado, chairman of the Republican Policy Committee, said he had some doubts that action would come this year.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, and a leading critic of Southeast Asian policies, wouldn't guess at a timetable.

"This is a very serious enlargement of our responsibilities in Southeast Asia, and one that deserves the most careful scrutiny to determine if it is in the interests of this country to assume such an enlargement," Fulbright said.

Wednesday Briefing

Nixon briefed Senate leaders on his proposal at the White House Wednesday. At a separate background briefing for newsmen a high administration official outlined the administration's rationale, saying past aid to Cambodia already has helped the Vietnam war effort.

The official told newsmen three North Vietnamese divisions have been pulled out of South Vietnam and into Cambodia, and another was withdrawn from South Vietnam into south Laos.

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Democratic leader, said after talking with Nixon he was willing to consider the President's proposal provided it would help speed withdrawal of American troops.

Fulbright said the Cambodia proposal looked to him like only the first installment of an aid program.

Supplement Efforts

"It is essential that we supplement Cambodia's own efforts by providing resources which are critically needed to enable it to continue to defend itself," Nixon said. "Its ability to do so is a vital element in the continued success of Vietnamization."

The President asked for $70 million in economic support and $85 million in military assistance "to meet Cambodia's urgent needs" between now and next June 30.

Nixon said 70 per cent of the military aid would be for ammunition Mansfield said the request involved only small arms for the Cambodians

New Responsibility

But Fulbright said if the request is granted, "we are undertaking a whole new responsibility to carry Cambodia along like Vietnam"

Nixon also asked for $100 million to restore aid he said had been diverted to Cambodia from such accounts as Greece, Turkey and Taiwan

About $52 million of the transfers had not been disclosed before

Meat Main Factor

Nation's Food Bill Soars

WASHINGTON (AP) — Meat-hungry Americans will spend a record $114.6 billion for food this year the Agriculture Department estimated today.

The eight per cent jump, sharpest in 20 years, can be laid mainly to an estimated 5.5 per cent rise in food prices. But population increases and a rising appetite among consumers for more meat also are factors, the department said.

High meat prices don't dull the appetite, the report indicates. Consumption of beef, which has been setting price records this year, will be 113 pounds per person this year, up 2½ pounds from 1969, the report estimates

Pork eaters will consume 65 4 pounds, only a fraction of a pound more than in 1969; veal will be down and lamb will hold even. Chicken, benefiting competitively from higher meat prices, is put at 41 7 pounds, up from 39 last year.

Farmer's Share

The report was the second in a recent series relating consumer food costs to what farmers are paid Earlier the department said retail prices are expected to continue rising next year but that the farmer's share of the consumer food dollar will not.

Based on disposable income, consumers this year are expected to spend about 16.5 cents of each take-home dollar on food. This would be slightly less than in 1969 and continues a downward trend.

Although cautious, the report said consumers can expect "a large decline" in pork prices if middleman margins are brought in line with recent price cuts farmers have taken in the hog market.

'Not Afraid to Strike'

Demands of Steelworkers Big Wage Increase Leads

PITTSBURGH (AP) — United Steelworkers President I. W. Abel has taken the wraps off major 1971 contract demands and left little doubt his 1.2 million-member union would strike if necessary to back them up.

Although a "substantial wage increase" will be a major issue in the bargaining, Abel said, priority goes to a cost-of-living escalator.

"We waived this in 1969, and as a result the membership has suffered ever since," he said.

Abel spoke Wednesday at a news conference where a 14-page list of union demands was unveiled.

4-Day Week

Other demands disclosed by Abel include cutting the five-day, eight-hour work week to four days and improved pension-health benefits.

The major demands were hammered out during a two-day session of the wage policy committee, made up of 163 elected local union representatives.

Asked the mood of the steelworkers, Abel said: "The attitude and frame of mind of our wage policy committee these last two days indicate they would strike to gain the equity they feel they have lost these past three years.

"There is no question in my mind that my men will strike . . . if necessary.

"However," he added, "we hope to avoid a strike."

But Abel said the union will not push to eliminate its present no-strike agreement with the industry while noting there was considerable pressure in some union quarters to have it stricken from the 1971 contract.

The clause stipulates complaints must be submitted and settled through grievance channels.

Abel indicated he personally was not opposed to the no-strike clause, saying that when he was a local president he went through 29 strikes in a year "and that's how I got my gray hair."

The last strike in the basic steel industry was a 116-day shutdown in 1959.

Asked whether he thought the tentative agreement reached by the United Auto Workers with General Motors would affect the steelworkers' talks, Abel said: "Sure, it will have some effect on our bargaining, but to what extent, I can't say."

Mitchell Testifies

FT. HOOD, Tex. (AP) — With tears glistening on his cheeks, S. Sgt. David Mitchell testified today he shot no one in a South Vietnamese hamlet during an alleged massacre in 1968, and he saw no one shot.

Ossie Brown, Mitchell's lawyer, asked him one question:

"Did you shoot any Vietnamese people . . .?"

"No, sir . . ." Mitchell interrupted.

". . . in a ditch at My Lai 4 on March 16, 1968?"

"No, sir, Mr. Brown, I did not."

"I tender the witness," Brown said.

Under cross-examination by Capt. Michael Swann, Mitchell said he helped gather up approximately 30 Vietnamese civilians.

He said he took the civilians to a ditch outside My Lai, left them there in the custody of Paul Meadlo, Terre Haute, Ind., and then set up a perimeter 50 or 60 meters beyond the ditch with his squad.

Mitchell said 1st Lt. William L. Calley Jr. later ordered him to go back into the village "to check it out."

"Did you see anybody shot that day?" Swann asked.

Tax Levy Up $2.72

$382,780 Budget Set for Public Hearing in Chilton

CHILTON — A proposed 1971 city budget of $382,780 has been set for public hearing at 8 p.m. Dec. 2 in the city hall.

A city tax levy of $52,169 would be required if the budget proposals are passed and a total tax levy of $685,632 would be required for all purposes.

The proposed tax rate is $35 per $1000 assessed valuation, an increase of $2.72 over last year's rate.

The proposed city spending has been cut by some $15,630 over last year.

Proposed revenues for 1971 are expected to total $295,611, down $13,458 from 1970 revenues.

City officials recommended taking $35,000 from the surplus funds to meet the proposed tax levy of $52,169. The 1970 levy was $87,169.

The largest increase is in the school district levy, which is up $25,630 over the 1970 total to $496,809.

Other fixed levies include Vocational, Technical and Adult Education Dist. 12, $22,680, up $1,076; state tax $4,649, up $330, and county tax, $104,324, up $24,619.

With cuts made at the city level, the total levy is up $53,803 over 1970. Capital outlays were $26,780 less than this year's total of $58,350 due to water tower construction, blacktopping of some streets and purchase of a fire truck required this year.

As of October 31, the city general account contained a cash balance of $90,255 and city general investments totaled $215,262, for a grand total of $305,517.

In December of 1969, a total of $90,000 was transferred from the general fund surplus and earmarked for special outlays.

This $90,000, plus $99,251 in nonlapsing funds, totals $189,251 in ear-marked or non-lapsing funds. Estimated receipts for November and December were set at about $40,000 and estimated disbursements of about $75,000 would leave a balance of about $81,266.

Several major construction and improvement projects are slated for budgetary funding, including construction of an incinerator, rebuilding of Grand Street and West Main Street, a State Street bridge project and improvements at Hobart Park. Estimated cost of the projects has been set at about $350,000. Another anticipated expense will be made with the removal of phosphurous from the sewage plant, estimated at about $35,000 a year.

According to Arnold Weller, chairman of the finance committee, the city will have to borrow a great share of the money to keep taxes down. He also said it was questionable whether additional money from the surplus could be used to reduce this year's rate.

Sentencing Set On 33 Bogus Check Charges

Appleton Man Pleads Guilty, Held Without Bond

Thirty-three worthless checks, totaling over $550, will be considered Dec. 1 when Michael Beson, 22, is sentenced for passing them in Outagamie and Winnebago counties.

Beson appeared Tuesday before County Judge Nick F. Schaefer for arraignment on two original charges of issuing two bogus checks at the Double O Super Valu Store, 2731 N. Meade St., on July 31 and Aug. 1. They amounted to $20.

Before Schaefer found him guilty of those offenses Tuesday, however, three counts of passing bogus checks in Winnebago County on Aug. 5, 6, and 7 were consolidated in this county. They totaled $90. The five checks were drawn on the Northern State Bank in Appleton.

Additionally, 28 other worthless checks counts were read into the record. They had been passed in Outagamie County. Beson, formerly of 215 N. Oneida St., pleaded guilty to all the charges. The 33 checks totaled $553.59.

Beson will have a trial Monday on two additional charges, both misdemeanors. Appleton police brought a charge of driving without a valid drivers license Aug. 9 after stopping him on State 96, east of the Ballard Road.

His estranged wife signed a disorderly conduct complaint against him after an Aug. 22 incident on the premises of a Town of Vandenbroek tavern. She reportedly suffered a cut above the left eye when he struck her during a quarrel.

Schaefer ordered that Beson be held in the Outagamie County jail without bond pending the return of a presentence investigation. He stipulated that he could be released prior to sentencing, on orders from an agent of the State Department of Health and Social Services.

State GOP Spent $1.1 Million in Defeat

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The Republican state organization spent $1.1 million and ran up a deficit of about $600,000 as it fought unsuccessfully to hold control of the legislature and the governorship under Democratic attack in the elections this fall, its chairman said here Wednesday.

In an interview striking for its realism and candor, Reed Coleman, chairman of the state GOP executive committee, met with reporters at the conclusion of the long committee meeting. This was the first held since the Nov. 3 elections, the most painful defeat of the Republicans in this state in more than 30 years.

Coleman outlined plans for reconstruction of the battered party and said he has made preparations for wiping out the huge financial deficit by mid-1974. He pledged that his party will offer constructive alternatives to the policies of the Democratic administration-elect of Patrick J. Lucey, and said he already has taken steps to rebuild the party machine through the creation of several "front line" advisory and consultative agencies.

The youthful party committee chief said he found some solace in the fact that his party was comparatively successful in holding county courthouse seats and now is in about the same position in that regard as it was in 1964.

But a few moments later he conceded that the loss of the governorship, at a time when the tenure of that key office will be extended to four years, for the first time, was the most important blow to the party.

He described the committee's deliberations as thorough but constructive, said the emphasis will be on reconstruction rather than recrimination, and declined to be drawn into statements that the record of the Republican legislature was the key factor leading to party reversals.

Pressed on the latter point, he said Republican legislative leaders and the administration of Gov. Warren Knowles last year had some difficulties "in the process of getting there." He said they managed to come to mutually acceptable settlements of their differences, but that an "impression of conflict" was created that probably was hurtful to the party.

The Republicans also were damaged by the recent rise in unemployment which gave the Democrats some additional campaign volunteers, he said. The Democrats used the "Republican book in campaign organization and in recruiting candidates," he continued and a party in power always is more awkward in defense of its works than is the opposition party with "simplistic attacks."

Coleman echoed the views of most of his partisan associates when he agreed with a reporter's observation that Atty. Gen. Robert Warren of Green Bay increasingly will be depended upon to be the party spokesman among the remaining state GOP officeholders.

Coleman said the 1971 Republican state convention will be held at Wisconsin Rapids May 15, and left the impression that he feels an obligation to assist in the liquidation of the party debt contracted by him and his associates if the executive committee chosen at that convention wants him to remain in the chairmanship.

He summarized the concensus of the committee to a commitment to "a positive approach," and a desire for Republicans in office to "avoid the role of obstructionist." The comment came a few hours after Rep. Harold Froehlich of Appleton, generally regarded as the author of some of the Republican legislature's differences with retiring Republican Gov. Knowles, was easily returned to the top echelon of the Republicans' battered Assembly minority as its 1971 floorleader.

Jeff Zutz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo C. Zutz, Brillion, has been awarded the rank of Eagle, scoutings highest award. Zutz is shown with his parents shortly after receiving the award during Court of Honor rites at Brillion Community Center.

More Cuts Planned

Budget Outlays Trimmed By New London Council

NEW LONDON — Members of the City Council worked into the early hours of Thursday morning on their proposed budget for 1971.

The original budget called for expenditures of $823,343.90, with revenues of $409,178.47, leaving $414,165 to be raised by taxes. After a six hour session the aldermen had already cut $21,028 from the expenditures and added $4,230 to the revenues, trimming the amount to be raised in taxes to $388,837.

Mayor S. W. Krostue pointed out however, that there were many more changes to be made in expenditures before the budget was in its final stages and ready to be taken up at a public hearing, Dec. 8.

Included will be a reduction in the costs of operating the department of public works, following a move to discontinue construction by the department and go to maintance only.

The move is expected to reduce the expenditures by about $26,000. This action will be taken in the next few days as final revisions in the budget are made. Included with the cutback will be a cutback in the retirement fund of about $3,000.

Other Areas

Other areas questioned and to be checked include the cost of maintance of the fire trucks; equipment repairs and supplies and gas and oil and fuel for the sewage plant; the amount allocated for repair of streets and alleys and crushed stone for the department of public works, as well as curb and gutter and sidewalks, sidewalks and crosswalks, storm sewers and drains, new sanitary sewer costs, and machinery repairs. The park department will be asked to reduce manpower in return for a bigger mower.

Other items will be reduced because the funds for them have already been designated in the 1970 budget. These funds will be budgeted as carry-overs from 1970.

Although figures were not complete, the council began working on the budget with the knowledge that if it were accepted as presented, the tax rate would rise about $10.018 per $1,000 assessed valuation. This meant the taxpayer would pay a city tax of $29.437, compared to the 1970 rate of $19.419.

This would have coupled with estimated increases from the state of 50 per cent to $1.497; Waupaca county $16.332, from $14.452; School district $43.218 from $42.281, and vocational of $2.223 from $2.173.

As a result, the taxpayer would be paying $93.121 after a state credit of $4.586 (last year's scale) compared to a rate of $74.737 in 1970. This would be a 24 per cent increase overall, with the city responsible for a 51.4 per cent increase in its budget.

Cut By One Fourth

With its cutting, the council may have reduced the increase from 51 per cent to about 25 per cent.

The largest increase in expenditures in the budget is from the city's indebtedness, which increased from $43,002 to $92,602. There is a $19,000 increase in the field of protection of persons and property, with much of that coming from raises for the police department. A request for an additional man on the force was denied, reducing the increase about $6,000.

Major expenditure proposals of the various city budgetary divisions are: general government $146,105, up from $134,816; protection of persons and property $160,443, up from $141,441; health, welfare and sanitation $64,860, down from $65,560; transportation $238,898, up from $210,430.

Education and recreation $59,771, up from $56,902; conservation and development $5,079, up from $2,000; indebtedness $92,602, up from $43,002.

Revenue Down

Public service enterprises $14,997, up from $14,349; unclassified $2,850, up from $950; expenditures for outlay $27,735, down from $74,816; unclassified $1,000, down from $39,579 and contingent $10,000 the same.

Most significant revenues other than the direct taxes are income tax from the state of $170,000, about $10,000 less than the $180,000 received in 1970; municipal utility tax $39,050, up about $2,000; state aid for local streets $49,000, up $2,000 from last year; and a utility dividend of $25,000, the same as last year.

Controversy Brought Up Again

Petition Calls for Review of Waupaca Engineer's Pay

WAUPACA — The salary of City Engineer Iver Oerter during 1971 will be reviewed by the finance committee and the $18,000 salary set for the coming year may be cut back to the $16,000 he is presently receiving.

At the City Council meeting Wednesday, a petition signed by Aldermen Waldemar Johnson (2nd), Edsil Huntoon (1st), Marlyn Looker (3rd) and Ray Roe (2nd) was presented.

The petition recommends that the salary of the city engineer and director of public works be $1,333.34 per month for the 1971 calendar year, a salary comparable to the $16,000 per year which is now being paid.

There are no other funds from any department of Waupaca City government appropriated over and above this amount of salary, the petition further states.

His benefits (which total approximately $1,200 per year) are to remain the same. Finally, it notes that there is no provision to pay any expense allowance as a means of salary compensation except those expenses for which receipts can be presented.

Petition Explained

Roe asked for time to explain the petition, and told council: "Since Oerter's salary was raised there has been a lot of controversy about it. The big thing right now, and we have obtained two attorney's opinions on it, is whether or not it was legal because it did not pass by two-thirds vote.

"If the whole action were thrown out - his salary would revert back to what it was before, $13,000 or $14,000," Roe stated. "If the whole action was legal, then I don't think we are in position to disturb it.

"The reason for bringing this up is to get the legal clarification, Roe said, to find out whether the action was legal, passing by a 6 to 4 vote, or whether it had to be two-third majority vote.

"I will be the first one to say that if the council action was legal with that majority, then I am not in favor of disturbing it," he said.

Compromise Measure

"If it was not legal, rather than opening it up to a big taxpayers' suit, this petition is a compromise measure which will settle it at $16,000. I don't know if atty. Laurie Anderson's opinion on this would settle the matter, as the two lawyers consulted have opposite opinions on the action."

Mayor Edward Kramer referred the petition to the finance committee for study, and to take appropriate action and return it to the council for whatever further action is necessary.

In other action, the council annexed 8.8 acres of land in the Town of Lind. This territory, on which well No. 5 is located is temporarily zoned agricultural. It became a part of the 5th Ward of the city.

New Highway

Chilton to Push For 'Corridor B'

CHILTON — City council members went on record this week favoring corridor "B" for the route of the I-System highway to run between Milwaukee and Green Bay. This resolution will be presented at a public hearing Dec. 2, at Plymouth.

The highway which will be a four-lane, with limited-access, will be just east of Calumet County line or 8½ miles east of Chilton, 2 miles east of Kiel, 5 miles east of New Holstein and 2½ miles east of Brillion.

Police officer Michael Strahl was appointed to the rank of Sergeant, with no increase of pay, by the council. Strahl was recommended by Police Chief Dan Albeydll. He will be in charge when the chief is out of the city. Strahl has been with the force for two years.

The Chilton Tiger football team which completed an undefeated season was commended for a fine record and the championship of the Packerland Conference. The resolution signed by all council members also commended the coaching staff.

Water rate schedules calling for an increase in rates also were given to council for study and recommendation before a hearing is scheduled before the Public Service Commission. The water department has been constantly operating at a loss and increased rates have been requested.

Jail Bids by March Seen as Possible

Taking of bids in March for the new Outagamie County jail facility was projected Wednesday night, contingent on approval of plans by the County Board in December.

Final floor plan approval will be sought from the board Dec. 8 for the facility to be located between the present courthouse and annex.

Floor plans for the security and Huber Law detention floors received Special Building Committee approval in the session with representatives of Sauter Seaborne Architects and V. A. Verhulst of the State Division of Corrections.

A meeting has been set for next Wednesday between the committee, architects, Sheriff Calvin Spice, Dist. Atty. James Long and Judge Nick Schaefer to determine final first floor plans.

At the same time, the architects agreed to determine specific costs differences for putting a partial basement in the building.

Basic Plan

The basic plans presented to the county board last week had called for a three-story building without any basement for a projected total cost of $1.75 million.

Gene Foltd, of Sauter Seaborne, estimated structural costs, for a partial basement of about 6,500 square feet at $50,000. However, Ben Seaborne noted that if no basement is included about six feet of fill will be needed at the east end of the building at a cost of about $9,000.

The first floor plans as presented to the committee provide space for the sheriff and traffic departments, district attorney and one courtroom. The first floor would open directly into the first floor of the annex.

Seaborne said if a partial basement is included, the planned squad-training room would be put into that space, plus a canteen room and a supply and receiving room. Service areas on the first floor, which Seaborne said were somewhat tight, would then be enlarged.

County Board Chairman Russell DeLaHunt, Kaukauna, suggested the basement be presented as an alternate for bidding. Seaborne suggested waiting until specific cost estimates are obtained and then have the committee decide whether they wanted the basement included. Presenting it as an alternate, he said, almost requires two complete sets of plans and frequently cuts into the potential savings.

Supv. Jerome Hiler, Appleton, committee chairman, also rejected a request from the Finance Committee that the Special Building Committee and the Public Properties Committee study future departmental space needs in the existing courthouse.

Hiler said the Special Building Committee was given the job of building a jail and not of remodeling the courthouse. The Public Properties Committee could look into that if it wanted to, he said. He added that his committee would study the entire space problem if it were so directed by the entire county board but not at the request of another five-man committee.

Stockbridge School District

State Urges Reorganization

STOCKBRIDGE — The Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction has classified the Stockbridge School District as "basic," and as such it will receive state aids at the integrated level, according to Superintendent of Schools Donald Meyers.

Meyers told members of the board of education Tuesday that the state had commended the district for its efforts to improve its curriculum, but urged reorganization with another district because of its size limitations. A report from the state said that improvement was needed in enrichment and expansion of services and equipment.

Meyers explained that improvement in the school's English program is planned. Two years of basic English will be offered and single semester courses in the third and fourth years. Business English is also planned for those looking to careers in the business world.

In response to a request from the Calumet County New Hope Day Care Center for home speech therapy from the CESA-10 therapist for a day care center student, the board ruled that the student could use the services offered at the school but that the teacher should not go to the home.

In other business, the board agreed to hire James Ecker to haul crushed rock and to grade the school grounds to eliminate muddy conditions there.

Victor Miller, St. Nazianz attorney, will be retained as legal counsel at a cost of $300 a year for the first year. The contract would entitle the district to receive current information on school law.

No action was taken on bids ranging from $1,925 to $2,250 to reshingle the roof on the old portion of the school.

Mrs. Clem Schumacher presented information gathered by Mrs. Rosalie Parsons on information pertaining to the Wittenberg - Birnamwood consolidation. Several persons from Stockbridge and Hilbert visited in order to learn the course of action taken there. No one from the Stockbridge administration participated, and Mrs. Schumacher said the Hilbert administrator, Richard Yenchesky, had asked that the information be made available to the board.

Chamber Names Four Committees

NEW LONDON — The Chamber of Commerce committee on committees has named the chairmen for the coming year.

The group discussed each committee and its function, then eliminated four of the eight committees, incorporating their jobs into the remaining ones.

Newly appointed co-chairmen are Charles Schmallenberg and Karl "Skip" Hammerberg, public relations, Charles Borchardt and Mrs. Harold Roepke, retail, Gene Vander Zee and Marlin Fuerst, city improvement, and Wallace Gruening, membership chairman.

The board of directors also elected new officers. William Borchardt will serve as president, Art Schmidt, vice-president, and Harold Rieckmann secretary-treasurer.

All Will Function

Borchardt said that all committees would function this year. He noted that they would have to, since the chamber could not survive another year of inactivity on the part of the committees.

He reported that the chairmen would contact various members to serve on their committees. He added that he hoped no one would agree to serve on a committee if he did not intend to.

During the past year only one committee, retail, met. At the annual meeting members were told that the organization needed full cooperation in order to continue. At that time those present indicated a willingness to work to get the chamber back on its feet.

The next meeting of the board of directors will be at 7 a.m. Dec. 9 at the Franklin House.

Kids Visit Gobblers

Turkey Is Meat 'With No Fur On'

BY HAZEL THIEL
Post-Crescent Correspondent

HILBERT — What does a turkey do when 82 five-year-olds visit him during his final days? "He gobbles" — "He says Hello."

Oblivious of the ax that awaits them, turkeys at Northland Turkey Farm near Chilton gobbled and posed for kindergarten pupils from Hilbert Public Schools recently to the delight of all.

"He's got four toes — he's got a little toe too," observed Shelly Jacobs.

Into the barn, alive with bronze and white birds, curious youngsters peered at the soon-to-be Thanksgiving Day feasts.

"What's that funny thing on his head?" "Look at his big legs," excited children bobbed from window to window looking at the feathered flock.

So that the children could get a really good look at a turkey,. one was brought outside and the youngsters circled around it.

After a tour of the barn, the children went to the store on the farm where dressed birds were displayed, along with turkey portions smoked turkey rolls and other delicacies.

Feathers were given to the teachers, Mrs. Harold Wenzel, Brillion, and Mrs. Irwin Lerche, Potter, to be used in art projects.

Several children picked up a handful of feathers as they toured the area. Jamie Krueger plans to use his "to be an Indian" in the Thanksgiving Day program at school.

Back at school the children discussed their experiences and "talked turkey" with their teachers over a glass of milk and cookies.

One diminutive girl connected the big dinner with the turkeys in the barn. "They were meat in the store, but they had no fur on," she said.

Seven schools will be represented. Chilton, Kiel, Hilbert, Reedsville, New Holstein, Valders, and Brillion.

Each school will be allowed to sent thirty representatives. The rally will begin at 8 a.m. on Saturday at the high school and will be ended with a noon luncheon.

Hilbert Girls' Volleyball Team Loses

Eliminated From Competition at Ripon Tournament

HILBERT — The girls' volleyball team was eliminated from the tournament Saturday at the double elimination event at Ripon. Schools entered were Ripon, Oakfield, Fond du Lac, North Fond du Lac and Hilbert.

Hilbert's first team got off to a slow start, and was easily defeated in the first two games by North Fond du Lac.

In its second match, the team met and defeated Ripon, but the next two games found Ripon on top, and Hilbert's first team was eliminated for the day.

The only victory of the day came with the second team. It played North Fond du Lac for its match and lost the first two games, giving North Fond du Lac the match.

The second match brought more hope to the Hilbert girls when they defeated Ripon in the first two games of the match. The third match put Hilbert against Oakfield. The numerous mistakes cost Hilbert the match and the right to stay in the tournament.

Monday the girls will conclude the season when they face Reedsville here at 7 p.m.

Clintonville Physicist Honored

CLINTONVILLE — A crater on the moon has been named for the late Dr. William F. Meggers, a native of Clintonville, who died in 1966 at the age of 78. Dr. Meggers was a recognized international authority in the field of physics.

Dr. Meggers was the first recipient of the Alumnus Honoris Award in 1956 given by the Clintonville High School. He served as a spectroscopist with the National Bureau of Standards in Washington, D. C.

This year the first presentation of the William F. Meggers medal for "Distinguished Work in Spectroscopy" was awarded to Dr. George R. Harrison in Miami on Oct. 7. Mrs. Meggers attended the presentation.

In the November issue of "Sky and Telescope," the names of men for whom craters on the moon have been named are given, and Dr. Meggers' name was among them. The craters were named through action taken by the International Astronomical Union last August at Brighton, Mass. The approximate latitude and longitude, in degrees, for the crater named for Meggers are 24N and 123E.

Lucey Picks Administrator

Joe E. Nusbaum Named Secretary Of State Department

MADISON (AP) — Gov -Elect Patrick J. Lucey announced Wednesday the appointment of Joe E. Nusbaum as secretary of the Department of Administration.

Nusbaum served as the original head of the department after its creation in 1959 until the expiration of Gov. Gaylord Nelson's term of office in January 1963. Nusbaum, 46, then went to Washington, to organize Nelson's senatorial office and for the past seven years has been the business manager of Western Washington State College in Bellingham.

"Joe is not only a highly competent professional administrator, but he is sensitive to the needs of public programs; especially the need for careful evaluation of spending proposals," Lucey said.

Nusbaum succeeds Wayne McGown, who has served under Republican Gov. Warren P Knowles.

About 200 Pounds of "congressional peanuts" have been prepared by members of the Women's Christian Fellowship of Christ Congressional Church, Clintonville, as their annual fall project. Threat to Lucey, Olson Revealed

MADISON (AP) — Unprecedented security was ordered for Wisconsin's top two gubernatorial contenders the night of the Nov. 3 election because of a telephoned threat against the candidates.

Aides of Democratic Gov-Elect Patrick Lucey and GOP Lt. Gov. Jack Olson agreed to permit special agents to be assigned after being apprised of the threat, the Associated Press learned Wednesday

The protection was prompted by a telephone call a Wisconsin daily newspaper editor said he received the day before the election, it was learned.

The editor said the male caller, who was reported to have a deep, mature voice, asserted it would not make any difference whether Lucey or Olson won because "there will be no winner."

According to a state official, the caller described himself as a member of the radical Weatherman faction of the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS).

The editor, who asked that he not be identified by name, said the caller told him "Neither Olson nor Lucey would win the election. The Weathermen will see to that."

The editor notified his district attorney, who relayed the information to Atty. Gen. Robert Warren's office.

Gov. Warren P. Knowles' office advised both candidates of the threat, and each agreed to permit agents to be assigned for protection.

There were no incidents election night.

Lucey and Olson each continued to have two FBI-trained agents from the attorney general's office for security until after they departed for vacations outside Wisconsin for a few days after the election.

Neither trip was prompted by the telephoned threat, an official said. Both candidates have returned to Wisconsin.

"This kind of thing is going on all over the country," a Capitol source said, referring to threats against public officials.

"But they're like bomb scares," he added. "A lot of times you don't think they're serious, but you can't ignore them."

Supervisors Blast Bar For Proposed Salary Hikes

BY PETER BACH
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Proposed pay hikes for judges and other court-related officials drew heavy fire Wednesday night from supervisors who demanded to know the reason for the increase.

Supv. Paul Huseby, Appleton, led the attack against the proposal made to the Outagamie County Board last week by the Bar Association, asking for raises for the Circuit Court judge, three county judges, the district attorney and staff and other personnel.

The board's courts and justice committee, of which Huseby is chairman, moved to hold a public meeting Dec. 2 with members of the bar association.

The association, in a letter to the board last week signed by president Don Herrling, an Appleton attorney, recommended salary increases of from between $2,000 and $5,000.

Seeking Explanation

That request makes the bar association "come out smelling like a rose," no matter what action is taken on it, Huseby charged. He requested that Herrling, or representative from the bar, explain the rationale behind the proposal.

Huseby said he was approached by a "leading Democratic attorney, who said the Circuit Court judge's salary should be raised to $26,000. The only reason I can see is that this is for his own personal gain," Huseby commented, "though he said he gets more than that now."

Huseby's statement suggested that when the position of Circuit Court judge becomes vacant, that the attorney, active under a Democratic governor, could possibly get the appointment.

Huseby, directing remarks to the committee members, said "We, who are probably around the $10,000 bracket, represent the middle class of our society, and it's you and I that are paying for that raise out of our property taxes." He noted that the bar association members had "given themselves a raise."

Airs Disdain

Supv. Tom Woods, Appleton, aired his disdain for the way groups get together and plan "how much can the public stand this year," and then go out and charge more for their services.

Referring to the district attorney's office, Woods stated that "they better come up with something worthy of that fee." His remarks came in response to those of Huseby, who contended "they're basically fresh out of law school, and wouldn't get near that in private practice."

Supv. Gene Retzlaff, Hortonville, agreed, saying that "for the first couple of years (private lawyers) starve."

Demands Justification

"Until the bar can say publicly what they say privately" about the inefficiency of courts," I won't give their proposal any support," Supv. John Schreiter, Appleton, joined in.

Woods, claiming that industrial executives "have had to take cuts," demanded to know "where the justification for these kinds of raises comes from."

After little more discussion on the matter, the committee set Dec. 2 for the public hearing with the bar association.

In other action, the courts committee moved to delay the purchase of air-conditioning for the county's squad cars for the first six months of 1971 because they'll be sold before it even gets warm.

The courts committee will send this recommendation to the board's finance committee, which earlier this week okayed the purchase of air-conditioned cars for all of 1971. The cost per car would be $281, for 14 cars.

The sheriff's department, which puts 10,000 to 12,000 miles per month on its squads and other cars, will purchase a total of 14 cars for 1971. The purchases are usually made twice, once in January and again in June or July.

Restrictions Suggested

The courts committee also moved to send a recommendation to the finance committee restricting the use of air-conditioning for the line traffic men only, those officers the committee feels who are actually in the cars for most of their eight-hour shifts

Huseby maintained that the sheriff's investigators don't spend that much time in their cars to warrant air-conditioning. Schreiter disagreed, saying that investigators "spend two or three hours per day in the cars and are expected to be in business suits."

Huseby said both proposals would go to the finance committee "because we have nothing to say about this" anyway.

The courts committee also voted to have a meeting Dec. 9 with law enforcement personnel and members of the district attorney's office, plus two county judges, for the purpose of airing gripes

Mess Is Too Much, Even as Demonstration

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz (AP) — The Ecology Club at Saguaro High School, to promote antilittering, had urged students for three days to deliberately spread litter in the school courtyard near a snack bar. The idea was to demonstrate the result if everyone was careless.

The club had planned a clean-up after when classes Wednesday

But when the pickup team arrived, accompanied by newsmen, it found that a small, energetic band of freshman girls who couldn't stand it any longer had sneaked out during the early afternoon and cleaned up the mess themselves.
